Your success depends upon the good-will of your patrons. You must get them to come back as well as to come in. The only way to make them come back is to put up a good show the first time. And to follow it up with other good shows. ¶ The picture's the thing—nothing else counts. ¶ Neither flashy overdressed advertising nor flashy overselling distribution methods really means anything to your pocket-book in the long run. If the picture you play is n.g., you get the kick-back — advertising or selling notwithstanding. You can't convince the public something is good when the public can see it's not. ¶ The picture's the thing—nothing else counts. ¶ Your safest bet is to play Pathé, whose every picture gives honest satisfaction. To you and your customers. For Pathé can match any company in the business, bar none—star for star, director for director, story for story, production for production—and give you a little something besides. That something is the absolute, certified, experienced knowledge of what the public wants. ¶ The result of a quarter-century of serving the exhibitors of America with the best newsreel, the best short subjects, the best features—year in, year out — yesterday, today, tomorrow. ¶ The picture's the thing—and nothing else counts.

Offering of Comedies

MARCH is an all-fair-weather month for the showman who has Educational's Talking Comedies—it brings the most outstanding group of short comedy releases in the history of this company. And that means the greatest group of short comedies ever offered in one month by any company.

"HE TRUMPED HER ACE"

MACK SENNETT
Talking Comedy
with
Marjorie Beebe Johnny Burke

One of the funniest and finest comedies made by any producer since the advent of sound.

"A sure ace . . . a pip of a comedy."
—Film Daily

"The best example of dialogued comedy to be presented since the shorts went vocal . . . has universal appeal."
—Zit's

LLOYD HAMILTON
in
"POLISHED IVORY"
A Talking Comedy

The big comedian up to many of the old tricks that made him famous. Plenty of slam-bang action in a comedy that will polish off any program with a lot of laughs.

"DAD KNOWS BEST"

JACK WHITE
Talking Comedy
with Taylor Holmes and Helen Bolton

Smartest thing so far in the whole Jack White Talking Comedy series. All the cleverness this talented and popular star can give to a bright farce story, with the universal appeal that comes from lively action and sparkling dialogue.

TERRY-TOONS

Two new cartoons that keep up the pace set by Paul Terry in "Caviar" for this series of tuneful novelties. Featuring the popular melodies and burlesquing the customs of Spain and Germany.

"NO SHORT SUBJECT HAS OCCASIONED MORE COMMENT IN MANY A DAY"—Ex. Daily Review.

The MASTER SWEEPER

with CHESTER CONKLIN

JUST another demonstration of Vitaphone Varieties leadership in short length features.

"No short subject has occasioned more comment in many a day. Clever satire, splendidly played. Type of short subject which illustrates the possibilities and the values in the briefer length pictures. It has cleverness, brains and is tremendously amusing."
—Ex. Daily Review

"Gets the laughs."—Zits

"Droll and amusing. Distinctly different and will find an easy welcome. Outstanding satire."—Variety

Presented to The Master Sweeper in recognition of his great work after the Lindbergh parade.

"A Valuable Reference Book"

PHOTOPLAY Editors, Casting Directors, Theatre Advertising Men, Publicity Directors for distributing organizations ----- all have joined in pronouncing Motion Picture News Blue Book the one and only trustworthy source of information on picture people.

¶ Biographical data, kept up-to-date, supplies a need that arises daily in the casting department of the studio, the newspaper office, and the sales office. The demand is met and the need filled to the letter of satisfaction by Blue Book, which carries "the record" in a form that makes it useful for quick reference.

¶ Its value to the industry is the reason for its success. As a medium of publicity for the professional, it is not approached by any similar publication.

Low-Cost, Colored Sound Pictures

THE ever-growing success of Sonochrome is based on one simple fact. This Eastman film meets the demands of the new-day motion picture, by giving both color and sound-on-film—at the cost of ordinary black-and-white.

Browbeating Reported To Force Gang Tribute For "Protecting" N. Y. Theatres

You Figure How They Stand

Electrical Research Products, defending Warner-Stanley in the Wilmington Theatre infringement suit brought by General Talking Pictures, is in turn suing Warner-Stanley for alleged infringement on a Pacent installation. Warners, in turn, is acting against Electrical Research in arbitration proceedings over royalties. On the other hand, Electrical Research is battling Fox on a refinancing program, but, in turn, is defending Fox in the General Talking suit vs. Fox Case Corp.

D. W. Getting Own Financing After Joe Schenck Row

Hollywood—Denied up and down the film colony, it is nevertheless generally understood that D. W. Griffith has arranged to finance his future productions without the aid of Joseph M. Schenck.

With Schenck holding the money bags, Griffith found the consequent supervision and dictation not to his liking. This, it is understood, came into sharp focus in producing "Abraham Lincoln." Therefore, D. W. determined to do something about it. As a result of his own arrangements, he becomes independent of United Artists on matters pertaining to production. This is taken to mean that Griffith will produce what he likes where he likes, turning the finished negative over to United Artists for distribution. He is a member-owner of the distributing company.

While the original plan is said to have called for making "Abraham Lincoln" one of the big specials of the year from the standpoint of cost, the budget is reported being shaved to approximate $800,000.

There are about 100 different sets and locations for the production, but new schedule calls for completion in a total of 31 days, making it necessary for Griffith to go through an average of at least three sets of the production schedule and methods.

Warners Flirting with Hall Who Nears End at Para.

Hollywood—Another featured player of the silent days will be dropped by Paramount when James Hall leaves upon expiration of his present option period. Paramount has loaned him to Warners for a featured spot in the filmusical, "Precious." There is a possibility Warners will sign Hall when he is free.

Maxwell Is Riled by World Wide's U. K. Film Policy

British International Pictures, Ltd., part owner of Sono Art World-Wide disagrees with the latter company over its policy of distributing English pictures in America, and wants to know what's to be done about it. The situation is responsible for departure for London of George Weeks of Sono Art to talk matters over with John Maxwell.

When J. D. Williams, Earle W. Hammons and Al Aronson formed World-Wide, the company was committed to a policy of distributing imported pictures only. On this basis, Maxwell invested $50,000 in the company with an understanding covering distribution of B. I. P. product in this market. After Williams went out and Sono Art went in, the new set-up provided for handling of considerably more domestically-made pictures than foreign.

Sono Art World-Wide, it is understood, rejected several B. I. P. talkers and Maxwell has been inquiring why ever since.

May Face Legal Suit to Determine Who Has Straus

Hollywood.—Warners and M-G-M face a legal tussle over the exclusive services of Oscar Straus, Viennese composer who was brought to this country to write an original operetta for the former company.

Straus, according to reliable reports, signed with Warners until April 1, but it was shortly after his arrival in Hollywood that the company determined to secure him on an extended contract. In the meantime, Straus was approached by M-G-M with which organization he is said to have closed despite the existence of a personal service contract originally reported to have been signed with Sydney Garrett of the Inter-Globe Export Co. of New York and London.

Target Offering Rich Field for Racketeering, So Story Goes

Racketeering's sinister menace is declared casting its shadow on the picture business. Stories of strong arm methods to chisel coin from the industry in New York and other cities are in circulation, one stating that recently an official visiting in the East from the Coast, received one of the "either or else" warnings, that unless he submitted to gangland's demands, his films would be stolen or destroyed.

On the East Side, in Harlem and in the Bronx, in New York, gangs are said to have found the theatre protection gag, a new and lucrative racket. The method of operation usually is a visit to the manager or other company executive, who is told the gang has been informed that the theatre is having trouble with hoodlums.

How System Works

If the manager is gullible and answers in the affirmative, he is assessed higher price for the protection the gang is prepared to give him. If, however, he denies it, but refuses to enter into a deal with the gangsters, annoyances begin. Stench bombs may be placed in the theatres, the upholstering cut and the house robbed to bring the manager into line. Parts of the same mob usually are used for the reported outrages, whose purpose is to convince the theatre operator that the gang's protection is needed.

In Chicago, various plans of action have been reported, chief of which concerns visiting players, who have been ordered to pay ransom under threat of being taken for the familiar gangland ride.

That Tri-Cornered Merger Gets Hotter and Hotter

RKO-Pathe-Shuberts in one camp. The most persistent merger yarn of the week. Wall Street reports have it that the three companies are slated to join fortunes under one banner with RKO predominating, thus adding further credence to the general understanding prevalent in the trade that such an amalgamation will go through as outlined.

On record is the denial of Lee and Jake Shubert that their holdings were to be joined with Paramount and Warners. Such a deal is understood to have been discussed and then passed up, thereby clearing the decks for a union with RKO and Pathe. The Shuberts, according to prevalent reports, are seeking a deal which will tie in their stage producing activities with talkers.

WHERE THE POTOMAC ROLLS ITS OWN

THE legislative wheels stopped grinding in Washington the other day long enough to launch an acrimonious argument on obscenities in literature. What constitutes the proper and improper insofar as the printed word is concerned depends entirely on the individual point of view.

However, it is a fact that several estimable senators think they found the answer and proceeded to embody in the new tariff measure a provision which throws the issue over licentious material onto the tender mercies of the United States district courts for disposition.

Significant in this byplay is the censorship proclivities thus evidenced by certain of the groups in the senatorial body. How far this campaign will reach nobody is talking about and the guess is anybody's, remembering that it is a short leap from books to films. Whether or not some trouble-maker will negotiate it remains to be seen.

Washington and Its Film Slant

What has a vital bearing, however, on what may or may not come is the manner in which a substantial portion of official Washington views motion pictures!

In many legislative circles, no love exists for the film industry and the men who run it. The reason, whether justifiable or not, are several. This dislike has been engendered largely by envy. On all sides, and sponsored principally by the trade itself, are heard stories of enormous salaries and even more enormous profits. The popular conception has it that motion pictures are taxed less frequently and less onerously than other business of like scope.

Here you have what is merely part of the story. And, while this state of affairs is unfortunate for the industry at large, there is little to be gained by ignoring the facts.

From scratch, then, we suffer from serious handicaps. When you couple with them, the meddlesome interference in legitimate business which many law-makers prefer to exercise, the situation, it is apparent, is certain to grow more complex.

An Industry That Is Near-Sighted

The last angle concerns the short-sightedness for which the mentors of celluloid destinies are themselves responsible. We refer once again to the calibre of entertainment which has insidiously worked its way into the entertainment scheme as a result of talkers. And for its existence, we place the finger of blame on the producer body, misled by the dazzling influence of bloated box-office reports. Regardless of the causes of this cancerous condition, however, the problem, it seems to us, is to immediately retrace some steps in a determined effort to placate the storm of protest certain to break under a continuance of existing policies.

If the Senate determines to make an issue of questionable motion pictures, the muddy water to be kicked up will be plenty, the newspaper barrage virulent and explosive enough to sock pictures to a fare-thee-well and the hurt done to the film institution one that will take long to heal.

The Danger Is There

Perhaps it won't happen. No individual who has the interests of the industry at heart will wish it, for the potential damage entailed might be terrifically costly. But if the responsible factors engaged in this business fail to detect in the Washington book censorship episode an indication that their own enterprise stands on the edge of a seething volcano, they're deluding themselves.

An amazing commentary on the entire current trend away from the tasteful and toward the dubious is how there leaders can overlook a condition which even the man in the street is commenting upon. It is beyond conception to imagine that the Zukors, the Foxes, the Warners don't know which way they are going. And if it is correct that they do know, how long, please tell, do they think their studios can get away with it?

An Internal Bath Is Required

The time for an overhauling process has set in. Call it housecleaning or springcleaning or anything you like, but let something be done about it by those on the inside whose job it is. An industry that has the capabilities, the resources and the funds to remake itself as this business did when sound made it necessary, can swing those same forces into line to save itself from the dangers of a national censorship law.

For it is exactly in such direction that this industry is heading unless by plain language and constant reiteration the realization is hammered home that the day for an internal bath has arrived.

RCA, W. E., De Forest in Spirited Race For Small Theatres' Business

Cagey Legit Star Has His Own Way

Hollywood—A radio, record and stage star brought to pictures through talkers by one of the large producers, holds the longest contract ever drawn for an individual.

The inside story is that the star's closest friend, also a stage personality, took a flyer in silent pictures several years ago for a definite nosedive. Disappointed friend thought up every obstacle he encountered during his starring contract and insisted each be covered by a separate clause to protect his pal. No trouble reported yet.

Abramson Charges Riddled in Hays' Trust Suit Reply

Efforts of the Hays association to exclude objectionable matter from the screens, through adherence to the formula on production adopted in 1924 and purposes of the organization are set forth in an answer filed in Federal Court to suit brought by Ivan Abramson and the Graphic Film Corp. against members and individuals, charging restraint of trade for alleged banning of showings of the plaintiffs' pictures.

The charges are ridiculed in the answer, which says that contrary to harboring a monopoly, the industry is intensively competitive in the production, distribution and exhibition fields. Max D. Steuer, Henry Epstein and Gabe Hess are Hays' attorneys.

Responsible elements in the business "have consistently affirmed and now reaffirm their intention not to use the world's greatest entertainment medium to transmit salaciousness and moral uncleanliness to a world audience of 250,000,000 weekly," the attorneys say. They add that some of the pictures produced by Abramson, and in defense of which he wrote a book in 1929 called "Mother of Truth," were "Forbidden Fruit," "A Fool's Paradise," "Sex Lure" and "Enlighten Thy Daughter."

The Hays office, says the answer, is "wholly an organization for the improvement of motion pictures and the promotion of ends common to the good of all elements in the industry."

Free Taxi Service and Eats At Denny Show

Mike Simmons, newly appointed director of publicity and advertising for Sono Art-World Wide, is pulling a couple of fast ones for a preview showing of "What A Man!", first of the Reginald Denny series at the 55th St. Playhouse in New York on Tues.

Every exhibitor in the Greater New York territory has been invited to hail a taxi, go to the theatre and have the company pay for the transportation. A jury of 12 tramps supplied by Mr. Zero will sit in judgment on Denny's celluloid prowess as a tennis champion as will Vincent Richards, who has a reputation unique unto himself as a wielder of the racquet. There will be eats for all—even the hoboes.

Howard and Muni Have Their Woes Over on Fox Lot

Hollywood.—It is almost six months since William K. Howard has been in action. The director's last picture was George Jessel's first and last for Fox, "Love, Live and Laugh," over which Howard and Sol Wurtzel are understood to have had their differences.

There was also a run-in on Howard's previous picture, "The Valiant," which Wurtzel wanted made one way with the director holding out for his own. The upshot of these incidents is that Howard has been idling his time at full salary until Wurtzel determines to let him resume work.

Then there is the case of Paul Muni whom the Fox lot was excited about when he first arrived. Muni Weisenfreund, as he was known when he appeared on the stage in New York, did "The Valiant" and then "Seven Faces" in the fall of last year with nothing since then.

Muni wants to play romantic roles. Fox wants to build him into a Lon Chaney and there it stands. Although he is still reported to be under contract, Muni is without assignment. The actor, however, has acquired the vaudeville sketch, "A Chinaman's Chance," by Addison Burkhart and has authorized Harry Weber to submit it to bookers for a possible vaudeville routing, thereby indicating a split with the Fox studio.

Paramount Backs Kane; Originally Denied by Kent

Paris.—Paramount backing is financing Robert T. Kane in his French production venture. The pictures are designed for distribution via Paramount to French distributing unit and will be used in whatever additional territories the company may deem suitable.

The output, however, is not designed for the States.

Denial that Paramount was participating in Robert T. Kane's French company was made to Motion Picture News some weeks ago by S. R. Kent, who, at the same time, said there was nothing to the report that he had been elected a director in the French company.

W.E. and De Forest Coming Out With Small House Models in Fight

Spirited battle for the business of "the little fellow" in the sound reproducer field is in progress between RCA Photophone, Electrical Research Products and General Talking Pictures. The edge gained by RCA Photophone through sale of its small house equipment under its deal with Allied States Ass'n has precipitated a three-cornered drive for business on the part of these companies.

As a consequence, Electrical Research soon is to make announcement of a new small-theatre sound-on-film equipment to sell for $3,500, offered either for cash or on a two-year deferred payment plan. Disc equipment for this reproducer would be $1,250 additional, it is stated, bringing the dual system to $4,750. The RCA Photophone equipment sells for $3,995 and is available for theatres up to 1,000 seats.

Now, General Talking, it is understood, is planning to market three new models for theatres up to 750, 750 to 1,200 and from 1,200 seats up. In addition to the equipment, General Talking is offering exhibitors immunity from patent suits the company declares it is preparing to institute against exhibitors who may be using or have used infringing equipment.

New RCA Photophone equipment was brought out in December and since has had rapid sale in the small theatre field.

Impending Announcement a Chicago Sales Resistance

Chicago—All sound installations pending here are being held up until Western Electric comes to a decision on production of new type equipment at a lower price.

A telephone canvass of exhibitors without sound or about to install, conducted by Electrical Research a week ago, halted wiring plans in more than 50 houses in the Chicago district and stirred up plenty of interest among silent holdouts. The telephone conversation in effect determined whether the exhibitor at the other end of the wire would be interested in a new type equipment to sell for $3,500 or less.

2 War Specials to Battle It Out on Hollywood Line

Hollywood—With "Hell's Angels" spotted to follow current run of "Rogue Song" at Grauman's Chinese in April, Harold B. Franklin of Fox West Coast has also booked Universal's "All Quiet on the Western Front" for the Carthay Circle after the Grandeur version of "Happy Days."

The situation is unique in that the two $1.50 twice daily run houses will be showing war spectacles simultaneously. John McCormack's initial Fox production, "Song O' My Heart," is penciled in to follow "Hell's Angels" at the Chinese, while "The King of Jazz Revue" is first in line right now to succeed "All Quiet" at the Carthay.

An Insider's Outlook

THE Fox spectacle, unequalled in motion picture history and perhaps in the history of American business as well, persists in holding center stage.

The industry, in New York at least, talks about nothing else. Empeenews is asked on every hand who's going to win. How do we know when even the lawyers and many of the bankers embroiled don't know?

For it is a fact that the lightning-like procession of court orders, stays, and injunctions which red-lettered the week have made even the lawyers who are supposed to know such things dizzy. As this is written a principal figure involved in the complex, maze-like situation admits that he doesn't know what's what and who did it. He's merely hoping that his cohorts win, but he is anything but certain that they will.

Through it all, the fighting spirit of Bill Fox simply won't down. Those close to him can't understand how he stands up under the pot shots taken at him. All they can do is wonder what his formula for stamina is. And whether you believe him correct or not, whether you are with him or against him, you must admit that he is putting up the grandest of fights.

The inside this week revolves around several secret trips which Fox has been making. The destination, in each case, has been Washington and the purpose pow-wows with some Government folks who have considerable to say about the legality of mergers et al.

Fox, so the inside would have it, has secured written permission to merge Loew's with Fox Film and Fox Theatres if and when legal and financial obstructions are cleared away. Significantly featured in the gigantic plan—if and when it happens—is a new cabinet without Winnie Sheehan, Jimmy Grainger, Saul Rogers and John Zanft, but with Nick Schenck, Jack and Joe Leo and Felix Feist.

Sensational? You bet. Only remember nobody knows which way the company will jump. Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research are banking mightily on April 15. That's the day on which the annual meeting is to be held. An important date, so circle it on your calendar and watch what happens. Winnie and Jimmy Saul and John are pinning much on it. Perhaps even praying a bit.

Waterloo and Climbers

Delusions of grandeur—not wide film—and the Napoleonic complex are twin reasons for more unfortunate debacles in the picture business than perhaps any others. Experience, you would imagine, carries its own lesson and certainly whatever archives exist for motion pictures are loaded with plenty.

And yet, sitting both on the outside and the inside of a certain situation as we happen to be, it becomes an amazing and incomprehensible affair to grasp how reputedly clever film executives can so perfectly demonstrate their asininity.

There is a certain organization which has been capturing a good deal of attention of late by the speed and the persistency with which it is growing. Its owners and operators have passed through much travail over the years. Which means that their success is anything but an overnight accident.

Star Dusting

The publicity boys at RKO have been reading the news columns of the papers recently and, noting the arrival of the planet now well known as Mr. X., want the astronomers to call it "Arkayo" in honor of—well, you know.

They're also distributing cuckoo clocks in the same office to commemorate something or other about a new picture of that name. It would be a shame if the chap who developed the weak-kneed gag about the planet were to be overlooked.

But success has inclined to make them a bit drunk. They're a trifle cocky and, being as they are, utterly fail to see the snares into which a proposed radical departure in their business creed would propel them. As a matter of fact and in cold turkey terms their prosperity can endure only so long as the good-will of several all-powerful companies is theirs. It is impossible to imagine that they don't appreciate this.

Yet, the contemplated step is of such a nature as to endanger their present standing in the eyes of the organizations upon which their business depends. Do you think that has made any difference? Nary a bit.

They are determined to be little Emperors and they haven't a chance.

Napoleon bit the dust at a place called Waterloo, as any school boy knows, but that's history and historical dramas never did cut much of a swath in the picture business.

The Pot Boils

"All is not gold," etc. You know how it goes. The bromide fits the internal goings on in a big league outfit—not Fox—snugly and well. Balance sheets and profit statements are grand. Dividends are being met regularly and outwardly, all is serene. However, on the inside there is considerable scampering to cover.

The reasons leading up to the present situation go back some months and are traceable to a number of acquisitions which cost several pretty pennies. These buys came often and with a rapidity that shocked the crowd in New York into more surprise than they ever thought they could express.

From the organization's angle, the moves were deliberately designed to establish a corner in a certain commodity and well nigh succeeded. Now the profits demonstrate themselves to be more visionary than actual, and it hurts. Commitments have been made and partially paid with others to follow on whatever dates had been set for them. The result is a stringency that is serious today and who knows what tomorrow?

If the financial program hastily conceived to cover up the bad spots doesn't go through as per pre-arranged schedule, the mess may be as pretty an affair as this industry has yet seen.

And, further than that, what a surprise for the wiseacres if this one ever cracks through the high, protective wall so hurriedly thrown up to keep prying eyes out!

You can't tell. It might even hasten another merger—big fellows, too.

Do You Know

Why Sam Katz, who has enough to keep him busy in his own backyard, packed his bags so suddenly and secretly left for Paris late last week?

And if, when he returns to New York, will his worldly and actual possessions be exactly the same as they were before he left these shores?

General Talking Selling Protection Seeking Assignments on Patent Suits

Company Expects Victory in 2 Actions Pending Covering Sound-on-Film System

Confident of the outcome of its test suits on patent infringement pending, General Talking Pictures now is selling protection against suits to exhibitors, producers and distributors. The firm also is collecting assignments from exhibitors of claims they may have against manufacturers of infringing equipments they have installed, giving in return immunity from suit on the part of General for infringements, under the De Forest patents the firm controls.

Two suits now are pending by General to determine the validity of its claim that it controls all basic patents for sound-on-film recording and reproduction. The first, brought against Fox-Case Corp., has been postponed indefinitely by agreement of counsel, while the second, brought against Warner-Stanley, is slated to be heard at Wilmington May 19. The first action covers sound recording, while the latter covers theatre reproduction.

Swinging Into Line

One big film company already has petitioned for a contract of immunity from any suits by General, and a chain of 20 houses already has bought such protection. Exhibitors obtaining such protection will be permitted to retain the equipment they have installed, plus additions General feels are necessary.

After a series of delays, the case against Warner-Stanley will get under way at Wilmington May 19 under a peremptory order signed by the justice in the case. This means that no further adjournment will be granted to the defendant. General is eager that the case come to trial as speedily as possible.

General is suing for an injunction, damages and the right to confiscate any existing equipment installed in a theatre. In addition, the firm is prepared to sue any exhibitor for the amount of damages sustained, over and above the amount underwritten by the manufacturer of the particular equipment concerned.

To Sue Manufacturers

In all cases where assignments from exhibitors are secured, General intends to sue the manufacturing company to collect the amount involved. In this connection, it is stated, contracts of manufacturers usually protect the exhibitor in litigation up to the amount which he has paid to the particular manufacturer.

In the Wilmington action, Electrical Research Products asked the court to determine whether a radio license from De Forest, secured in 1916, could not be extended to cover sound pictures, thus avoiding a fight over validity of the patents, which otherwise the company intended to attack the validity of the patents. This motion was denied, however.

"White Cargo" In Harlem

"White Cargo," British picture allegedly banned by the Hays organization because its theme concerns the marriage of a white man to an African negress, has been booked to reopen the Regun Theatre, 116th St., near Lenox Ave., in the heart of Harlem's black belt. The house, now dark, reopens March 29 with the British film. Darktown's reaction to the picture is being awaited with interest.

Murray-Tiffany Jam Caused by Close Up Use?

Hollywood.—It was a question of close-ups that caused the jam between Mae Murray and Tiffany, so the inside story goes, resulting in the $1,750,000 suit brought by the star for alleged breach of contract.

The star and director just couldn't get along, 'tis said, and Miss Murray resented attempts to make close-ups of any other members of the cast, especially her leading man, George Barraud.

Finally, studio officials are declared to have resorted to the practice of dismissing the company at the end of the day, telling Barraud to return at night to make the necessary close-ups, which were declared objected to by the star.

When Miss Murray saw a rough cut of the picture in the projection room, she is reported to have raised a rumpus about the close-ups that she knew nothing of, and so it is said, it was agreed that they would be cut out—but the picture went out with them.

Miss Murray says her contract called for option for seven additional pictures following "Peacock Alley," which was exercised last December. The second film was to have started by Jan. 15, she claims. The company refused to release her from the contract, although the film wasn't started, she states, causing her to turn down propositions from other companies.

Dr. De Forest Feted at Chicago Store Anniversary

Chicago.—Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of Phonofilm, was feted this week at 75th anniversary of Mandel Brothers' store, where he has been honor guest. The veteran inventor was speaker at a number of functions during the week. A picture on talker progress is a feature.

RKO Bringing Investment At Studio to $2,000,000

Hollywood.—New additions to Radio Pictures' studios, calling for expenditure of $2,000,000, including two stages and a number of buildings and improvements, will raise total building investment of the company to $6,000,000, the firm states.

Sound Clinic Will Offer Protection, De Forest Sound

Double-barreled opportunity for exhibitors with unwired houses and those with unsatisfactory bootleg equipment to obtain De Forest sound-on-film reproducer at low cost, together with immunity from patent suits which may follow decision in test suits now under way, is offered by a new sound clinic, just established by General Talking Pictures.

R. F. Woodhull

The new policy, which he says marks a radical and revolutionary departure, was announced by R. F. Woodhull, executive vice-president of the company, following his return to New York from a six weeks' trip throughout eastern and Middle West states in company with Irving Lesser, general sales manager.

His trip convinced him, Woodhull said, that the big field for development is the small town, where exhibitors are staggering under the top-heavy load of inferior sound reproduction. To these exhibitors, General offers a survey of their reproducers by company engineers, who will take inventory of existing equipment, use as much of it as practical and then overhaul it and add De Forest sound-on-film reproducer.

Exhibitors in territories visited insist they must have sound-on-film reproducing equipment, according to Woodhull, due to their declared dissatisfaction with duped sound on most discs and the cost of expressage on records. Labor difficulties also are a big factor, he says, because disc equipment in many instances results in demand by the unions that extra operators be employed.

The price at which the sound-on-film equipment can be obtained, together with overhauling of existing disc equipment, is considerably below that offered by any other company for quality sound, Woodhull says.

Exhibitors who take advantage of the clinic's services assign to General any claims they may have against the manufacturer of the equipment they previously have installed on account of possible infringement and General, in turn, gives them covenant not to sue them on the validity of its patents.

Zukor Preparing To Gobble Up British Theatres In Move To Offset Fox Hold

Flirting With Maxwell Chain In Plan to Counter Gaumont British Affiliation

London—With $6,000,000 advanced by Lehman Bros., Bancamerica-Blair and Dillon, Read & Co., to save the Gaumont British chain for Fox, MOTION PICTURE NEWS learns Adolph Zukor is on the move to offset William Fox's dominance of the theatre situation here via a deal with John Maxwell for the latter's string of theatres.

The Maxwell interests operate about seventy houses, most of them first runs and opposition to the key theatres controlled throughout the British Isles by the G. B. interests, the largest in the country.

Maxwell, who controls British International and Pathe-First National, is understood to be ready to make a deal, always assuming the terms are right. Insiders here are of the opinion that Paramount, in order to make its position secure, must make itself independent of Gaumont British and that its own theatre chain is necessary to secure outlets as well as to protect the heavy gross which its distributing company draws annually from the British market.

Gaumont British, a Fox-controlled company, operates 300 houses in Great Britain, many of them among the largest and the best in that country. The important part which this one organization plays in the English market is evidenced by the fact that, in his affidavit filed in answer to the original receivership brought by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, William Fox declared he felt acquisition of the chain necessary in order to protect the $500,000 which his British distributing company collects yearly in that market.

Among those familiar with the present status of the English trade, it is readily conceded that playing time from Gaumont British is necessary to successful operation.

Paramount has built up a substantial business in Britain under the guidance of John Cecil Graham and is understood to be prepared to safeguard that enterprise in whatever manner may be necessary. Experience in this country has demonstrated that each major company must control theatres of its own. The situation in England today is identical.

Aside from the Gaumont British chain, the largest single circuit in Britain is that controlled by John Maxwell. It is, therefore, natural that Zukor should direct his attention in that direction.

"Blaze" in Spanish Flops in Buenos Aires Theatre

Buenos Aires.—Sold and sold hard to the natives here as what a Spanish talker really should be, "Sombras de Gloria" ("Blaze O' Glory") was pulled from the Ideal after playing five days while a day and date run at the Callao is not creating any box-office riots. The public simply failed to enthuse over the picture. Reasons still among the missing.

Precedent Set By M-G-M Film In 5 Tongues

Hollywood—Decision of M-G-M to make "Monsieur Le Fox" simultaneously in five languages has launched a new film discovery. Barbara Leonard, a San Francisco girl, who speaks six languages, will play the feminine lead in the English, German, Spanish, French and Italian versions setting another precedent.

Exteriors will be filmed in the mountains of northern California. Hal Roach is directing the picture and Gilbert Roland will be male lead in the English and Spanish versions.

Gilbert and Tully Peace Fest Proved A Real "Battle"

That John Gilbert-Jim Tully love feast was a howling success, fistically, Florabel Muir reveals in "The New York Daily News," in publishing the purported low-down of the get-together which followed their celebrated encounter.

Here is the account of the affair, as published in "The News."

Herman Mankiewicz called the parley at his home and rang in several of his close pals to share with him the harvest of publicity that was real motive of the affair.

Barney Glazer was there and Carey Wilson and Ed Knopt and Laurence Stallings.

Gilbert and Tully shook hands and buried the hatchet. Gilbert and Mankiewicz went to the kitchen to get a drink of milk. Herman broke it gently to Jack then that he figured it was about time to call in the reporters and Jack broke out in angry perspiration and some rough language.

"Why, you dirty this and that," he stormed. "This is a plant. I don't want to see any reporters and I'll be damned if I will."

Glazer, hearing the racket, also went out for some milk, or may be it was hot chocolate, and was similarly set upon by Gilbert. Glazer and Mankiewicz then exchanged bitter words and their raucous cries brought Carey Wilson to the scene.

He surled himself into the conversation zestfully and was turned upon by Glazer, who referred to him as a "dirty one-eyed this and that," stirring the Wilson wrath. He was not too proud to fight and soon there was a merry set-to in progress.

Tully, hearing the sounds of battle, departed lest he, having come to make peace, should remain to make war. Entered then Stallings. Eddie Knopf plunged into the battle and heard himself called a "dirty one-armed this and that" by somebody and resented the implication manfully. Stallings walked into the fray and was greeted pleasantly by another embattled one.

The upshot of it all was that Gilbert isn't speaking to any of the boys at all. Glazer and Wilson aren't speaking. Mankiewicz and Glazer aren't speaking. Stallings is working on Gilbert's new story at M-G-M and they exchange only necessary confidences through secretaries.

London Sees Deal For Warners To Buy Pathe-F. N.

London.—Private reports are in circulation that Warners either have made or are to make an offer to John Maxwell, who controls Pathe-First National, for control of the company.

The Warners distribute their own product here through the former Vitagraph exchanges, but First National goes to the Maxwell unit under terms of a franchise which he holds. The Warners are reported desirous of controlling the distributing destinies in this market of both brands. This is the reason for the deal.

If it is successful, the two exchange systems will be merged and the company name changed to Warners-First National.

Loew, Blum, Freeman On Jaunt To Mediterranean

Arthur M. Loew, Dave Blum, Joe Freeman and Sidney Falkenberg sailed on the France early Friday morning for a cruise to the Mediterranean. The jaunt will end in London, where Continental divisional and sales managers for M-G-M will meet in convention, after which the party will return to New York accompanied by Samuel Eckman, managing director for Jury-Metro-Goldwyn, Ltd. The westward passage will probably be made on the Paris.

Upstate N. Y. Warner Managers Are Promoted

Albany—Several changes made in the management of the Warner houses in central New York. Bernard Depkin, Jr., comes to Albany and will be in charge of the theatres in Albany, Troy, Utica and Syracuse, with headquarters in the Mark Strand.

Charles Smakwitz, who has been handling the work, has been named director of public relations and exploitation for all Warner houses in the four cities, and will maintain headquarters here. George Weigand will serve as contact man in the same territory, while John Kirkpatrick, of the Syracuse Strand, has been transferred to a like capacity at the Mark Ritz in Albany, and Eddie DeCosmo goes from the Ritz to fill a like position as assistant manager at the Madison in Albany.

Fox May Merge Loew's And Name New Cabinet If Victor In Control Fight

No Comment On Reports Of Merger

At the hour of going to press, a telegram asking William Fox for a statement regarding his reported merger plans involving Fox Film, Fox Theatres and Loew's had not been answered.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's Inc., declared this was the first he had heard of any such plan. He is being mentioned as a potential factor of importance in the merged organizations, provided the many difficulties in the path of such a step can be cleared away and the amalgamation completed.

Listing Plan No Change Of Sales Policy-Lichtman

United Artists is considering a plan to list its pictures all on one form of contract, but this is to save clerical work and does not involve any change of policy, states Al Lichtman, distribution head. The firm, he says, will continue its policy of individual selling, the system on which the company was founded. No decision has been made as to the proposed change of contract form.

Under the present system, individual contract forms are used for each picture. As five copies of each must be signed, there is a considerable clerical problem involved, both on the part of exhibitor and exchange. The proposed change is principally for the benefit of exhibitors, Lichtman states.

Goldberg Turns Exhib After Publix Friction

Omaha—When Publix announced several weeks ago that Harry Goldberg had resigned as division manager here, there was considerable speculation on Film Row as to the reason for his act, but attempts to learn the back-stage story met with evasive replies from the organization.

Goldberg's announcement this week that he is re-entering exhibition has set tongues to wagging again, and it is seen as a confirmation of reports of friction within the organization. Goldberg is reopening the Moon and Muse, 15-cent downtown house, both having been remodeled and wired.

Arliss Signs New Pact To Make Warner Series

Warners has signed a contract with George Arliss to make a series of pictures, which will require his presence at Hollywood for several seasons. This means that Arliss probably will drop the stage during the life of the contract.

RKO Gets "Street Scene"

Talking picture rights to "Street Scene" have been acquired by RKO from William A. Brady.

Zanft To Follow Smith For Stand On Halsey Plan?

Resignation of John Zanft as general manager of Fox Theatres is reported slated as a result of William Fox's move in placing the firm's houses in Greater New York under operating control of Joe Leo. The move is seen as a "spanking" for Zanft, for siding with Winfield R. Sheehan, James R. Grainger, Courtland Smith and Saul Rogers in publicly backing the Halsey, Stuart financing plan and opposing the Fox-favored plan. The move leaves but five theatres, the Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Brooklyn houses under Zanft's control. Smith resigned some time ago.

Multi-Lingual Versions Of "Journey's End" Plan

Production of "Journey's End" in German, Italian, French and Spanish is planned by Tiffany in association with domestic companies in the respective countries, Grant L. Cooke, executive vice-president of Tiffany, stated Thursday at a press luncheon. Cooke has just returned from the Coast where he supervised production of the picture. With him is George Pearson of Welch-Pearson, London, which is associated in the venture. In no case will dialogue be dubbed, but the production in the individual, countries will be with casts composed of nationals. Only the war shots used in the American film will go into the foreign versions. The picture is to have its New York premiere about April 15.

Ann Harding in Mackaill Role by Sudden F. N. Move

Hollywood—With no explanation given, Pathe has loaned Ann Harding to First National for the lead in "The Girl of the Golden West," instead of using Dorothy Mackaill, as previously planned. Miss Mackaill, whose contract expires in June, was yanked to play in an unnamed picture. The company has an option on her future services.

Thalberg Replacing Sheehan, Feist in Grainger's Post, Is Reported Plan

William Fox will attempt to carry out merger of Fox and Loew interests and appoint a new "cabinet" of executives, with exception of Jack Leo if—and it's a big if—successful in his fight to retain control of his companies.

Behind that big if, which Fox must hurdle to attain his goal, are a series of state and Federal court actions, headed perhaps for the United States Supreme Court, and a battle royal which is expected to be staged at the annual meeting April 15. Meanwhile, both sides in the struggle for control are taking a breathing spell until April 7, when there will be heard a Circuit Court writ restraining Judge Coleman from acting in suit brought by Fox to restrain the trustees, John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, from voting his controlling stock in both companies, under the Dec. 3 trusteeship which never became fully operative.

Government O. K. Given ?

Fox is understood to have had a series of conferences with government officials and to have received written approval of his plan to merge the Fox and Loew interests, if and when the financial and legal entanglements are removed. Under the plan, it is reported, theatres and exchanges of both firms throughout the world would be merged. The studios and output of each would remain separate, however, Irving Thalberg replacing Winfield R. Sheehan at the Fox studio and Louis B. Mayer continuing in charge at the M-G-M studio, with Felix F. Feist of M-G-M in charge of sales. It is figured by Fox that such a consolidation would save $15,000,000 annually.

Such a course would oust Sheehan, James R. Grainger, Saul Rogers and John Zanft from the Fox firm. They are his cabinet members who openly espoused the Halsey, Stuart plan of refinancing and opposed the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair plan.

A Merry-Go-Round Week

The week proved something of a merry-go-round to all parties concerned in the controversy. A series of court maneuvers furnished fireworks, with injunctions coming thick and fast as both sides jockeyed for commanding position. The climax came, however, when Richard E. Dwight, attorney for the trustees, took the unusual step of enjoining Judge Coleman from acting upon Fox's request for an injunction against the trustees, just when it appeared that Fox would be successful in defeating the state court injunction the trustees had obtained to prevent him from voting his stock.

Meanwhile, if the Halsey, Stuart plan is successful, the Fox cabinet is expected to emerge from the stockholders' meeting April 15 in executive control of the company. If not, they will resign, it is stated, and serve as executive nucleus of a firm with Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research backing.

Women's Clubs Protest Exploitation Of Name Due To Mrs. Winter's Hays Job

1,125 Sold

RKO has sold around 1,125 franchises to date, it is understood, under terms of its deal with Allied States Ass'n. This is under one-half the amount of five year agreements placed by Tiffany under the arrangement.

Fairbanks' Next "Mark of Zorro" Type of Picture

Hollywood—Douglas Fairbanks intends to be right out in front of the procession in the return to action films and has slated a picture of "The Mark of Zorro" type as his next offering. Tentatively it had been called "The Days of '49," but this title has been dropped. He will play a bandit role. Porter Emerson Browne and James Warner Bellah will write the dialogue.

Pantages-Considine Match Off; May Be Joan Bennett

Hollywood—Carmen Pantages, daughter of Alexander Pantages, now admits her engagement to John Considine, Jr., is definitely off. Considine is production head of United Artists, with current Hollywood reports stating he will soon announce his engagement to Joan Bennett, U. A. contract player.

To Film Kyne Novel

Hollywood—Peter B. Kyne's novel will serve as basis for talker remake of "Never the Twain Shall Meet," a Cosmopolitan production to be made by M-G-M. Lionel Barrymore will direct the latest version, and William Hurlburt is busy adapting and dialoguing.

New Contract for LeRoy

Hollywood—Mervyn LeRoy, 28-year-old director, has signed a new long-term contract with First National. First picture under the agreement will be "Top Speed," cast of which will be headed by Bernice Claire and Joe E. Brown.

Browning Original for "U"

Hollywood—Initial talker to be directed by Tod Browning, who is staging a return at Universal, will be "The Scarlet Triangle," a crook drama for which the director will supply story and dialogue. Browning's new contract runs for five years.

RKO Gets Tiller Girls

John Tiller's Sunshine Girls have been engaged to appear exclusively in Radio Pictures, by William LeBarron. There are 16 girls in the troupe.

State Presidents Take Action At Baltimore Meeting; Mrs. Winter's Salary $8,000

Baltimore—Any exploitation of the name of the General Federation of Women's Clubs because of association in the film industry of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, is opposed by the organization. This was emphasized by state presidents meeting here, who decried such exploitation.

Mrs. Winter, a former officer of the federation, recently became assistant director of public relations for the Hays office on the Coast, at an annual salary of $8,000. Her job is to help producers avoid inclusion of any objectionable matter in films.

Pauline Starke Says Cruze Owes Her $4,500 in Salary

Hollywood—Continuance of suit entered by Pauline Starke against James Cruze was granted when action came before Superior Judge Samuel Blake. Miss Starke claims damages of $4,500 from Cruze, charging breach of contract. The actress says she was signed for the lead in "The Great Gabbo" by the producer, but was dismissed when Cruze found Betty Compson, his wife, would be available for the spot. Miss Starke worked one week, and is suing for three additional weeks of a four-week guarantee at $1,500 weekly.

New Moran and Mack Title

"Anybody's War" has been decided on as the new title for Moran and Mack's second Paramount comedy filmed as "Two Black Crows in the A. E. F." The story was adapted by Hector Turnbull from Charles Mack's novel, "Two Black Crows in the A. E. F."

. U. A. Denies—And How! .

United Artists "vigorously" denies the story which appeared in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS that the contract, once announced and then called off, between Joe Schenck and George M. Cohen might have been pulled to land a lot of newspaper space. Nevertheless, the story persists.

Sherman in 'Hawk's Island"

Hollywood—Betty Compson, Raymond Hatton and Hugh Trevor have been lined up by RKO to support Lowell Sherman in "Hawk Island," from the play by Howard Irving Young. George B. Seitz will direct.

Rubin Returning to M-G-M

Hollywood—Benny Rubin is expected to return to M-G-M when he finishes his contract with Tiffany. The latter deal is verbal and is for three features.

Slightly Different

W. A. Wolf is celebrating his twenty-fifth year as advertising manager of Western Electric, daddy company of Electrical Research Products, Inc., and is just about convinced that the job is a steady one.

Warners to Build 7 New Stages At Burbank Studio

Hollywood—Warners will expand its production facilities, building seven new stages at Burbank where the First National studios are located. This will double the Warner stage space. However, the building program does not mean abandonment of the Warner Hollywood plant, Harry M. Warner states, in denying that a theatre is to be built on the studio property.

After a thorough investigation, Warners have dropped plans to obtain an interest in Harriscolor Films, Warner declares.

"Jimmy" Gleason Signed on Pathe Contract

Hollywood—Pathe has finally decided to go for the exclusive services of James Gleason for writing, directing and acting, and placed him under term contract this week.

Gleason has appeared in several Pathe pictures during the last year, but has also done considerable writing and acting for other companies between pictures. The player's first assignment will be a featured role in "Beyond Victory," which John Robertson will direct.

Clift Joins Paramount

Hollywood—Denison Clift, dramatist and playwright who has directed many pictures in England, has been signed to a term contract by Paramount to write and direct. Clift's initial assignment is adaptation of "Blow The Man Down," starring Nancy Carroll.

O'Brien, Erickson Continue

Hollywood—George O'Brien will star in and A. F. Erickson direct "The Last of the Duanes," Zane Grey story which Gerrit Lloyd is adapting. O'Brien and Erickson had similar assignments on "The Lone Star Ranger" and "Rough Romance."

Columbia Assigns Clymer

Hollywood—John B. Clymer has been engaged by Columbia to write story, continuity and dialogue for "Ladies Must Play."

Ominous Note For Industry Sounded By Censorship Leanings of U. S. Senate

Paramount Starts Changing

Seattle—Publix-Seattle this week became the Seattle Paramount, as a unit in the national move to establish the key house of the Paramount group in each large city under that title.

A campaign was put across by Wm. A. Hartung and Robert Armstrong, and Mayor Frank Edwards made the official change at appropriate ceremonies. Special fireworks, electrical displays and musical features provided a street show for the crowds.

"Rogue Song" to Fox Opposition In Wis. Cities

Milwaukee—M-G-M has sold "The Rogue Song" away from Fox Midwesco, booking the picture into opposition houses throughout Wisconsin. This despite the Fox interest in M-G-M.

Universal's Alhambra here bought the picture, and the following opposition houses to Fox in other cities: Capitol, Madison; Rex, Oshkosh; Lloyd's, Menominee; Myers, Janesville; Rex, Beloit; Grand Wansau, and Orpheum, Fond du Lac.

Publix Cuts Nebraska and Iowa Into Two Divisions

Des Moines—Iowa became a separate division in the Publix Circuit following the convention in Chicago, where Nate Frudenfeld was named division manager of the territory with headquarters in Des Moines. This state was previously handled with Nebraska.

The Iowa division is to be divided into three districts with Jack Roth, new manager of the Paramount and Des Moines, as district manager in charge of six theatres, five of them in Des Moines and one in Newton. Herbert Grove, formerly of Des Moines, is placed in charge of the five in the second district, at Rock Island, Moline and Davenport. A. G. Stolte, former city manager at Waterloo, becomes manager of the third district with seven, at Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Marshalltown.

A new manager for the Paramount and Des Moines, in Des Moines, will be nammed.

Colorart Ready to Market Third Dimension Process

Colorart Synchrotone claims development of a device for projecting third dimensions films, over standard equipment. The effect is said to be secured by oscillating the camera when the negative is exposed, by means of a triograph placed between tripod and camera.

Renew Two Contracts

Hollywood—Roy del Ruth, director, and Joseph Jackson, writer, will remain with Warners, company having signed the duo under new term contracts.

Lining Up Aid of Wash. Legislators To Battle Hudson

Congressmen Wainwright, O'Connor and Bloom, and Senator Copeland, have been lined up by a group of non-theatrical interests who are pushing opposition to the Hudson Federal censorship bill at Washington.

Edward Stevenson, president of Visuagraphic Pictures, formed a committee in the non-theatrical field, to work with film interests in defeating the measure, which would give a government commission widespread power to control the industry. Arrangements have been made to have representatives of all branches appear before the House Committee.

Senator Copeland has voiced opposition to censorship in all its forms.

Fox Gets 2 More Houses in Southern Illinois

St. Louis—Fox West Coast is continuing its expansion in this territory, its latest acquisitions being the John Marlow houses at Herrin and Murphysboro, Ill.

Edward F. Stevenson, president of Visuagraphic Pictures, who is leading the fight in the non-theatrical field, against the radical Federal censorship bill introduced by Representative Hudson.

Attitude On Book Imports Dangerous If Demagogue Bills Reach Floor

Washington—Censorship leanings of the United States Senate, shown by adoption of the Smoot-Walsh amendment to the tariff bill to make the Federal District Court censor of imported books, which may be attacked as immoral, is regarded here as a danger to the film industry.

Particularly is this true if the Brookhart and Hudson bills ever reach the floor of the Senate, to give "reform" senators opportunity to launch attacks upon the business.

Discussion on importation of literature, centered entirely around books, and no mention was made of pictures. The law, however, for many years has prohibited importation of immoral pictures, although films are not mentioned specifically.

Films of an objectionable nature could be brought within the scope of the law without any change of its wording, it is believed, as it is very broad in its application providing for seizure and action upon "any book or matter."

Loosening of Censorship Strings Seen in Boston

Boston—The new book censorship bill, which is much more liberal than the former measure, will probably be enacted by the legislature within the next two weeks. This is to be followed by a move to make more liberal Sunday picture censorship to permit dancing and musical comedy films to be shown on that day.

The state censors have already permitted several of these films to pass for Sunday although the old statute, if strictly enforced, would ban films showing any dancing or anything in the nature of card playing, racing and other pastimes.

12 Pathe Offices in Drive to Sell Van Beuren Shorts

Pathe salesmen of the central and midwest divisions are engaged in a drive to boost sales of Van Beuren shorts. The campaign was arranged by Harry Graham of the central division and Harry Lorch of the mid-west, as a courtesy to Tom North, Van Beuren special representative here. Since learning of the drive the latter has offered silver cups to the high man in each of the twelve offices of the two divisions participating. Contest runs for a month, ending April 15, and is the first of its kind to be staged for a special representative.

Pathe to Handle New Van Beuren Series of Talkers

New Vagabond Adventure Series recently announced on the Coast by the Van Beuren Corp. will be released through Pathe. The talker series will present experiences in travels of Tom Terriss as the "vagabond director." There will be 26 subjects in the series.

Press Agents Blamed For Supplying "Objectionable" Ad Copy For Films

New Sound System

Gloucester, Mass.—Elimination of extraneous noises and improvement of tonal qualities and dynamics are features claimed for a new system of electrical reproduction of sound developed here by John Hays Hammond, Jr.

Lasky Viewpoint Changed On New Name For Para.?

Scheduled change of name of Famous Players-Lasky Corp., to Paramount-Publix at the stockholders meeting April 15, culminates plan for the switch which has been in work for several years. Chief purpose of the change is to capitalize on the advertising value of the Paramount name which has been stressed for years, while the corporate name was kept in the background. Another slant is the stock exchange listing, for it is declared that the Paramount monicker has greater trading value.

Adolph Zukor has said to have favored a change for several years, but did not do so, due to reported objection of Jesse L. Lasky. The latter's name has been part of the title for years.

Lasky, in response to a query recently, stated that the change is being made because of desire to link all of the firm's activities under one name, stating that he suggested the dropping of his own name. At the time, he denied that there was any friction brought about by the contemplated name change.

Stockholders are expected to be told that the company's 1929 earnings totaled between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000. In some quarters, it is anticipated that the dividend rate may be increased.

Von Sternberg-Bancroft Again

Hollywood—Josef von Sternberg, Paramount director, back after nearly a year's absence abroad, where he directed Emil Jannings in a production for UFA, may direct George Bancroft in a production following "The Spoilers," which goes into production in April.

Massachusetts Censor Says a Check-Up Shows Subject Matter Not in Films

Boston—Publicity supplied exhibitors by distributors in the form of mats and cuts for advertising purposes are responsible for objections being raised against a number of films which would otherwise be shown without question, according to one of the state's assistant censors.

During February, this censor says that he had mailed to him from various cities in the state forty-two advertisements clipped from the local newspapers, affecting eighteen features. A check-up was made and in every one of the eighteen no scene was shown on the screen from which the advertising illustrations could have been taken.

This same censor states Boston newspapers and those of the larger cities in Massachusetts almost never show pictorial matter in their newspaper copy which is "risque" or suggestive, but that the daily, and even the weekly, newspapers in the smaller cities occasionally run such illustrations, to which objection is promptly made to the state division of public safety.

Both the exhibitor and the distributor are blamed by this censor for this class of advertising. He declares that the distributor should refrain from misrepresentation and that the exhibitor should refrain from taking advantage of newspaper publishers, who have no opportunity of witnessing the film before it is shown in an effort to check truth with copy.

The Massachusetts Press plans to take up the question at its April meeting to protect its members from adverse criticism from certain of its readers, mostly church people, who have frequently objected to films, basing their objections almost wholly on the advance advertising which has appeared in the press.

Lobbies Held Off Color

Lobby displays, usually made by local artists, have also been severely criticised by the censors, but they point out that it is impossible for the censors to view such lobby displays unless special complaint is made.

It has developed that in one city in Massachusetts where a drive was being made for Sunday shows, most of the objection was made because of lobby displays of theatres managers of which appear to be attempting to outdo each other in showing nearly naked girl cut-outs, some of these cut-outs being duplicated on the screen.

Anderson Erlanger "G.M."

F. Richard Anderson has been appointed general manager and assistant to Mitchell L. Erlanger, new head of the Erlanger circuit.

Publix Raises Top to $1

Boston—Publix's Uptown is operating on a top of $1 for nights, which is the highest top of any first run in Boston. Thus far the new scale has met with success.

Vidor Nicked

Hollywood—After pleading guilty in Federal court to failure to pay a proper income tax, King Vidor paid a $400 fine and was assessed $9,976 in deficiency taxes and penalties.

Agency Situation Won't Clear Until Early In Summer

Hollywood—The investigation of agents and managers by a special committee of the Producers' Association is proceeding slowly, with the entire proposition likely to carry over until May or later.

Fred Beetson, executive secretary of the association, has been interviewing individual agents during the past two weeks endeavoring to get constructive suggestions from them. The agents, for their own protection, refuse to complain about the call bureau, casting offices or other agents, taking the easy way out by stating everything is fine with them.

An attempt was made a few days ago to form an organization of agents and representatives, but the entire deal blew up after three of the four officers elected resigned immediately. The meeting followed lines of similar attempts at intervals during the past five years. A number of agents operating for some time take the stand against franchising of various offices by producers, especially with the large increase in agency ranks during the past year.

Haskins Trial April 19

Hollywood—Eska Wilson will come to trial April 19 on charge he misrepresented working conditions to Gladys McConnell and Hugh Allen, for a film engagement in Honolulu. After several weeks' work in Hawaii, the pair learned that money had not been deposited in a bank as promised and their salaries would not be paid.

Publix Changes at Rochester

Rochester, N. Y.—James Fraser, an uncle of Harold Lloyd, is now managing the Eastman, biggest downtown Publix house. Ralph Ayre, former manager, was named manager of the Denver, at Denver. Jack Loder, publicity manager for the Piccadilly, was transferred to New York.

Harris To Do Another

Hollywood — Immediately following completion of his adaptation of "Rain or Shine" for Columbia, Ray Harris will adapt "Sure Fire" for the same company. Frank Capra and Jo Swerling are scenarioizing "Rain or Shine." Capra will direct.

Are Warners On Their Own Or Acting For W. E. In Move To Sew Up Germany?

Schlesinger Big Factor in German Tangle

Playing a vital, but background rôle in the Tobis-Klangfilm patent situation is M. A. Schlesinger of General Talking Pictures Corp. De Forest patents controlled by General Talking were pooled some months ago with the German holdings under the name of Associated Sound Industries, a $5,000,000 company.

The inside story has it that Schlesinger proposes to use the German sound monopoly to further strengthen the position of General Talking by trading this advantage with "Erpi" for concessions in the United States.

Speculation Rife Over Deal With Tobis; Both Sides Remain Silent

Are Warners negotiating a deal with Tobis-Klangfilm, dominant factor in the German sound field, entirely on their own, or is the company acting secretly on behalf of Electrical Research Products, Inc.?

Considerable speculation prevails in New York over the real inside. Warners are in a battle with "Erpi" over royalties. Likewise is this organization the only company operating without interruption in the German market, this arrangement having been made in defense of Western Electric and by virtue of a direct licensing arrangement with Tobis.

Those who countenance the idea that Warners are dickering with the German group strictly on their own see in the attempt another move to block Western Electric and at the same time ultimately increase Warner profits through the licenses which other American companies must buy from Tobis if they are to distribute talkers in Germany.

Others Barred from Germany

On the other hand, "Erpi" is experiencing difficulties with its other licenses, which include Paramount, M-G-M, United Artists, Fox, Universal, and Columbia, because these companies, expressly forbidden to negotiate with Tobis, are now excluded from Teutonic markets. "Erpi" has told its members on several occasions that the German tangle soon will be straightened out, but the promised time period has elapsed with the untangling process still in the offing.

It is easily possible that Warners, in this one instance at least, are acting for Western Electric in an effort to arrive at an understanding with the Berlin interests and in that way remove from the path the obstacles hindering the activities of other companies in that market. A curious factor in the entire proceedings is that, regardless of how the Tobis mix-up is settled, Warners are in the clear.

Warners Gain Either Way

If the deal is made direct, the Warners will then collect royalties either from the individual organizations, making separate licensing arrangements with Tobis, or from Western Electric, provided the latter makes a blanket deal with the German interests on behalf of its various licensed members.

George Quigley, president of Vitaphone, returned to New York this week from Germany, where he had been reported negotiating with Tobis. He said most of the reports linking the two companies were erroneous and had nothing to say regarding persistent rumblings that a deal had been closed.

3 Theatres To Be Built In Phoenix Publix-Fox Race

Phoenix, Ariz.—Two Fox West Coast and one Publix-Rickards & Nace theatres are in prospect here this year. One of the Fox houses will be built on the city hall site, while location of the other has not yet been announced.

Advent of Fox will bring competition to this town, which Publix-Richards & Nace now control. It also is declared the forerunner of other Fox West Coast houses throughout this territory.

Johnny Bull's Censors Banned 300 in 1929

London—Three hundred pictures, chiefly American, were rejected by British Board of Censors last year, representing 14 per cent of the 2,155 total marketed in Great Britain.

The censors did not like films which burlesqued the Prince of Wales, and they took exception to those in which criminals go unpunished, scenes of cruelty, coarse and suggestive dialogue. Films depicting "back 'stage" proved most objectionable because they "tend to invest a life of irregularity with a spurious glamor."

Edwards, "Vet" Seattle Exhibitor, Is Re-elected

Seattle—Frank Edwards, former owner of the Winter Garden, has been re-elected mayor of Seattle by one of the largest majorities ever accorded a candidate for any public office in the Pacific Northwest. Edwards entered politics for the first time two years ago as an unknown candidate who put across a big campaign and was elected against strong opposition. His current opposing candidate was Councilman Otto B. Case.

German Unit Bans Salaciousness in Films

Berlin—Vulgar themes are tabooed, together with pictures dealing with sensational crimes, lawsuits, etc., by the German Spitzenorganization, to which all important producers, distributors and exhibitors belong.

Roxy Week Gross Under '29 Weekly Average Intake

Receipts of the Roxy's third anniversary week were below the weekly average of the houses during 1929, official figures show. The anniversary known as Roxy Week got $104,861. During 1929, average business was $107,302. Total for the year was $5,579,751. The week preceding the anniversary, the Roxy is said to have grossed but $73,400 with "Let's Go Places," close to a record low for the house.

Nicholas Increases His Publix Opposition in N. C.

High Point, N. C.—Don Nicholas, for years a city manager for Publix, and who operates the Carolina at Durham, is to manage the American here. The house, as well as the Durham Theatre, which Nicholas operates, are municipally-owned. A resident manager will be in charge of the local theatre. Both "muny" houses are of the de luxe type, the chief opposition to Publix-Saenger in their respective towns.

The Durham house seats 1,750 and is equipped with De Forest reproducer, while the local house seats 1,100 and has the same equipment. Publix-Saenger has three houses in each town, the largest at Durham, seating 800, and the largest at High Point, under 700.

Cruze Starts Filming of "Big Fight" for Sono-Art

Hollywood—Filming of "The Big Fight" sound version of the Belasco play is under way at the James Cruze studio after a delay of several weeks, due to negotiations with Jack Dempsey, in an effort to have the former champion take the star role. The cast finally approved is headed by "Big Boy" Guinn Williams, who will play the role originated on the stage by Dempsey. Others are: Lola Lane, Stepin Fetchit, Ralph Ince, Wheeler Oakman and Edna Bennett. "The Big Fight" is the first of a number of Cruze pictures to be filmed at Educational, where Samuel Zierler, president of the Cruze organizaton, recently leased three sound stages.

Tobis-Selenophone Deal Off?

Berlin—Long-pending negotiations between Tobis and Selenophone, the latter an Austrian sound company, are making no progress. Selenophone claims the terms of the deal are unacceptable.

Sound Screen Is Great Music Boon, Whiteman States

Sound pictures mark the biggest advance ever made in bringing "musical enjoyment to America's millions," states Paul Whiteman in hitting at the contention that music in sound films is "a crime to the ear," as has been alleged in campaign of the American Federation of Musicians against "canned music," as they choose to term the music used in talkers.

Before sound came, he reminds, only the largest houses had music worthy the name. The average picture house could not afford a first class orchestra, and if using any orchestra, employed only a few musicians whose work often was inferior, thus preventing the mass of picture patrons from hearing first class orchestral music.

Call Sound Major Achievement

"But sound films have changed all that," he declares. "The mechanical recording and reproduction of music for sound pictures is so far superior to the average picture theatre orchestra of the old days that there is no comparison.

"The argument that talkie music is "a crime to the ear' strikes me as ridiculous. No such argument is seriously advanced about the phonograph or the radio, so why should it be used against the sound screen?

"In the furnishing of real music, played as it should be, to the masses at prices they can afford to pay, the sound picture is supplying one of the great needs of mankind. Music, like other forms of entertainment, is a necessity.

"Of course, there will always be a few great orchestras, whether jazz or symphony, playing in person before audiences. But the number of people who can hear them is, of necessity, limited. On the other hand, talkie music is for the millions, and the wonderful innovation of the sound screen makes it possible for good music, played as it should be played, to be heard by everybody in the villages and hamlets, as well as in the great cities.

"The sound screen is one of the major achievements of the machine age. It is definitely a step far in advance of the old silent entertainment, and one of the chief reasons is that it furnishes a superior medium for the rendition of music.

"There is no more reason why we should go back to the indifferent or poor orchestral music that was given in the great majority of theatres that had any orchestra at all, than that silence should be restored to the screen, and all the great progress made as a result of sound lost to the public.

"After all, the test of whether or not the sound screen is really wanted by the public is to be found in the actual response of the public itself. And it is now an acknowledged fact that the sound picture has added 10,000,000 picture patrons—a vast army which certainly would not have been attracted and held if mechanical music were not what its sponsors claim for it, because every sound picture has a musical accompaniment. More than that, many of the most successful talkies thus far released have been the big musical productions, in which songs and other music have been the life-blood of the picture. They have played a great part in attracting the millions of new patrons to the picture houses.

"Does this indicate that the public considers talkie music 'a crime to the ear'?"

Hook-Ups Help Put Over Columbia's 10th Birthday

National tie-ups have been arranged by Columbia to help exploit its tenth anniversary in April. Majestic radio dealers will display window banners announcing the search for Miss Columbia and award of a radio will be made to contest winners in each of the 13 publications participating.

Radios in theatre lobbies together with a half sheet furnished by Columbia giving details of the search are included. Sunday evening broadcasts of the 49-station Majestic hook-up will announce the event as will the house organ of the radio firm. A number of other tie-ups have been arranged.

More competition for Broadway. Architect's drawing of proposed RCA building which will house four theatres, one of them with a seating capacity that will rival the Roxy.

3 Sales Meetings For Pathe Forces Starting in May

Pathe is planning three sales conventions this year, with branch managers and salesmen slated to attend. The meetings will begin late in May, according to Phil Reisman, general sales manager.

The first will be at Atlantic City, the second at Chicago and the third at Los Angeles.

Factory Increase Seen As Speeding W.E. Equipments

Increase of facilities planned at Western Electric's Hawthorne, Ill., plant will speed manufacture of sound reproducers, it is expected. The company last year installed more than 3,000 equipments in theatres and about 70 recording systems in studios. About 90 per cent of all talkers, the company states, are being reproduced on W. E. apparatus. Annual report shows sales of $410,950,000 in 1929 and net of $22,980,000.

Finishing "March of Time"

Hollywood—"March of Time" revue is nearing completion at the M-G-M studio. "Graduation Day" is the latest number to be added to this revue, and presents the Duncan Sisters and Cliff ("Ukelele Ike") Edwards in a novelty skit.

Film Sales Under Ontario Control Starting June 1

Toronto.—Ontario will place sale, lease and exchange of films under governmental control starting June 1, when the new law governing picture theatres and film sales become effective. The chief theatre inspector is to have power to issue, suspend or revoke any license of a theatre, exchange, operator or apprentice, the only appeal being to the provincial treasurer.

Many theatres may have to be rebuilt or dismantled under the new law. There is talk of organizing a deputation of exhibitors to ask for changes.

Skouras and Musicians Iron Out Difficulties

St. Louis—Dispute between the musicians and St. Louis Amusement (Skouras Bros.) is settled after a series of conferences, and the threatened new strike of players was averted. Trouble followed a misunderstanding of a minor point in the settlement of the 11 weeks' strike last November.

When the agreement was reached in November provision was made that in some of the smaller houses musicians were to receive $48 for seven nights and one matinee a week. Several eliminated the Sunday matinee and the musicians received only $44 a week. The matinees will be resumed, restoring the wage originally agreed to.

Barrymore Busy on Sound Remake of "Sea Beast"

Hollywood—"Mobey Dick," a sound remake of "The Sea Beast," is under way at Warners with John Barrymore starred. Lloyd Bacon is directing.

The Warner studio is hitting its stride now on production for 1930-1931. Three other productions were started this week. "Fame" was the first to get under way with John Adolfi directing and Belle Bennett featured. Two musicals are in the group: "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" with Claudia Dell, Perry Askam and Walter Pidgeon, and "See Naples and Die," featuring Irene del Roy and Charles King.

Dunlap Made G.M. of "U" Chain in Seattle Territory

Seattle—A. M. Dunlap this week was appointed general manager of Universal Chain Theatres in this city, with jurisdiction over a string of about ten neighborhood houses. He was formerly manager of the Granada, key house of the chain, and succeeds Ted Gamble, who has gone to Portland to manage the RKO Orpheum, after more than two years in Seattle with Universal.

Lipton Swings to Caddo

Hollywood—Upon completion of adaptation and continuity of "Civilian Clothes," Gary Cooper's next, Lou Lipton has moved over to Caddo to write an original story for a sequel to "Two Arabian Knights." Lipton recently completed a six-year contract as a writer for M-G-M.

Fox Net $5,600,000 Not $11,848,276 As Reported For '29, Paper Indicates

Padding of Figures Inferred By "Wall St. Journal" In Earnings Analysis

Says It Reaches Deduction By Applying The "Best Accounting Practices"

Actual net profit of Fox Film Corp. for the year ended Dec. 28, 1929, was apparently about $5,600,000, equal to approximately $6.08 a share on the 920,560 shares of combined Class A and Class B shares outstanding, if deductions from surplus account, which according to the best accounting practices should have been made from income, are subtracted from the net profit reported for the year, states The Wall Street Journal.

"Fox Film Corp. reported net profit after taxes for 1929 of $11,848,276 equal to $12.87 a share on the Class A and Class B shares. Net profit reported before taxes was $13,114,275," the publication says. "From surplus account was deducted $4,764,362 for 'obsolescence of silent films, scenarios and advertising accessories.' It is customary for other film companies to charge off at least 85 per cent of the cost of films in the first year of release and it has been stated in the past that a similar policy was followed by Fox. Therefore at least 85 per cent or more than $4,000,000 of this amount should be deducted from the year's net.

"In addition, the following charges have been made against surplus account all of which are fairly chargeable to 1929 income: Expenditures for contracts in acquisition of theatres not consummated, $192,095; settlement of claims, $50,000;, reserve for contingencies, $2,128,047. Since according to memorandum attached to the balance sheet, this contingency reserve was apparently consumed it is, consequently, a charge against income. In addition to this, approximately $400,000 estimated interest on the investment in British holdings, which was capitalized, should be deducted from profits.

The Analysis

"The total of these deductions is approximately $6,770,000. Subtracting this amount from net before taxes of $13,114,275 leaves approximately $6,344,000; and deducting from this an estimated income tax of $697,000 on these earnings leaves net profit for the year $5,647,000, against $5,957,218 reported for 1928.

"While addition to surplus of profit on sale of assets—namely, stock in First National Pictures sold to Warner Bros., amounting to $5,612,608, partly offsets the foregoing deductions, this obviously cannot be included in the operating income of the company.

"Incidentally, the income tax provision of $1,266,000 made in income account indicates a total profit for the year including the profit on sale of assets of approximately $11,400,000, which bears out the statement that net profit from the year's operations was less than $6,000,000.

Leo Unavailable

Efforts to reach Jack Leo, vice-president of Fox Film and in charge of financing for the company, for a statement commenting on "The Wall Street Journal's" analysis of the company's 1929 balance sheet proved unavailing.

Sees $84,000,000 Debts

Total floating indebtedness of Fox Film Corp. is in the neighborhood of $84,000,000, according to the analysis of the company's financial statement for 1929 made by "The Wall Street Journal."

This publication, generally recognized in financial circles as an authority, figures Fox Film's actual net for last year to be $5.600,000 and not $11 848.276, as reported.

Interest Charges Capitalized

"Both Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp. have capitalized the interest charges against various investments made in stock of other amusement enterprises such as the Gaumont Theatres and the block of Loew stock. Thus in the balance sheet of Fox Film Corp. is an item, 'investments in associated companies—foreign—Metropolis & Bradford Trust Co., Ltd., at cost including carrying charges, $19,373,802.' Interest on this amount from date of purchase may be estimated at around $400,000. This is the company which controls the Gaumont British Theatres.

"Among investments is also carried 147,500 shares Fox Theatres at cost, $3,687,500. At the current market price of $8 this investment has a value of $1,180,000. There are also shown the Fox Theatres Corp. note amounting to $17,751,904, accrued interest receivable, $2,272,718, and mortgage of a subsidiary, lent to Fox Theatres, $2,000,000.

"Current assets total $24,261,884, including $2,736,570 cash and $17,726,797 inventories. Investments in Wesco Corp. and Fox Hearst Corp. are carried at $17,738,955 and fixed assets at $37,550,410 after depreciation.

Liabilities Dissected

"In estimating the total current liabilities of Fox Film Corp. a number of items must be added to the $43,063,760 current payables listed. Listed current liabilities include $10,211,343 bank loans, $14,173,975 due on Gaumont purchase and $12,000,000 Halsey Stuart notes.

To these must be added as actually current, $3,760,657 bonds of Wesco due in 1930; $437,500 contingent liability on a repurchase agreement on Fox Theatres stock; $171,000 bonds due in 1930. In addition, the $2,500,000 reserve for contingencies also represents current liabilities, in that the obligations provided for have already mostly come due. All of this brings the total current liabilities to approximately $50,000,000. Since Fox Theatres Corp. is dependent upon Fox Film Corp. for its credit the contingent liabilities of Fox Film on Fox Theatres obligations also must be included. These are, the $15,000,000 note to Western Electric due February 26, and $9,300,000 additional notes, making a total of $24,300,000. These bring aggregate to $74,300,000.

"If there be added to this the contingent liabilities on contracts for the construction or purchase of theatres some of which are in default, more than $10,000,000 more may be added. Of course, some of this total may be abrogated and is, at any rate, subject to litigation which would delay need for payment. It brings the grand total of the floating indebtedness of Fox Film Corp., however, to about $84.000.000.

Finds Theatres Income Small

"Taking up the income account of Fox Theatres Corp. a net profit for the year ended Oct. 27, 1929, amounting to $2,748,006 is shown. This includes $1,317,352 income from the former owner of the Poli chain of theatres in New England, payable in purchase money bonds under a guarantee that the earnings of the circuit would reach a certain sum, which apparently they did not. This is understood to be non-recurring income.

"It also should be noted that interest on the Loew stock holdings amounting to about $3,240,000 (6% interest on $72,000,000 for nine months) was capitalized. This is carried as 'sundry investments at cost including carrying charges (net) of which $72,901,749 is hypothecated to secure loans payable, per contra $76,911,956.' Since dividends on the Loew stock for this period were presumably $3 a share or about $1,980,000 on the 660,000 shares, the net carrying charges were about $1,260,000 which should be deducted from income. There is also an item of interest earned of $497,873, apparently due from employes, which according to memorandum may be cancelled.

"Depreciation and amortization charges are $1,120,048 against a property account carried at an appraised value of $87,864,403. Since the minimum rate of depreciation usually charged is three per cent on buildings this rate alone would make proper depreciation charges about $2,600,000 without allowing for higher rates on equipment. It thus appears that, allowing for these various charges, Fox Theatres Corp. had no substantial earnings last year. Income tax allowed is $13,216, indicating an actual profit of around $120,000.

Thinks 1930 Profits Will Suffer

"On the basis of these figures it is obvious that the earning power of Fox Film cannot be computed on anything like the basis of former estimates, which was at the rate of around $12,000,000 annually, according to the report. Current earnings are probably running well ahead of the rate of profits in 1929 and the write-offs made for depreciation of films probably have placed inventories on a sound basis, but the inevitable banking and legal expenses and the general disruption of the company's affairs due to its financial difficulties are likely to cut heavily into profits, in the first half of this year at any rate.

"Under the revised banking plan approved by the directors and stockholders and now in process of being carried out, the capital of the company upon completion of the plan would be $40,000,000 seven per cent debentures carrying warrants; and 2,370,000 shares of Class A and Class B common stock.

Explains Option Offered Bankers

"Under the plan the debentures carry warrants to buy 25 shares of Class A for each

Sees Cut in Profits

Fox Film profits for the first half of 1930 "at any rate" are likely to be cut into because of "the inevitable banking and legal expenses and the general disruption of the company's affairs due to its financial difficulties," it is the opinion of "The Wall Street Journal" expressed in an analysis of the corporation's financial statement for. 1929.

Trailer Censor Order Rescinded By Ohio's Board

Cleveland—Trailers are not to be censored by the Ohio board, as had been planned, for the order redecreeing has been abandoned.

It had been planned to start trailer censorship March 15, but when P. J. Wood, business manager of the Ohio unit, and Pat Garyn, of National Screen Service, explained the mechanical difficulties involved, and stressed the fact that all scenes used are from pictures already censored by the board, the order was rescinded.

National Screen Trailers With Discs Under New Plan

Stiff "Blue" Fights Expected

Des Moines—March 31 is the date set for the Sunday election battle at Gowrie, where the Star is being equipped with talkie equipment to aid in the campaign for the Sunday shows. Election of city officials, which is due at this time, is said to directly bear upon their attitude toward the Sunday shows. A petition has been submitted to the town council asking for the lifting of the ban against closed Sunday.

Bacon Now Has Two

Des Moines—Creston has a new theatre, taking the name of the old Willard, and is under the management of Clayton Bacon who also manages the Strand.

It is to laugh! Here's Earle W. Hammons signing Mack Sennett to a contract which keeps the latter's two-reel comedies in the Educational family.

Sennett Signs New Long Term Educ'l Comedy Contract

With 22 of the scheduled two-reel talking comedies in the series of 30 completed in addition to two released as specials, Mack Sennett has renewed his contract for Educational release over a period of years. In December, 1928, Sennett started producing talking comedies for the company, originally planning a series of 20. This subsequently was increased to 30.

The two specials released are "Jazz Mamas," a two-reel color talker, and "Match Play," co-starring Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel. Sennett has directed most of the comedies personally. Recently he acquired services of A. Leslie Pearce. Hammons recently returned from the Coast, where the new contract was signed.

Sydney Garrett of Inter-Globe Export Co. of London is in New York for a short visit. Milton Cohen, New York partner in the same company, is also back after an extended stay in London.

Talkaphone Installs Five

Des Moines—Of 17 sound installations made in Iowa houses last week, reports Margaret McGrevey, secretary of the Des Moines Film Board, five were Talkaphone devices.

Padding of Fox Net Inferred By Wall St. Journal

$1,000 bond at $20 a share for the first three years; at $25 a share for the next three years and at $30 a share for the last four years of the life of the debentures.

"The bankers also agree to purchase 1,250,000 shares of Class A common at $20 a share with an underwriting commission of $1.80 a share and are to receive a commission of 200,000 shares. At the option of the directors of the company bankers may be given the right to purchase 500,000 shares at $20 a share good for five years in lieu of the commission of 200,000 shares. At present, it appears that the former compensation seems most likely to be approved by directors.

"Thus, assuming that the 200,000 share commission is adopted instead of the option on 500,000 ,shares, a total of 1,450,000 shares of new stock will be issued which makes a total of 2,370,000 shares to be outstanding, with 1,000,000 more to be added on conversion of the debentures."

Columbia Moves to Avoid Jam

Kansas City—In order to relieve crowded conditions in the film building, Columbia has moved from 1710 Baltimore Ave. to 115 West 17th St. The move will be temporary, however, as a new building is soon to be erected on the northwest corner of 18th and Wyandotte, to house Columbia, Tiffany and Universal.

Henigson Joins Inspiration

Hollywood—Henry Henigson, one of the many former general managers of Universal, has joined Inspiration as production manager on "Eyes of the World," which Henry King will direct.

New Maynard Started

Hollywood—Ken Maynard has started production on "Songs of the Saddle," his next starring western for Universal. Harry (Joe) Brown is directing, with cast including Doris Hill, Joe Girard, Carol Nye, Francis Ford and Harry Todd.

Bandits Fail at Medford

Medford, Mass. — Nitro-glycerine was used to blow open the safe of Locatelli's Ball Square on the Medford-Somerville line. The cash box inside the safe could not be opened and over $800 was undisturbed

Rochester House Robbed

Rochester, N. Y.—The Monroe, second biggest neighborhood house, lost $891 to safe crackers who broke through the front door and chiseled their way into the safe. Elmer Lori is the manager.

Fleck Joins Publix at Omaha

Omaha—Walter L. Fleck, who handled eastern exploitation for "The Love Song" and "Flight," has been made city publicity director for Publix. He succeeds Irving Waterstreet who has been transferred to the eastern division. Last year Fleck was press agent for the World here when the house instituted an extensive campaign to open Fanchon & Marco units. He now has the advertising for three houses.

Prosperity Stories Called Smoke Screen For "Real Tough" Situation

Sour Music

The Big Executive came on to New York with the print of the Big Special and sat in his favorite seat in the Home Office projection room, beaming as his subordinates gave the picture liberal applause and a "Bravo!" or two. Then it went out into the theatres and registered the biggest flop in the industry.

The Big Executive should be in the projection room on other days and listen to the razzing given to his pictures!

Contract Not To Be Set For New Selling Season?

All exhibitors will be invited to submit suggestions for the new contract slated to be drafted at the 5-5-5 conferences to be resumed April 1 in New York. A desire to obtain the most widespread opinion has been expressed by S. R. Kent, chairman of the distributor committee. It is anticipated that drafting of the new contract will not be completed in time for the new selling season, so that any new form of agreement adopted will not be put into force until next year. Meanwhile, the various firms are practically set on their new forms of contract, Paramount's already having been printed.

Hooper and Jencks Plan Kansas-Missouri Chain

Topeka—G. L. Hooper and Maurice Jenks, who sold their theatre interests here to Fox in October, agreeing to remain as city managers for six months with the organization in order to perfect the deal, are retiring April 1 and have laid plans to start a new theatre chain in Kansas and Missouri. Harry McClure of Emporia, Kan., has been appointed to succeed them. Hooper and Jencks since 1923 procured all of the city's larger theatres and gave Topeka its first de luxe houses. The Fox theatres in Topeka include the Grand, Jayhawk, Novelty, Orpheum, Best and Gem.

Close Chesterfield Deal

Chesterfield M. P. Corp., New York, has sold distribution rights in the Chicago territory to "Love at First Sight" to Security Pictures.

Sloman Assigned

Columbia has assigned Edward Sloman to direction of "Soldiers and Women," stage play by Paul Hervery Fox and George Tilton.

Rental Intakes Held Way Behind Last Year; Salesmen Warned on Contracts

Minneapolis—That smoke screen that is being laid down in some quarters about the tremendous prosperity allegedly being enjoyed by this territory, is just that, it is understood, to cover up what rapidly is approaching an alarming situation.

Stories have found their way to New York and publication, painting in rosy hues tremendous business increases being enjoyed by distributors and exhibitors of the Northwest. Grosses, this year, it was said, had jumped from 100 to 300 per cent over the first quarter of 1929. It is to laugh.

Contracts written here generally average a 400 per cent increase over silent-business, but not over last year, according to a well informed source. The real story is said to be that there is a 400 per cent increase in written contracts, but contracts actually fulfilled since arbitration was outlawed show an average 30 per cent loss over last year. As an illustration of existing conditions, collections of one exchange have dropped 40 per cent over last year.

The sitution is causing considerable concern among distributors, as exhibitors are ignoring contracts to such a degree that the Film Board called all salesmen in last Saturday and laid down the law. The salesmen were told that first report that a salesman advised exhibitors that the contract is unenforceable because of the Thacher decree would mean expulsion from the industry, so this correspondent has been informed. This was done, it is stated, upon instructions from home offices.

Following the meeting, exhibitors were notified by letter that distributors intended to make every effort to prevent violations of existing contracts in protection of their interests.

Gets "Babes in Toyland"

Hollywood—Luther Reed, director of "Rio Rita" and "Hit the Deck," will direct the filmusical version of "Babes in Toyland," recently acquired by Radio Pictures. Reed is currently directing "Dixiana."

Vanel Finishes His First

Paris—Charles Vanel has completed his initial vehicle under his own banner. He produced, directed and acted in the film, titled "In the Night."

May Jump Costs

Washington—Production costs will be increased an estimated $10,000,000 if the 30 cents per ounce duty on imported silver is added to the present price to make a total of 70 cents per ounce. The proposed tariff was adopted Wednesday by the Senate. The industry is the largest consumer of silver in the United States, using about one-fourth of the supply.

Which Proves It

Chicago—A local scion of wealth who is engaged to marry one of those beautiful-but-nothing-else picture actresses is obliged to listen occasionally to unkind references to her mental deficiencies.

"But, really," he protested on one of these occasions, "Flora has her intellectual side. She's a very great thinker."

"Indeed," commented a skeptic.

"Absolutely. Why we'll be riding along in silence at times and all of a sudden she'll turn to me and say, 'I wonder what kind of a summer we're going to have, Freddie'?"

Allied Leaders Meet Day Ahead Of 5-5-5 Confab

Leaders of Allied States Ass'n will meet in New York March 31, prior to opening the following day of the 5-5-5 conferences. The leaders returned to their respective cities this week following conferences with distributors at which it was decided to resume the conferences. The sessions are to be open to the trade press.

Gottesman Tour Due to Warners' Theatre Drive

Theatre expansion program of Warners, embracing a number of territories, has sent Alfred A. Gottesman, executive assistant to Albert Warner, on a two months' tour of the country.

Cook Starting "Rain or Shine"

Hollywood—Joe Cook, star, is in Hollywood to commence work on his first picture, an adaptation of his stage play "Rain or Shine," by James Gleason. Joe Swerling is making the adaptation.

Opening Film Selected

"Hold Everything" will be the initial attraction at Warner's new Hollywood theatre, New York. While no definite date has been determined it is understood that the opening will take place in April.

Academy Awards on April 3

Hollywood—Special awards of merit, annually selected by members of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences, will be distributed at a formal dinner scheduled for April 13 at the Biltmore Hotel.

Air Mystery for "U"

Hollywood—Universal is preparing script on "The Murder in the Clouds," a mystery melodrama of the air, which Edward Laemmle will direct.

R-K-O On Eve Of Big Expansion On Various "Fronts"

Radio-Keith-Orpheum is on the eve of a big expansion program which will bring it into spirited competition with Publix-Balaban & Katz throughout the Illinois territory, as well as strengthen its position in other sections.

At Chicago, Publix-B. & K. recently engineered a deal with R-K-O, and when that fell through, took back the Belmont in retaliation. Now R-K-O is reported seeking at least four Chicago houses, and is preparing to build opposition in other Publix-B. & K. towns to add to its holdings at Springfield, Champaign and Rockford.

In New York, houses are planned at Albany, Schenectady and neighboring spots, it is stated. At Washington, B. F. Keith's is to be replaced by a new R-K-O theatre. R-K-O scouts are reported active in other sections.

Joseph Plunkett of R-K-O could not be reached Thursday for a statement on the reported expansion program. Earlier in the week, he denied an up-state New York expansion was planned.

R-K-O Division Heads Meet

Division managers of R-K-O were in New York during the week for a convention called by Joseph Plunkett. Attending were Charles L. Winston, New England; Charles B. McDonald, Manhattan; David Beehler, Brooklyn and Long Island; H. R. Emde, Westchester County, N. Y., and Newark, N. J.; Lou Golding, New York State; Claud Saunders, Washington; J. E. Firnkoess, Cleveland; Nate Blumberg, Chicago; Thomas D. Soriero, St. Louis; J. L. McCurdy, Minneapolis; Frank W. Vincent, Los Angeles; and James Carrier, Northwest.

Pathe News in Color

Pathe is furnishing exhibitors of the country with a big selling point in the current issue of Pathe Sound News, with the pictorial account of the Mardi Gras at New Orleans in color. Although the sequence runs but two minutes, it carries a big kick, and may forecast widespread use of color in recording news events of the kind.

We can picture a big field in the filming of the fall football classics, for instance, via this method. Coloratura speed cameras, developed by Terry Ramsaye and his Pathe News staff, are used. It's a bit of showmanship which deserves much credit.

HYNES

Pathe Speeds Its Plans for Color Use in Newsreel

Pathe has a battery of Coloratura cameras in construction for production of future Pathe Sound News subjects in color. The new process, developed by the Pathe News staff, was introduced last week in Pathe Sound News with scenes of the New Orleans Mardi Gras. New installations of Coloratura process printing and developing machines are under way at the Jersey City laboratories under supervision of Charles De Moos. Special developments in positive and negative raw stock, made by Dupont-Pathe, have made the new color process practical for sound news work, it is stated.

Pathe did not make public its plans to photograph and release the color news subject, preferring instead to secure exhibitor and public reaction to the innovation.

Technicolor Row With Warners Is Denied On Coast

Hollywood—Both Warner and Technicolor officials deny there are any difficulties between the companies as currently reported here. Reports of a break were in circulation together with the declared deal under way between Warners and Harriscolor.

Reports had it that Technicolor was withdrawing its cameras and equipment from Warners, and that the latter was discontinuing the making of films using the Technicolor process. The schedule for future Warner and First National Technicolor films still stands, it is stated. Jack Warner is expected to make a formal statement late this week denying friction exists between the two firms.

Bill Cody to Make Series of Talkers for Sono Art

Bill Cody has been signed to do a series of outdoor talking pictures for Sono-Art. This will be his first experience in the talking field.

To Handle Thrasher Story

Hollywood.—Columbia has assigned adaptation of "For the Love o' Lil," the Leslie Thrasher story, to Douglas Doty, following assignment of the "Last of the Lone Wolf" adaptation to J. G. Hawks.

Second Oakie Set

Jack Oakie's second Paramount starring vehicle will be "The Sap From Syracuse," from the stage comedy by John Wray, Jack O'Donnell and John Hayden. The picture means that Oakie will come East.

Colman's Next an Original

Hollywood—Samuel Goldwyn is completing "Raffles," starring Ronald Colman, and is planning an original by Louis Bromfield as the star's next.

RKO Laying Off Third Dimension for the Present

Hollywood—RKO has not discarded the Spoor wide film stereoscopic process, but company officials feel that all wide film process is in the experimental stage and there are too many factors existing against practical use at present.

As a result of this viewpoint, "Dixiana," which was to have been the initial stereoscopic wide film, will go into production next week and be photographed on standard-size film.

The present attitude seems to be to lay off wide film production for the time being, mainly on account of the theatre installation cost problem. A feature picture using the process still is planned.

Are News Contracts For Time Period Or Number Of Issues? A Court To Decide

Natural Vision Process

Upon a makeshift cloth screen, and under unfavorable light conditions, a picture filmed and projected by the Natural Vision process was demonstrated in New York. The clips (silent), photographed three years ago, stand out in relief and give somewhat of a depth illusion. Viewed from all angles, the pictures were remarkable for their lack of distortion, even with the spectator almost against and flanking the screen. This latter feature is the big one with this wide film process, for it will help to increase salability of side seats.

HYNES

Sono-Art's Wide Film Process To Make Debut Soon

Production of the first picture to be made by the Natural Vision wide film process will be started by Sono-Art World Wide Pictures in about 30 days. Simultaneously, production will be started on the projector heads for the showing of the pictures by the new method.

The Natural Vision process, for which Sono-Art has exclusive rights, will bring wide film to theatres at a cost of about $1,000 in equipment, state Robert Greathouse and William Bitzer, who have developed the process.

Film used is 56 mm. wide, which Greathouse and Bitzer contend, is the most desirable width for wide film in order to prevent buckling. A special camera developed by Bitzer, one of the industry's pioneer cameramen, is used in the filming process.

The film may be shown over any standard projector, by replacement of the projector head, magazine and roller, with a projector head made by Natural Vision The change can be made in 30 minutes, according to Greathouse, who says that only removal of three bolts are needed for the change, which can be made by any operator. The head magazine and roller will cost about $500 per complete unit, he states. The pictures can be projected in any size up to 22 by 44 feet.

George Weeks of Sono Art now is rounding out production plans for the Natural Vision Pictures, as well as marketing plans for the projector heads. It is probable that the initial picture will be roadshowed.

Beaudine Assigned

Hollywood—"Those Who Dance" is to be directed for Warners by William Beaudine. Joe Jackson has written the script from the story by George Kibbe Turner. The cast will be headed by Monte Blue.

Exhibitor Closed House, Then Cancelled When Time Limit Ended; Suit Followed

Richmond, Va.—Does a newsreel contract terminate upon expiration date in the agreement, regardless of whether the house has gone dark meanwhile, or must an exhibitor play or pay for the minimum number of issues which would have been used had the house remained open?

That is a question the Supreme Court of Appeals is expected to be asked to pass upon in a $1,980 complaint filed by Fox against C. M. Casey of the Auditorium at Lynchburg. Casey won the decision in the Corporation Court at Lynchburg. Appeal is to be taken.

The defense contended its contracts for the newsreel ended when the house went dark for the summer, but the plaintiff sued for playing or payment of 63 additional issues. The distributor claimed it agreed to cancel the newsreel until the Academy reopened, but stated that when the house reopened in September it started with a current issue of the newsreel but cancelled the last week in November. Casev claimed the agreement was to end with the expiration date in the contract, but Fox insists that the agreement calls for use of the minimum of issues which would have been used had the house remained open.

"Border Legion" Under Way

Hollywood—Richard Arlen, Fay Wray and Jack Holt have featured roles in "The Border Legion," which is in production at Paramount. Otto Brower and Edwin Knopf, co-directors of "The Light of Western Stars," are teamed again.

Kyne Remake by M-G-M

Hollywood—"Never the Twain Shall Meet" may hold true everywhere but in pictures. The Peter B. Kyne novel appeared in silent form some years ago, and now M-G-M will bring it back as a talker. Lionel Barrymore will direct.

Underhanded Stuff

There was a lot of crowing on the part of the Pathe executive team when they defeated the crack home office bowlers in a match game this week, but the victims are not proving very good losers. It's not lack of sportsmanship, but an ante-game conference brought out the suspicion that the home work which had been piled upon them for several weeks prior to the game was a deliberate attempt to tire them out so that they could not get in any practice. As a result the home office boys could hardly lift the balls, they say, and they are cooking up appropriate revenge for the executives, who were captained by Phil Reisman, general sales manager.

Bicycling Suit Dropped by U. S. When Contested

Philadelphia—First contested case of an exhibitor being charged by the Federal government with violation of copyright was heard Monday in U. S. District Court and resulted in the government withdrawing its case of its own volition, halfway through the proceedings, according to "The Exhibitor." In only one other instance has an exhibitor been prosecuted by the government under the copyright laws, and this was in Montana two years ago. In that case, the exhibitor pleaded guilty.

Harry Perlman, the exhibitor in the Philadelphia case, owner of the Lehigh and West Allegheny theatres, refused to plead guilty, and on the witness stand showed that, while he was specifically accused of holding over film and bicycling in ten instances, there were extenuating circumstances in connection with each alleged violation. The government was unable to prove wilful violation, and accordingly dropped the case. It is the opinion of Charles Denby, Jr., prosecuting attorney, that the case calls for civil action.

Suggestions on Contract Are Offered at "Philly"

Philadelphia—Straight percentage, averaged over the entire group sold on a guarantee and split; specific playing dates for early runs; retention of the privilege of cancelling ten per cent of any block of films but without the payment of 50 per cent of the rental; merging of synchronization fee with the rental, and the right to withdraw any application for contract up to ten days after signing are among suggested features for a new contract, offered by the exhibitor unit here. The unit, according to "The Fxhibitor," believes a "new and more equitable contract between exhibitor and distributor should be drawn."

Failure To Pick Up Shows Threatens Flood Of Law Suits In Middle West

Arbitration Breakdown the Reason—Deposit System Is Returning

Chicago—Effects of the Thacher decree are beginning to be noticed here, a survey of local exchanges reveals. Usually, these take the form of an increase in the number of shows being left on the floor, to combat which a number of the exchanges are resorting to courts of law where precedent has indicated contracts will be upheld in practically all instances. Others are preparing to demand substantial deposits of repeated offenders as a means of bringing the bad boys around when the new buying season opens.

An interesting sidelight of the survey disclosed the existence of two distinct attitudes on arbitration among exchange managers. One retains a hope that arbitration in its old form may be reinstated, and takes the view that the exhibitors themselves may make this possible by discrediting the Thacher decree through repeated and increased repudiation of contracts.

They urge that all violations of contract be given full publicity in order to emphasize whatever current evils may exist, thereby assisting in marking the present situation as being worse than the former one.

Explained Variously

The second implies acceptance of conditions as they now are and holds out little hope of a change. It asks that contract violations be soft-pedalled lest they put ideas into the heads of those exhibitors who, to date, have not taken unfair advantage of a new situation.

The existing conditions are widely diversified. Although the greater number admit an increase in contract violations, some of these attribute it to existing business conditions and other legitimate factors. They say that closings for sound installations and for periods of temporary business depression account for many of the shows being left on the floor, and would occur whether arbitration was in effect or not. Others contend that the situation has not been changed in any respect and still others intimate that an actual improvement exists. Not one showed any concern over complications which may arise from protection.

One summarized the situation with the statement that: "Good pictures will always be played, and poor pictures are liable to be left on the floor regardless of the type of contract in existence."

What Exchanges Report

Following is a survey of the individual exchanges here, as depicted by branch managers and bookers:

Warner Bros.-Vitaphone: Conditions about the same as always with little trouble of any kind in prospect.

Tiffany: Possible improvement. Fewer shows being left on the floor than ever before. Ten prints of "Lost Zeppelin" working in the first three weeks after release.

United Artists: Slight increase in number of shows not picked up but finds the

Warner-Fox Theatre Tussle Rages On

Hollywood—The theatre battle between Warners and Fox West Coast seems to be a merry one. Warners recently announced a new theatre in Huntington Park; a few weeks later Fox announced one directly across the street.

Warners are rushing plans for a new theatre in San Pedro. Shortly thereafter, West Coast purchased a site directly across the street. California cities and towns will apparently have new theatres in pairs from now on.

Ill. Exhibitors Urged To Seek Cut In Rentals

Chicago—First-run protection limited to thirty days, from the last day of play, and a right to cancel 10 per cent of pictures purchased where a group has been bought without payment are among recommendations for a new contract urged upon the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n by J. M. Duncan of the Alhambra at Decatur. A rental reduction is necessary, he maintains, if small theatres are to continue in business.

"Some sort of equitable standard contract containing a fair arbitration clause, nothing like the old form of arbitration, should be devised and sponsored," Dunbar suggests, "by independent organizations. The new contract should include a clause giving an exhibitor the privilege of cancelling at least 10 per cent of the pictures where a group has been bought without paying.

"The exhibitor," he continues, "should also have the privilege of playing pictures in the order as set by him; he, of course, to be bound to play or pay all the pictures on his contract within a specified period of time. The matter of protection allowed first-run theatres in key centers should be standard with all distributors and in no case should this protection period be over thirty days.

"Pressure should be brought immediately through the association for its members in securing an equitable reduction in film rentals on sound pictures for this year, bought at a time when we all thought that with the coming of sound our receipts would be increased at least in proportion to the increase agreed to be paid in rentals and other overhead for the protection of sound."

Referring to the Illinois organization's drive for members, Duncan states:

"I have had a great deal of experience with exhibitors throughout the states who are not in close touch with the exhibition centers and I believe I know whereof I speak when I say it is going to take a good, strong organization man to get these state exhibitors really interested in their own affairs. It seems to me that a good, strong organization man should be put in the field to secure the membership of exhibitors outside of Chicago."

Showmen In Vt. Seek Lifting Of "Blue" Law Ban

Albany—Theatre owners of Vermont will seek to have the Vermont state legislature amend present laws to permit Sunday shows. This decision has followed a fight that has recently been waged at Bennington, where John B. Harte, theatre owner, and four operators were arrested after attempting to give a Sunday night show for admission. The Vermont legislature meets every two years.

K. C. Showmen Opposed to Meeting 'Smut' Group

Kansas City—Six downtown theatre managers vigorously oppose meeting six club women on a committee appointed by Judge Carlin P. Smith of the North Side court, which has been much heralded locally as the "art and smut committee." The appointment of the committee resulted from the show censorship row between reformers and theatre men here and cases involving three burlesque houses for alleged immoral shows.

Judge Smith named the committee as an advisory body to determine what is to be considered good and bad. The theatre managers named were: Lawrence Lehman, Main Street; Chas. Raymond, Midland; Louis Charninsky, Pantages; Ben Ketcham, Orpheum; Ray Whittaker, Shubert; and George Young, Gaiety. The first meeting of the committee failed to materialize when all the members refused to serve. A case in court against one of the theatres involved was dismissed.

Judge Thacher Approval Held Up by Ga. Senator

Washington—Unexpected opposition blocked appointment of Federal Judge Thacher of New York, whose decree outlawed arbitration in the industry, as solicitor general of the United States, when Sen. Overman (Dem., Ga.) asked that the consideration be held over temporarily to give him time to look into matters concerning the judge. Later, he said he had received a complaint that Thacher's decisions had made it difficult to deport Communist aliens.

Sees No Reason Why Arbitration Can't Be Made Fair And Equitable For All

Over-Enthusiastic Salesmen Harmful

By HAROLD B. FRANKLIN

President, Fox West Coast Theatres

Los Angeles—There is absolute necessity for arbitration in this business, and there is no doubt that some equitable form of procedure will be evolved for everyone's benefit. Past difficulties encountered which necessitated frequent arbitration cases was the result of the over-enthusiasm of salesmen in representing their product above the real value of the picture to the exhibitor, with resultant complaints by exhibitors.

The new arbitration which must, and will be set up, should and will overcome this condition for the benefit of the entire industry.

Arbitration Boon Vital To Conduct Of Trade, He Says

By J. J. HARWOOD

President, Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Ass'n

Cleveland—The Thacher decree sweeps aside in a moment the combined efforts of distributor and exhibitor leaders of bringing about better relations between buyers and sellers and we are now confronted with the most serious situation in the industry for the past ten years.

J. J. Harwood

Arbitration in the motion picture business has been proven one of, if not the greatest boon for exhibitor and distributor alike that the industry has experienced and, while not all that could be desired, it goes without saying that the entire industry was satisfied that the principle was right and the mechanics were gradually becoming worked out and running smoother as we went along, so much so that it is doubtful if there is an exhibitor anywhere today who would not much rather

System Necessary to Handle Disputes, Exhibitor Leader Believes

By A. JULIAN BRYLAWSKI

President, M. P. T. O. of District of Columbia

Washington—As far as I can see, no benefits have accrued to the independent exhibitor through the collapse of arbitration. I am not, and never have been in sympathy with the efforts of those who seek to tear down an established system, however imperfect, without being prepared to set up a more efficient system in its place.

A. Julian Brylawski

While there have been certain criticisms on the contract scheme of arbitration to the effect that it was subject to certain abuses due to the dominant position of the distributors, I have never felt that these were of such serious nature as to warrant the abolition of the general scheme of arbitration. As far as this territory is concerned, our local board of arbitration was considered fair and was supported by all the organized exhibitors of this territory.

I am in favor of arbitration as a distinct step forward in the settlement of human controversies, and I am in favor of arbitration within the industry for settlement of disputes arising within the industry. Ours is a complex and involved business with ramifications, customs and practices peculiar to itself and it is difficult, if not impossible, for outsiders, however intelligent, to get a proper perspective of the problems and contentions of this industry.

Since the stoppage of arbitration here I have twice sat on a voluntary board of arbitration to dispose of several important cases in which an outside arbitrator was selected to sit a third arbitrator. I remember so vividly the hours that were spent on both sides and in conference to try and get these men, intelligent lawyers both, to picture a cross section of this industry so as to try and arrive at a fair decision. Since these experiences I have refused to sit further on these cases without compensation for the use of my time so uselessly wasted.

To conclude—arbitration is useful, is efficient, is speedy, and can be made fair, impartial and respected—all within the industry.

Tri-State Unit Meeting at Little Rock in April

Memphis—Little Rock will be scene of this year's convention of the tri-state exhibitor unit to be held April 6 and 7. It had been planned to hold the meeting here, but a number of exhibitors preferred the Arkansas City, expressing their wish in a postcard ballot. Jess F. Norman, president of the association, sent out the call.

Connecticut Holds Arbitration Vital

By EDWARD G. LEVY

Sec'y, M.P.T.O. of Connecticut

New Haven—The general sentiment among exhibitors in this territory is and has been for some years in favor of the principle of arbitration. Very few have ever expressed disaproval even under the former system, and the present situation certainly requires a definite step to clear the air.

I believe exhibitors are suffering almost as much as distributors with things as they are, and many cases that have been called to my attention by exhibitors suffering from inability to secure proper relief, would have been disposed of in short order under an equitable arbitration arrangement.

I believe that a respected representative of the distributors could sit down with a respected representative of the exhibitors and iron out practically every difficulty that arose. The proceedure could be in the form of arbitration with arguments presented by both sides and written submission could authorize the apointment of an umpire. We deal in a very perishable commodity and already in this territory it has been proved to both sides that state courts cannot properly handle moving picture contract controversies.

System That Binds Will be Welcome Miller Believes

By JACK MILLER

President, Chicago Exhibitors' Association

Chicago—The Thacher decree relative to compulsory arbitration has little significance to the members of the Chicago Exhibitors' Association, in the opinion of Jack Miller, president, who describes his constituents as belonging to "that class of exhibitor who will live up to their contracts whether there is arbitration or not."

Jack Miller

Arbitration at present is without the means of enforcing its decisions and, therefore, is useless, Miller said. He intimated that, in his opinion, members of the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n would ignore arbitration as an ineffective resort, and would prefer to abide by the contracts which they had made.

"Without enforcement means," he said, "arbitration is useless, or, at the best, ex-

3-3 Plan Abetted By Common Sense Seen As Cure-All

By FRED WEHRENBERG

President, M. P. T. O. of Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois

St. Louis—It is my opinion that this industry should have some form of arbitration that will be equitable to all parties concerned, as it is far better to arbitrate than to go into long drawn out and expensive law suits.

I would suggest that the boards be authorized in the exercise of a sound discretion, to receive and consider all evidence, documentary and oral, bearing on the essential merits of each controversy, to the end that the awards may work even and exact justice, or the nearest approach thereto that is possible with these human agencies. In arbitration, I think the governing principle should be the intention of the parties to be ascertained from the contract, given a common sense interpretation in the light of the situation of the parties when the contract was made, and from the construction which they gave to it by their subsequent words and deeds.

In other words, in meritorious cases, the arbitrators should look beyond the written words of the contract and try and place themselves in the position of the parties to the contract in order to determine how they regarded their agreement. However, their power shall not extend to the fixing or changing of prices on existing contracts.

The board to consist of six members, three elected by the local exhibitors' organization and three elected from the Film Board of Trade, and, in the event of a tie, the seventh arbitrator to be some party of high standing outside of the industry, with no interest whatsoever. I also believe that arbitrators should be compensated for their services.

System That Binds Would Be Welcome, Miller Says

pensive. It is without enforcement provisions, and in order to make its decisions effective a litigant would be obliged to appeal to a court.

"The Thacher decree makes it impossible for the exhibitor to be held responsible, and therefore it will be taken advantage of by the fellow who is inclined to force the film companies to live up to their agreement but who could not be forced to live up to his own. It is reasonable to believe this is so since 80% of the arbitration cases that have come up here in the past were directed against some one who was attempting to break a contract.

"Members of the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, I believe, would like to see a method of arbitration that would have some significance—arbitration that would be effective because it was binding on both sides and possessed reasonable enforcement provisions."

All But Garbo

Something new in the way of trailer gags is being used by National Screen Service for "Anna Christie." The company was up against a problem, due to the fact that it is Greta Garbo's initial talker and fearing that to show but a few sequences would not put over the star's voice. Accordingly, all the characters in the trailer talk with the exception of Garbo. She is about to do so, as the trailer ends and a title explains the reason for the omission.

Take It Or Leave It Arbitration Aim In Illinois

By AARON SAPERSTEIN

President, Ill. Ind., T. O. A.

Chicago—Voluntary arbitration, as outlined by Allied States and submitted to the Hays association, has the support of members of the Illinois Independent Theatre Owners' Ass'n, stated Aaron Saperstein, president of the latter organization.

Aaron Saperstein

"As a member of Allied States," said Saperstein, "this organization will abide by any deal on arbitration made or approved by Allied. We favor the type of voluntary arbitration made possible by the Thacher decree. Allied States, through its representatives who testified at the arbitration hearings in Federal court, has placed its approval on the Thacher decree and all that it means. The Illinois Independents' organization is satisfied with that stand.

"Under the Thacher decree, voluntary arbitration will be the rule. We will endeavor to operate this type of arbitration here in accordance with the system outlined by Allied and submitted by the Motion Picture Producers' and Distributors Association."

Arbitration Boon Vital To Trade Conduct, Harwood

choose arbitration even under the old system, than litigation.

The matter of arbitration was discussed at a recent meeting of Cleveland exhibitors attended by over ninety per cent of the members and a resolution was passed unanimously that Cleveland exhibitors endorsed and desired arbitration. Now that the old system has been "junked" it is imperative that we look for another plan that will meet with judicial approval.

Arbitration meetings can readily be arranged in centers such as Cleveland and, therefore, it is only a question as to how to get it in the contract. Undoubtedly, rather than any deposit system any exhibitor preferred a contract with an arbitration clause and at this time it looks to me as though it will mean dual contracts and give the exhibitor his choice. Personally, regardless of the kind of contract I had, I would certainly try to have arbitration of any dispute that might arise under it, rather than any litigation.

As to the method of arbitration, I would not care whether it be an arbitration board or if buyer and seller should each choose their arbitrator and the two so chosen select the third man.

Says Answer Will Come As Soon As Politics Dropped

By LOVE B. HARRELL

Sec.-Treasurer, Southeastern Theatre Owners' Ass'n

Atlanta—It is my opinion that all exhibitors, especially in our section, want arbitration. The nature of our business, involving speed delivery and time element as it does, necessarily needs some rapid method for the clearing up of its claims and controversies.

When we had arbitration as it was, there is no question but what this industry was stabilized and moved forward progressively by it. It is further my opinion that if it were not for the scrap between the two national exhibitor groups, the question of arbitration would have been already settled, and would be moving again normally.

I believe it is the sentiment of the majority in this association and I, personally, do not see any need for the present split in national organizations. I do not think that a national exhibitors' organization will ever be successful. I believe for them there should be substituted regional groups acting under Film Board locations with paid business heads, and these business heads as a body should constitute what national organization there is to work out national and industrial plans of progress, policy, etc.

In this manner, the industry could be watched and the good of the exhibitor and distributor cared for without the clash of petty, self-interested personal or political gain. I do think though in these regional organizations the power or control should be so limited as to exclude the possibility of any regional association being dominated by any group or chain. What the independent exhibitor needs is protection through mobilized strength, and a good informity source for information essential to the operation of his business.

It is known and understood that the chain needs organization only for the strength in fighting adverse tax legislation. When chains use exhibitors' organizations for any other purpose they do themselves harm and the industry an injustice.

When the question of exhibitors' organization is settled on the sane, cool and customary basis, then the question of arbitration will be an easily settled matter because exhibitors can meet distributors free from any incumbrances, factors, or whatnots, and I believe they can stand together without the loss of one right, one privilege or one industrial benefit.

Long Protection Solution Seen As Remedy for Existing Trade Evils

Seider Says Issue Transcends That of Problems Caused by Arbitration Ban

Predicts Early Resumption of Arbitration in New York Territory

"Find a remedy for the abuses prevailing because of the unreasonable protection granted to large circuits and the inability of subsequent runs to obtain timely availability of pictures and you will find the solution to the entire problem.

"In our great desire for an arbitration system because of the existing difficulties, we lose sight of the fact that the need for arbitration could be altogether eliminated by proper business dealings between buyer and seller."

These are among observations of Joseph M. Seider, president of the New Jersey exhibitor unit, in commenting upon present chaotic conditions existing as a result of the Thacher decree outlawing the industry's arbitration system.

JOSEPH M. SEIDER
President, M. P. T. O. of N. J.

"The problem presented by Judge Thacher's decree is a business and not a legal one and a solution will be found through dealing with the business problems presented," Seider declares.

"Claims based on bad checks are only a very small proportion of the ones brought before the arbitration boards. An action based on such a claim can very readily be brought in court and collected through the channels provided by law. What is more important is that distributors could easily single out such exhibitors and rightfully refuse to do business with them. Likewise claims against exhibitors for violation of the copyright laws could be readily prosecuted through the courts. Where the claim, however, is based upon the violation of protection or the failure of an exhibitor to give dates or pick up pictures on assigned dates, delay incidental to litigation would be most costly and confiscatory.

Advocated Reforms

"In the July 4, 1925, issue of Motion Picture News, as the then national chairman of the contract and arbitration committee, I first pleaded for reforms of the contracts and arbitration system. Thereafter ensued years of debate, committee sessions, conferences with distributors and their attorneys and the adoption of two new contract forms, each an improvement on its predecessor but each political in aim and failing to give the necessary relief.

"An honest and earnest effort was made to find a solution to the availability of product problem. Nathan Burkan submitted a clause which we favored but which was not acceptable to the distributors. Distributors would benefit directly by a solution of this situation, yet, their earnest desire to please their large customers precludes them from cooperating fully with the smaller exhibitor in this respect.

Should Enforce Availability

"It must not be inferred that I deem the present availability clause unfair. In fact, I believe it to be adequate, but the distributors do not carry out its provisions to the letter and show discrimination in the application of this clause between the large and the small exhibitor. Some circuits, both large and small, affiliated and unaffiliated, juggle their playing time through the aid of this set-up so that a picture plays all of their theatres first and the subsequent run, which would be entitled to play the picture at an earlier date, is denied the opportunity to show the picture because the distributor does not exercise his rights under the contract and does not assign dates to his large customer who does the juggling or does not date them as provided in Clause 8.

"Nothing depreciates as fast as a popular song or play. The exhibitor is damaged because of inability to get pictures while they enjoy the public fancy. He is damaged further because, being unable to get pictures for his open time, he is compelled to buy an additional block of pictures. The result is, he is in an overbought condition when all the pictures are made available to him. Hence, the exhibitor becomes in default and the distributors make the effort to compel the performance of their contracts through arbitration board proceedings. They are invariably successful and because the contracts are "pay or play" contracts the arbitration boards have no other alternative than to render judgment against the exhibitor. Thus, through the arbitration boards, distributors either collect for their pictures or force the independent exhibitor to play the pictures as and when the distributor makes them available to him.

Must Have Product

"Another complication that the exhibitor faces is when distributors throw the pictures upon him all at one time. They are usually similar in nature. The exhibitor having no other choice, plays them the only time they are available and incurs public disfavor.

"Furnish the subsequent runs with a steady and equal supply of product and make provision that in the event of violation of protection he has a right to injunctive relief and you have the national solution of the problem presented by Judge Thacher's decision.

"In the New York territory there undoubtedly will be an early resumption of arbitration. I base this prediction upon my knowledge of the attitude of theatre owners in this zone towards the arbitration built up by Louis Nizer, secretary and counsel of the Film Board of Trade in New York. He has brought the proceedings here to the point where fairness prevailed and personal interest and contractual provisions were waived in favor of merit and protection to the individuals involved."

Passage of Operator Bill By New York Solons Seen

Albany—Passage of the bill to require operators to obtain signatures of both the fire commissioner and city clerk upon applications for licenses, as well as a statement to the effect that the applicant is of good moral character, is anticipated. There has been no opposition to the bill, which is regarded as the only one affecting the industry which has a chance of passage. No progress has been made on the bill calling for a six-day week for operators.

Arrested on "Blue" Charge

Sebring, Fla.—Charles F. Johnson, manager of the local theatre, was arrested on charges of violation of the state law by opening his theatre Sunday. Bond, signed by Rex Beach and Senator Etheridge, was posted.

An election held here recently resulted in a majority voting in favor of the repeal of the local ordinance which prohibited Sunday shows. Johnson, therefore, opened his house and intends to continue.

Changing Pantages House

Toronto — Imperial will be the name adopted by the Pantages here, in line with decision to change names of various Pantages houses in Canada. The theatre at Hamilton has changed to the Palace, while the Beacon is new name selected for the Vancouver house.

Sunday Show Vote Slated

Peekskill, N. Y.—With the town declared split on the question of Sunday shows, to an extent that a third party is being suggested, voters here will go to the polls April 1 to decide the issue.

Loew's at Erie?

Erie, Pa.—Loew's is planning a house here to seat at least 4,000, according to William A. Finney, of the New York office, who has been scouting for sites. Construction is to begin at an early date, it is said.

Number of Films On Paramount's List Eliminated

Hollywood.—Paramount has abandoned plans to produce a number of pictures on the current program. "Escape" and "The Lost God" are included.

One, instead of two, Jeanne Eagles films are scheduled due to the star's death, while the three Richard Arlen vehicles have been cut to one, with the player placed in featured roles.

Only two of the scheduled four Evelyn Brents are to be produced, and three, instead of four Clara Bow vehicles have been made, due to the star's reported illness. Flexibility of the schedule is declared essential due to the constant and fast changes being made in developing sound pictures.

5 Roadshow Units Already Set for McCormack Film

Five roadshow companies already have been set with more to be added for presentation of "Song O' My Heart" as a roadshow, under direction of J. J. McCarthy. This means the McCormack picture will not reach picture houses for at least seven months. Companies have been organized for two-a-day presentations at the Majestic, Boston, opening March 24; the Fox Locust, Philadelphia, opening March 20; the Shubert Opera House, Detroit, early in April; at Los Angeles about the same time, and at London early in summer.

Nab 5 K. C. Theatre Crooks

Kansas City—Cops stationed by pre-arrangement in the Madrid, de luxe suburban house, nabbed two burglars just as they were tackling the safe, and forced from them a confession that they had robbed the Bagdad earlier. Later the same policemen found two men hiding in the Isis and the captives, who admitted they intended to rob the safe, confessed to participation in the robbery of the Liberty and Uptown in January. A fifth man, implicated in the latter, was arrested later.

Bader Goes to War

Dave Bader, Carl Laemmle's personal representative in the East, leaves New York for Chicago on Sunday to gather background dope for Laemmle's autobiography, now in work.

Before his departure, Dave will receive a war risk identification tag from his pals, in case the "Windy City" gunmen go on a tear during his stay.

Wellman Can't Agree With Schulberg on Editing; Out

Hollywood—After a reported disagreement with studio officials over the cutting and editing of his last picture, William Wellman has left Paramount.

He had certain ideas on the cutting of "Young Eagles," but they did not conform to the plans of company executives. The director asked for his release, which was granted immediately. The megaphoner will free lance.

Prince Is Victor in Suit Over "Merry Widow" Libel

Paris.—M-G-M must pay 100,000 francs (about $4,000) damages to Prince Danilo of Montenegro, for alleged libelous portrayal of him in "The Merry Widow." Eric von Stroheim, who directed the picture, had been an Austrian military attache in Montenegro before the war, the prince's attorney stressed, stating there could be no mistaking the "scandalous" reference to the prince in the picture.

Publix Splits Division

Omaha—With the promotion of Evert R. Cummings and Nate Frudenfeld, former district managers, to division managers, Publix has divided the Omaha division. Omaha and Des Moines will be headquarters of the units, with Cummings stationed at the former and Frudenfeld in Des Moines. Charles Pincus, city manager and manager of the Paramount, has been boosted to district manger under Cummings. Frudenfeld's three new district managers are Arthur G. Stolte, Jack Roth and Herbert Grove.

Making Greek Talkers

Orthophonic Pictures have been organized to produce talkers in Greek. "Punch of the Hunchback," the first, was made at Metropolitan Sound Studios in Fort Lee. Future plans, it is stated, call for talkers in Polish, Jewish, German and Spanish. The initial picture was directed by William Salzman and is in three reels. The company is talking about building sound studios abroad.

Boyd in "Spoilers"

Hollywood—With George Bancroft and Betty Compson already set for Paramount's special talker version of "The Spoilers," it is reported that William Boyd, former stage actor, has been signed for the heavy role originally portrayed by Tom Santchi. Production gets under way in six weeks.

Cantor On Sono Art Staff

Edward Cantor has been engaged by Budd Rogers, director of Sales of Sono Art-World Wide, to work out of Cincinnati.

Here's Exhibitor Who Is Optimistic And Is Proving It By Big Expansion

Sherman, With 22 Houses, Getting 14 More And Will Keep On Going

Found: The independent exhibitor who is convinced that the future is bright. And, what is more, is willing to say so. Further, who intends to back up his views with expansion, at a time when many others are howling bloody murder.

This unique showman is Benjamin Sherman, head of Manhattan Playhouses, New York, who is just launching an expansion campaign which he expects will make the chain one of the most formidable in the Greater New York territory.

Talking pictures and better conditions are cited by Sherman to back up his views on the bright future for independent exhibitors. Sherman recently returned from Florida, to which he may extend activities.

After 14 More Houses

"We are giving the public better entertainment today for from 25 cents up than ever before, better entertainment than they could purchase heretofore for $5.50," says Sherman. "And the legitimate theatres are helping to drive people into picture houses, both by the shows they present and the prices they charge.

Manhattan Playhouses now has 22 theatres on the East Side, in Harlem and in the Bronx and has deals under way for 14 additional houses. Taking over of these theatres will be the forerunner of the expansion program to extend to all parts of Greater New York and in Northern New Jersey. In addition, existing houses of the chain are to be improved.

Manhattan Playhouses is an outgrowth of the former Steiner and Blinderman and Mayer and Schneder circuits. The chain has made rapid forward strides since it was taken over by Sherman and J. H. Steinman. The latter is general manager.

"Student Show" Innovation In Houston

Houston—A new policy of four complete vaudeville shows a day throughout the week, instead of on Saturday and Sunday, as formerly, has been inaugurated by the Majestic. The program includes a "Student's Show" at four o'clock.

The theatre is opened at 11 A. M., and starts and ends with the feature.

Mary Nolan Row Edge Seen Held By 'U' On Coast

Hollywood—Universal is said to have the edge in the Mary Nolan tift by reason of a clause in its contract with the star, permitting the company to take her off the payroll at any time during the year for a 12 weeks' period. Carl Laemmle, Jr., states the company has the right to remove her from a cast any time it saw fit.

Miss Nolan, the former Imogene Wilson, had planned to leave for New York, instructing her attorney to file suit to cancel the contract she claimed is breached. However, the salary slant is said to be having its effect, for the star will be off the payroll for a couple of months, and she's not used to that, having been at work continuously since signing with Universal which gave her a starring opportunity.

The story goes that the player was extremely difficult to handle. The explosion, as a matter of fact, had been anticipated long before it occurred. Her alleged temperamental outbursts, plus Ernest Laemmle's attempts to secure special camera angles, made the picture look like a marathon. Miss Nolan walked off the set to return the next day, at which time Miss Starke was occupying her part. Miss Nolan says she is through with the company forever. Universal insists that's a long time.

New Non-Theat. Unit

Des Moines—Articles of incorporation for the Harris Talkie Movie Co., W. Woodworth, president, were approved by secretary of state. The company, incorporated at $5,000, has W. C. Grady as vice-president, J. H. Nicoll, secretary, and Clarence Sather, treasurer.

Berlin on Talent Hunt

Hollywood—Irving Berlin will return to New York to recruit various stage talent for his musical revue which will be produced for United Artists. Berlin returns in two months to start production.

Pathe Signs Ralph Murray

Ralph Murray, Broadway playwright, has gone to the Coast to write originals for Pathe.

"Full Measure" Feature Appeal Made by Exhibs

Philadelphia—Exhibitors of this territory have called upon producers to give them "full measure" in feature pictures, declaring the abbreviated length of average features has raised film rental overhead to an alarming degree, because of the need for booking so many additional shorts. The appeal is sounded in "The Exhibitor" by David Barrist, chairman of the business relation committee of the eastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware unit.

Problem caused by shortening of features in many cases to under one hour is alarming exhibitors in all sections of the country MOTION PICTURE NEWS reported some time ago. Exhibitors are forced to more than double use of shorts in building a two-hour show, raising overhead to a figure about which they are complaining.

Operator Union Celebrates

Empire State M. P. Operators' Union celebrated its fifth anniversary at a dinner in Brooklyn. Dr. Aaron L. Jacoby, sheriff of Kings County, stated in his speech that the "moving picture theatres and those who contribute to their workings have found a definite place in our present social sphere and they have reached the stage that makes them indispensable."

Portland, Me., Receipts Up

Portland, Me.—Although the past year has shown a considerable increase in total seating capacity of picture theatres in this city, figures for the year ending Feb. 28, 1930, as compared with those of the previous year show a net gain in receipts of 11½ per cent.

Levigard in Sick Bay

Hollywood—Joe Levigard, Universal director, smashed up in an auto accident, will recuperate during the ten-week layoff donated to him by Universal.

Kershaw with Famous

Winnipeg—Famous Players Canadian has named Raymond Kershaw, in charge of its suburban houses here. He formerly was head of the Manitoba Exhibitor Association.

Britons to Make Duo-Lingual

London—Associated Sound Film Industries, Ltd., soon will begin production on "City of Song," which will contain both English and German versions. Betty Stockfield, of the West End stage, will play opposite Jan Kiepura with a cast selected from English legitimates. Carmine Gallone and Harcourt Templeman will direct.

M-G-M Signs Wodehouse

P. G. Wodehouse, said to be the highest-paid short story writer in the land and noted for his many musical comedies and plays, has been signed by M-G-M to write originals and adaptations. He will start work in May.

Alexander With Sono Art

Chicago—Leroy Alexander, veteran Universal and Chicago sales executive, has been named special Middle West sales representative for Sono Art-World Wide.

"Unborn Child" Banned By Ohio Board On Title

Cleveland—"Her Unborn Child" has been banned by the Ohio censor board because of its title, it is reported here. No exception to the picture was taken, it is stated. The picture is distributed in Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania by W. N. Skirboll.

Tilt Between Operators And Owners in Seattle

Seattle—Culminating several weeks of conferences between operators of small houses in Seattle and the operators' union, six local downtown and neighborhood houses this week went on a non-union basis. The move was made as a result of the union's demand for more than one operator at a time in the booth. Managers declared they were unable to meet the added expense incurred by keeping two operators on duty at all times. Theatres involved include the Grand, Society, Rialto, Beacon, Gala and Gem. Pickets have already appeared on streets adjacent to several of these houses.

"U" Claims $1,000,000 in Space on Newspaper Tieup

Universal's tieup with 52 newspapers throughout the country on the Graham McNamee newspaper newsreel will net the company $1,000,000 in display advertising, claims "U," which asserts the combined circulation is 30,000,000 for all papers in the tieup. In addition to the display material, the reel receives news stories and photographs of scenes in the reel.

W. E. Installations Total 5,120 Throughout World

United States has 3,703 of all Western Electric installations which total 5,120 throughout the world. The figure jumped 120 since last week. Great Britain has 620 wired with W. E., which reports 189 installations in projection rooms, here and abroad.

Associated M. P. Advertisers have switched Thursday luncheon meeting from the Hotel Lincoln to the Blue Ribbon, 145 W. 44th St., New York.

The executive committee has sent requests to members to vote on a change of meeting day from Thursdays to Wednesdays.

Gendsaeler On Board

Toronto—Ben Gendsaeler, veteran exhibitor, supervisor of Famous Players Canadian suburban houses here and subsequently head of the chain's booking department, has been appointed to the executive committee of the circuit.

Schertzinger Stays

Hollywood—Paramount has renewed its contract with Victor L. Schertzinger.

A battery of Tom Moore's New Processing Machines installed in New York recently, which, Moore claims, are capable of processing 50,000 feet an hour.

Tom Moore Starts Mass Production On New Machine

Film processing machines which, it is claimed by Tom Moore, head of Essen Laboratories, will "hold" color gelatine, retard warping and buckling of wide film and maintain permanent cleanliness of negatives, are ready for marketing, following equipment of a manufacturing plant in New York. Moore has been at work on the process for more than four years and only completed final tests a few months ago.

The process, the invention of Dr. L. L. Steele, formerly of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, will be marketed under the name "Perfexit Protection Film Process," and, according to Moore, changes "green" prints to smooth-running seasoned prints, prevents emulsion deposits on projection machine and does away with scratching of either picture or sound record.

The coating may be applied as an integral part of continuous film developing process, or by a machine working independently. No artificial heat is necessary to dry the coating, it is said, and the process is non-inflammible. No wax or other lubricant is needed, although the process coats, impregnates and cleans emulsion of new prints in a single operation, together with a stoppage of penetration of emulsion by oil while running through projectors.

Cantor Working At Astoria

Eddie Cantor's original story went into work this week at Paramount's Eastern studios, under Hobart Henley's direction.

Winter Garden On Continuous Policy After Remodeling

Grind policy is to be introduced at the Winter Garden, New York, following completion of $200,000 in alterations under way by Warners, which has the house on a long-term lease. One of the improvements is to be a 7th Ave. box office entrance, aimed at keener competition with the Roxy. The Winter Garden has a spot considered by many to be ideal, located between the Capitol and Roxy, which have been battling for business since opening of the Roxy. The remodeling is being done at night, so as not to interfere with policy of the house.

Radio Cinema Vision to Produce Talker Shorts

Radio Cinema Vision Corp. of New York is preparing to make a series of talker shorts with casts selected from radio artists under contract. The company was formed recently to supply complete programs, recorded on discs, to 123 radio stations in the United States and Canada.

The advisory board consists of Malcolm Strauss, president; Alfred J. McCosker of WOR, Walter S. Lemmon of WRNY, Donald Flamm of WMCA, Herman Halstead, vice president of Paul Block, Inc.; M. Townsend Rice, general manager of RCV Systems, and Manny Wakefield, formerly of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, who is now director of sales.

Alice Joyce will play opposite Lowell Sherman in "He Knew Women." Hugh Herbert will direct for RKO.

Arthur Lake steps out into stardom in "Tommy," under the direction of Melville Browne for RKO.

Socko!

"A star in a current hit," reports Skolsky in the "N. Y. Daily News," "who received great notices from the critics was telling the actor who shared the dressing room with him that he couldn't get his shoes on.

"'What's the matter?', asked the actor, 'are your feet swollen, too?'"

Cause For a War

"There are only two stars in all Hollywood into whose shoes somebody else couldn't step and who have never stepped into anybody's shoes. These two are Greta Garbo and Charlie Chaplin," says Dorothy Calhoun in "Motion Picture Classic."

"All the rest," according to this writer, "are either following somebody else's footsteps or being followed. William Haines is behind Charles Ray and Jack Oakie is behind Haines. Clara Bow is followed by Alice White, Helen Kane, Lillian Roth and Sally Starr. John Barrymore has Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., on his heels. Even the unique Lon Chaney is being shadowed by Paul Muni.

"Mary Miles Minter, Mary Pickford, Dorothy Jordan and Loretta Young are all of a type. Helen Twelvetrees is a younger Lillian Gish, Joan Bennett, a younger Norma Talmadge, Bebe Daniels is being pursued by Vivienne Segal and Bernice Claire. Constance Bennett has her eye on Gloria Swanson's crown. And so it goes. Of all the stars of filmdom, only Chaplin and Garbo are unique. And one other. Nobody has filled the shoes of Valentino."

CARMELITA GERAGHTY has a prominent part in Universal's "What Men Want" starring Mary Nolan.

Kenneth Thompson has been selected as lead for Ruth Roland in "Reno," her first starring talker for Sono-Art. George Crone is directing with a cast including Montagu Love, Alyce McCormick, Sam Hardy, Virginia Ainsworth, Doris Lloyd and Douglas Scott.

Lillian Roth has been loaned by Paramount to M-G-M for a featured spot in "Madam Satan."

June Clyde has been added to the cast of "Hawk Island," which George Seitz is directing. Cast includes Betty Compson, Hugh Trevor, Lowell Sherman, Raymond Hatton, Rita Le Roy and Ivan Lebedeff. For RKO.

Raquel Torres plays opposite Buster Keaton in the comedian's Spanish version of "Free and Easy." Miss Torres has the role played by Anita Page in the English regular picture.

Rex Bell is slated to star in a talking version of "Alcatraz," an outdoor picture for Fox. A silent version was made by the same company with Tom Mix several years ago under title of "Just Tony."

Thelma Todd has returned to Paramount to play a lead in "Follow Thru," a film version of the musical comedy.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will play a featured role in Richard Barthelmess' next starring production for First National, "The Dawn Patrol." Neil Hamilton has been borrowed from Paramount for the picture. Howard Hawks will direct.

Myrna Loy goes to First National for a part in Alice White's next starring talker, "Man Crazy," under direction of Eddie Cline.

Charles Bickford, stage and screen actor, is working in a marine melodrama, as yet untitled, on the M-G-M lot.

EARLE WALLACE and Adagio Five are cast additions to "Fame," Vitaphone vehicle featuring Belle Bennett and John Halliday.

D. W. Griffith has added Otto Hoffman and Edward Deering for his "Abraham Lincoln" cast. Walter Huston plays the name role. Stephen V. Benet wrote the story and dialogue.

"Soldiers and Women," stage play, has gone into work at Columbia with Aileen Pringle and Grant Withers in the leads, under Edward Sloman's direction.

Charles E. Dalaney has the juvenile lead in "Around the Corner."

Ina Claire is slated for the lead in Philip Barry's play, "Holiday," for Pathe. The vehicle will precede "Lazy Lady," originally scheduled as Miss Claire's next. Edward H. Griffith will direct.

Robert Bolder joined the cast of M-G-M's "High Road," which Sydner Franklin is directing. Ruth Chatterton heads the cast, supported by Basil Rathbone, Ralph Forbes, MacKensie Ward, Moon Carroll and others.

Columbia has signed Clare Ward and Nick de Ruiz for "Call of the West." Matt Moore and Dorothy Revier head a cast being directed by Albert Ray.

Jillian Sand and John Garrick are new additions to the cast supporting Beatrice Lillie in "Are You There?"

June Clyde will appear with Betty Compson in "Hawk's Island," now being adapted from Howard Irving Young's play, at RKO.

Fox Signs John Russell

Hollywood—John Russell, playwright and author, has moved to Fox to write "The Painted Women," a South Sea Islands story which Victor Fleming will direct upon completion of "Common Clay."

A Hollywood Pastime

Hollywood—Charles Kellogg, known for years to vaudeville audiences as "the bird man," visited one of the big studios the other day and entertained company executives during luncheon with imitations of all sorts and kinds of birds.

The cuckoo and the lyrebird headed the list, according to report.

Portland Censor Board Reverses Self On Picture

Portland, Ore.—Although "Party Girl," which was shown here to good business at Hamrick's Music Box, was duly passed by the censors, they have now changed their mind and state that a "serious error" had been made in permitting it to be shown for a week. They first asked that part of the film be eliminated. Later, after the permit had been signed, it was decided that the entire production should have been barred.

Now that the censor board is asked to permit the showing of the picture again, they state that they have been severely criticised by a small part of the public for permitting the first showing, and also for billboard advertising used, and which later on were covered with thin strips of paper, only to augment their advertising value. The city council will now be called in to view the picture and make the final decision on the repeat showing.

3 Tiffany Features Now in Hands of Cutting Dept.

Hollywood—Editorial department at Tiffany, under direction of Martin G. Cohn, is busily whipping into final shape several features on the 1930 program. These include:

"Swellhead," with James Gleason, Marion Shilling, Johnny Walker, Lillian Elliott and Paul Hurst.

"Sunny Skies," first starring Benny Rubin. Rex Lease, Marceline Day, Wesley Barry, Marjorie Kane, and Greta Granstedt are in the cast. Norman Taurog directed. Clarence Kolster is editor.

"Journey's End," filmization of R. C. Sherriff's play, directed by James Whale, has been in the cutting room for several weeks. Colin Clive, Ian Maclaren, David Manners, Billy Bevan, Anthony Bushell, Thomas Whitely, and others, are in the cast. Claude Berkeley is editing.

Meanwhile, Scott Pembroke is completing "The Medicine Man," Elliott Lester's play in which Jack Benny, Betty Bronson, Eva Novak, E. Alyn Warren, Georgie Stone, Tom Dugan, Billy Butts, Will Walling and Dorothy Wolbert have principal roles.

Richard Thorpe at work on "Song of the Urales," in which appear Armida, Don Terry, Marjorie Kane, Wesley Barry, Victor Potel, Harry Von Meter, and Frank Glendon. Jack Natteford wrote the story, and Val Burton and Will Jason, music and lyrics.

Columbia Takes on Glennon

Hollywood—Having completed direction of "Around the Corner" for Columbia with George Sydney and Charles Murray featured, Bert Glennon signed a term contract to direct a series for that company. Glennon, a former cameraman, recently directed several for RKO.

Another for Publix

Wasn't Even Missed

From Hollywood comes Dorothy Fields' story, via Winchell "N. Y. Daily Mirror," of a British playwright who was hired by a producer and came, by appointment, to see an executive. He was asked to wait as the exec was in conference. After waiting to see the man that day, and the next, and the next, he flew to New York and took the first boat back to England. Four months later, he returned to Hollywood to give the executive a piece of his mind. As he sat on the bench outside the office, the exec's secretary came out.

"Ah, my dear Mr. Soandso," ah'd the sec, "so sorry to keep you waiting."

M-G-M 'Rainbows' Chalks Up $19,173 In Des Moines Run

Des Moines—"Chasing Rainbows" (M-G-M) knocked 'em cold out here, rolling up a gross of $19,173 at the Paramount, which rated the run 225 per cent, high for this house in some time. Apparently the run took all the heavy dough, because it beat other attractions to a frazzle. The remaining five stands hit no higher than par, these including "Song of the West," "Her Private Affair," "This Thing Called Love," "Second Choice," "Other Tomorrow."

Chiselers De Luxe

Hollywood—Two scenario writers made a week-end trip to Agua Caliente. After a three-day tour of the race track, the boys started homeward. Reaching San Diego, they discovered gasoline was needed for the 140 miles to Hollywood. Both were broke.

Spotting a traffic cop, they stopped and gave him the old gag of "bet a dollar you can't button up your vest in 15 seconds." The cop lost and the pair collected two bucks. The gas tank was filled.

A few miles further on, they needed food—but no dough.

Stopping a Mexican in an old Ford, they sold him an old police badge for $3, telling him it would entitle him to break all traffic laws without penalty.

While spending the three dollars for dinner, they ran into a private chauffeur who had lost his party and car at Caliente and wanted a lift to Hollywood. The chauffeur drove the pair of writers back to town, while the chiselers enjoyed the scenery from the back seat of their sedan.

Fox Film In Lead At Boston, Where All Hit Average

Boston—Despite a pretty good line-up of feature product at downtown first runs, the entire eight stands played to only near-average business, with ratings running from 90 per cent to 110 per cent, the high going to "Men Without Women" at Keith's Memorial, where the Fox picture brought in $25,500. "Her Unborn Child," the week's low, did not fare badly, however, taking n $13,600 on a 90 per cent rating. "Anna Christie" failed to cause a ripple.

Entire First Run Lineup In Ottawa Takes A Nosedive

Ottawa—Exhibitors operating major first run stands here took a licking at the b. o., where less than $24,000 was taken in at the five theatres downtown. "Great Divide" (1st Nat'l), "Trespasser" (United Artists), "Grand Parade" (Pathe), "7 Days' Leave" (Paramount), "Navy Blues" (M-G-M) and "Sky Hawk" (Fox) all failed to hit par. Here's the story of the week's flops:

Weather: Fair.

First runs: "Sky Hawk," Regent; "Lummox," Imperial; "Navy Blues," Centre; "7 Days Leave" (3 days) and five RKO acts, Keith's; "Grand Parade" (3 days), and Victor male chorus with Geoffrey O'Hara, Keith's; "Trespasser," Avalon; "Great Divide," Avalon.

"Lummox" Draws 20 Grand, Tops Providence Runs

Providence—All three first run attractions playing this town held up to par, or better, in a good, but not sensational week. "Case of Sergeant Grischa" and "Slightly Scarlet" each rated 100 per cent, closely following the 110 per cent mark chalked up by "Lummox," which grossed $20,100.

The weather was clear and warm, offering no great b. o. obstacles. Complete record of local intake follows:

"CASE OF SERGEANT GRISCHA" (RKO)

Actually

It was in the offices of one of New York's circuits. The incoming young man announced breathlessly that he was a reporter for one of the theatrical weeklies.

"Any news for the front page today?" was his opening query.

"What d'ye mean front page?" asked the hardboiled p. a.

"I mean is there anything wrong with your company, any of your bosses in trouble with any women and—"

The door had slammed behind him.

Arliss the High Spot in "Balto"; '2nd Wife' Flops

Baltimore—Local exhibitors can't blame Lent for a crop of current flops, in view of the performance of George Arliss, who played "Green Goddess" at two houses simultaneously and ran miles ahead of all other local runs. At the Rivoli he cashed in $14,000, hitting the week's high-mark with 175 per cent. The simultaneous run at the Metropolitan, uptown, grossed $9,000, which means a rating of 150 per cent. Paramount's "Dangerous Paradise" grossed $14,000, but this figure only represented a 80 per cent rating at Loew's Stanley.

"Second Wife" (RKO) took a nose dive to 45 per cent, taking $2,970 at the Auditorium, and playing a grind from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. "Officer O'Brien" (Pathe) and "Troopers Three" (Tiffany), on a double bill, followed closely for the booby prize, grossing $4,400 and rating 55 per cent at Keith's.

Seven out of nine first runs in Baltimore fell below par. Their intake follows:

Weather: Clear and warm, to clear and cold with rain one day.

First runs: "Green Goddess" at the Metropolitan, uptown, and Rivoli, downtown; Jannings repertoire, showing "Last Command," "Patriot" and "Variety," each for two days, at the Little, art house; "Personality," with Bert Smith Players in acts and chorus, Hippodrome; "Troopers Three" and "Officer O'Brien," double bill, Keith's; "Second Wife," Auditorium; "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and Tom Waring in a singing and piano act, New Theatre; "Street of Chance," Loew's Parkway; "Lone Star Ranger," "Loew's Valencia; "Dangerous Paradise," Loew's Stanley; "Seven Days Leave" and Loew-Publix stage unit ("Land of Syncopation"), Loew's Century. Stage: "Babes in Toyland," "Vagabond King," "French Models."

Grosses on West Coast All Wet; Blame the Rain

Los Angeles—Heavy rains during the week proved a complete washout at most Hollywood and Los Angeles major-run houses, where usually high intakes took a heavy tumble to low levels. Because of the first local showing of "Song of the West," gross at the Warner Downtown skyrocketed to $28,000, a 187 per cent rating for the house. Fox's "Happy Days" was the only other good performer, taking in $16,400, on a 131 per cent rating at the Carthay Circle.

"Men Without Women" (Fox) took a nosedive to $8,500 (85 per cent), at the Criterion. Next low was hit by First National's "Playing Around," chalking up 91 per cent or a $14,300 gross at the RKO. "Rogue Song" was affected in the downward slide, finishing the week with $18,200, rating 114 per cent.

The week's record at Hollywood and Los Angeles houses tells the story:

Weather: Rain.

All's Quiet in Portland, With 'Cohens' Leading

Portland, Ore.—Local exhibs blame slow business on early summer weather and the usual Lent influence, which dropped grosses to about par for the entire lineup. "Cohens and Kellys In Scotland" was the big thing for the week, rating 115 per cent, with a gross of $8,100. "Such Men Are Dangerous" brought $11,325 to the Broadway box-office, but this figure represented only 110 per cent for that house.

Lowest percentage was scored with Paramount's "Honey," which rated 90 per cent, despite the gross of $11,000 rolled up at the Paramount. "Lummox" (United Artists) ran about one shade ahead, rating 95 per cent on a $7,125 gross, lowest intake for the week. Here's the layout for all six houses:

Weather: Early summer, sunshine.

First runs: "Song of the West," Blue Mouse; "Love Racket" and Bob Hope and Harry Webb's Band, Adele Verne-Lime trio, RKO's Orpheum; "Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," Music Box; "Honey," Ron and Don at the Wurlitzer and Eddie Magill, "Crooning

Why Not Everywhere?

Chicago—One busy exec here who is frequently annoyed by long-winded telephone conversationalists has perfected a device by which the ear-piece of his phone may be clamped to a dictaphone and the caller permitted to rant to his heart's content. The device also helps to fix responsibility for errors in orders transmitted over the phone, as the dictaphone record, in cases where disputes arise later, can be hunted up and the original conversation reproduced.

Tibbett Grosses $20,000, "Happy Days "$30,000

Cleveland — Fox's "Happy Days" and "Wedding Rings" (First Nat'l) ran neck-and-neck in a stiff race for first run honors, copping the prize from Tibbett's "Rogue Song," which rated 130%, grossing $20,000, as compared with $30,000 box office by the first two.

"Lady to Love," Metro's initial Vilma Banky talker, took the booby prize. Vilma grossed $15,000, rating 75%

Rapid Technical Growth Prompted Local S. M. P. E.

M. W. Palmer heads the New York division of the Society of M. P. Engineers, which will be managed by T. E. Shea and M. C. Batsel. D. Hyndman was elected secretary-treasurer at the initial meeting of the new unit, an outgrowth of a movement started within the organization months ago when it became apparent that the regular Spring and Fall meetings of the parent body did not offer sufficient opportunity to discuss numerous important technical problems in the industry.

Definite action for a local group, which will embrace territory within a radius of 50 miles of New York, was taken last month and a committee appointed to formulate definite plans. One hundred and fifty Eastern members of the Society were lined up.

The New York group is the third S. M. P. E. body in the field. Last year, a group of West Coast engineers and technicians formed a Hollywood division, also associated with the parent organization.

The publicity and membership committees will meet on March 24 to pave the way for closer cooperation between the two and to complete plans for a drive for members. The confab will be held at the General Electric plant in Schenectady.

S. M. P. E. Fall Meet To Be Held Next Month

Convention committees of the S. M. P. E. are at work on plans for the annual Spring confab, to be held at Washington in April.

J. and E. R. Skirboll Take Over Theatre in San Diego

San Diego—Joe Skirboll, former sales manager of Sono Art-World Wide, and his brother, E. R. Skirboll, have reopened the Cabrillo, which has been dark since the new Fox house opened here. "Her Unborn Child" was the first picture. If they find business satisfactory they plan to take a long lease on the house, which has been under Fox West Coast control for several years.

"Queen High" in Rehearsal

Rehearsals of "Queen High" have been launched at the Paramount Long Island studio with Charles Ruggles, Frank Morgan, Ginger Rogers and Stanley Smith featured. This is the first of the Schwab and Mandel plays to be made under terms of the contract entered into some months ago between the stage producers and Paramount. Fred Newmeyer will direct.

"Rosalie" Next Davies

Hollywood—Marion Davies' next filmusical for M-G-M will be "Rosalie," from the musical comedy of same name. Gene Markey is adapting and dialoguing, for which several original songs will be composed to add to the numbers already available.

Radio Buys "Inside Lines"

"Inside The Lines," stage play by Earl Derr Biggers, has been purchased by Radio Pictures.

Abe Waxman's familiar high hat is taken for a ride. Greeting him on his arrival in L. A. are Max Shagrin, district manager, Warner West Coast Theatres; Harry Maizlish, exploitation head of the chain; Waxman, George Thomas, studio publicity chief, and Maurice Silver, general manager of Warner Theatres in the west.

Showman Becomes A Sleuth To Trap Double Crossers

San Antonio—Sherlock Holmes seems to have nothing on Nick Marosis, local showman. In 1927, while manager of the Palace, Marosis brought a troupe of 20 Russians from Mexico to appear in the presentation part of his theatre's program. As the Russians were aliens, Marosis was forced to put up $500 each for their "safe conduct" back across the Mexican border—a total of $10,000.

After the Russians played a week's engagement here, Marosis secured for them an engagement in Dallas. Instead of returning the Russians disbanded, letting Marosis hold the sack in the shape of a $10,000 bond.

At considerable expense and loss of time, Marosis trailed the Russians all over the country. Eventually he returned all but four to the government and they were deported. The remaining four, Marosis found, hd enlisted in the U. S. army in Fort Sill. When he asked for their custody, army authorities refused.

Last week, the enlistments of the quartet were over. Marosis turned the men over to the government, they were deported, and Marosis had his $10,000 bond returned to him.

Sunday Shows Lose Out in N. Y. on Technicalities

Rochester, N. Y.—Disqualification of a petition for Sunday pictures in Canisteo and a court injunction restraining the board of trustees from presenting a similar proposition to the voters in Newark prevent voters from passing on legalized Sunday shows. Canisteo is a village of 4,000. Newark has 7,000.

Supreme Court Justice Clyde W. Knapp granted a restraining order to Simon E. Hallagan, Newark citizen, on his complaint that 100 had not signed the petition presented to the board and the petition had not been filed before Mar. 1. Village officials in Canisteo ruled out the petition there on the grounds that two of its signers were not village residents.

Pathe Is In The Race For Strong Shorts in '30-'31

Culver City—Pathe proposes to take second place for nobody in the keen, competitive race which will mark the short subject market next season.

The company is set to go and plans to make fifty-two in color, sound and music under supervision of E. B. Derr, in eight different series: "Checker Comedies," one of last season's brands; "Manhattan Comedies," sophisticated type of farce; "Campus Comedies," dealing with college life; "Follies Comedies," short revues; "Rodeo Comedies," with a Western background, and in color; "Whoopee Comedies," musical and novelty shorts; "Rainbow Comedies," another color group, and "Melody Comedies."

47 Players on Lot

The stock unit has been enlarged to 47 regular players, including:

Enlarging Space for Shorts

Two stages are being devoted exclusively to comedies and $250,000 is being spent for a complete comedy village. New sound projection rooms and executive offices are being rushed.

William Woolfenden is supervisor of scenarios. Josiah Zuro, director general of music for Pathe, will also act in a supervisory capacity for music in comedies.

Five directors are now at work. They are Arch Heath, Robert De Lacy, Fred Guiol, Wallace Fox and Monte Carter. Carter is to direct two-reel musical comedies. Charles Younger is in charge of sound recording and John Mescall is chief cameraman.

Heavy Production Drive At Para. Coast Studio

Hollywood—Seven features are occupying all sound stage on the Paramount lot, where the company has launched a heavy spring program. One unit is shooting a Spanish version of "The Benson Murder Case." The others include:

Frank Tuttle, who is directing Clara Bow in "True to the Navy," with Frederic March heading the support; Edmund Goulding making Nancy Carroll's "Devil's Holiday"; Rowland V. Lee on "The Return of Dr. Fu Manchu," nearing completion; Louis Gasnier and Max Marcin co-directing "City of Silent Men," starring William Powell; Edward Sutherland shooting "High Society," the first Jack Oakie starring opus: and Otto Brower and Edwin Knopf, co-directing Richard Arlen, Fay Wray and Jack Holt, in "Border Legion."

Universal: No increase in trouble. Situation unchanged except for increased time required to obtain a court judgment.

RKO: Slight increase in number of repudiations of contract. Several cases on hand that may be taken to court.

Paramount: Practically no trouble over pick-ups and none over protection. New contract includes an arbitration clause on which immediate judgment can be secured in law court. Considered an advantage. Full control of release of prints negates protection difficulties.

Pathe: Slight increase in shows not played, but believes existing conditions in the industry are more to blame than the new contract.

First National: Increase in shows left on the floor. Several court cases in preparation.

Columbia: No difference noted to date. Satisfied with conditions as they are.

FRANK CAMBRIA, assisted by Ray Cozine and Dan Reed, is now directing "Leave It to Lester" at the Paramount Long Island studios, featuring Lester Allen, Evelyn Hoey and Hal Thompson. This production is the first feature to consist of four reels and gives rise to the question, "Is it a short long (picture) or a long short?" Making a long story short, we find that the long and short of it is—no—yes—that is, we mean—aw, who started this argument, anyhow?

Sailor Beware

(United Artists—All Talker)

Pretty Hot; Watch It

(Reviewed by Walter R. Greene)

STARTING off as a wise-cracking comedy with Edmund Lowe spouting plenty of broad dialogue that leaves nothing to the imagination, "Sailor Beware" switches about the half-way point to melodrama.

The picture shapes up as a good prospect for satisfactory business in the key city week stands, but is very likely to run into difficulties in smaller communities where "hot" sequences and dialogue might prove objectionable.

Dolores Del Rio is just satisfactory, Lowe is a standout, and George Fitzmaurice took advantage of every opportunity to heat up situations and dialogue.

Lowe is a tough sailor on the "make." Del Rio is an entertainer in a French seaport cafe. Lowe attempts a "pushover," fails, and then persuades the girl to marry him. Another sailor appears; fight over the girl, and second sailor is killed. Lowe, sentenced to an island prison, gives Del Rio the air plenty. The girl, now deeply in love, gets to the island when a prison break occurs. Lowe saves the day, realizes their love and gets his pardon for the final clinch.

Sarah and Son

(Paramount—All Talker)

Fine Women's Picture

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

THE palm leaf goes to Ruth Chatterton for a performance finished in artistry and competence. She gives to the picture the appeal which "Sarah and Son" will hold for women patronage, and that is considerable.

The yarn is another mother-love-for-son story, covers thirteen years, and describes the heartache, the struggle and the pain through which Miss Chatterton passes before her child is returned to her. The opening reels are powerful, for which Miss Chatterton's performance, plus the able direction of Dorothy Arzner, must be credited. The middle portions and the end are far behind the opening, a fact which is unfortunate for the picture as a whole.

In this, the lead effects a German accent and does it extremely well. That, however, is further typical of the general excellent work which Miss Chatterton has contributed to talkers since her advent.

Two reel comedies will go well with this.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Story based on novel of same name by Timothy Shea. Directed by Dorothy Arzner. Dated by Zoe Atkins. Photographed by Charles Lang. Length, 7,740 feet. Running time, 86 minutes.

Rip Snortin' Western

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

IF you exhibitors who have been squawking about scarcity of Westerns don't book this, you're falling down on the job, and badly, because Ken Maynard packs more thrilly action here than can be found in a half dozen of the usual cut-and-dried Western features.

The story is not to be taken seriously. It has been whipped into form to provide Maynard with every opportunity to do his stuff—and Ken takes full advantage of the assignment. There's a cross-country race in this which is hair-raising. A group of saddle experts ride the plains and cliffs to win a prize of $5,000 and during the run Maynard and his horse, Tarzan, give an unusual performance. They have to buck the dirty workings of a click of bad hombres, and for a time Ken is placed in a bad spot. He comes through in fine style, wins the girl, etc.

Run a cartoon and two-reel comedy for a well-rounded bill.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Directed by Harry J. Brown. Photographed by Ted McCord. Story and Dialogue by Marion Jackson. Film Editor, Fred Allen. Title Writer, Lesley Mason. Length 5,785 feet. Running time, 64 minutes. Release Dat March 2, 1930.

Young Eagles

(Paramount—All Talker)

Air Programmer Diverting

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

PARAMOUNT assigned Buddy Rogers in another pursuit plane and turned him loose again on the Germans in "Young Eagles." Several war sequences, reminiscent of "Wings," furnish a lively interlude occasionally, especially since studio sound engineers add weird noises to what are apparently perfectly good battle scenes from an old picture.

An entirely different touch is developed in the plot. The story has made a "good guy" out of a captured German war ace who steals Buddy's clothes and an Allies' plane to escape. The heroine is a secret service operative who works within the German's own espionage system, providing plenty of interest. William Wellman did an excellent job of direction. Jean Arthur highlights as the girl, while Paul Lukas, Stuart Erwin and Virginia Bruce are notable performers in a capable cast.

Geared as a program picture with Buddy Rogers starred, "Young Eagles" will do that calibre of business generally, with the youngsters and those liking air adventure to help grosses. Don't promise too much.

Good comedies fit in here.

Produced and released by Paramount. From stories "The One Who Was Clever" and "Sky High," by Elliott White Springs. Directed by William Wellman. Adaptation and dialogue by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt. Photographed by A. J. Stout. Length, 6,406 feet. Runniing time, about 71 minutes. Released April 5, 1930.

Mountain Justice

(Universal—All Talker)

O. K. for Maynard Fans

(Reviewed by Don Ashbaugh)

"MOUNTAIN JUSTICE" is Ken Maynard's answer to requests for good lively melodrama, entirely without subtlety but with lots of entertainment. The locale is a Kentucky mountain village, and there is shooting, some breath-taking driving and riding, some fairly good humor and a suggestion of romance.

Ken is the likeable hero as always. Kathryn Crawford makes the role of the little school teacher both attractive and natural. Her costumes are particularly well chosen. As a matter of fact, the production boasts a capable cast with Otis Harlan supplying much of the humor and Paul Hurst the villainy. Harry J. Brown directs.

New twists are given the plot in the hero's simulation of deafness, while the "shindig" is a jolly sort of affair for audience. Miss Crawford reveals a pleasant singing voice, her rendition of "Buffalo Gals" during a thrilling fight providing some of the highlights.

All told, a fast moving and highly satisfactory program release that will get a real reception from Maynard fans.

Musical shorts will combine well with this for a balanced program.

Produced by Ken Maynard. Released by Universal. Directed by Harry J. Brown. Story by Bennett Cohen. Dialogue by Lesley Mason. Photographed by Ted McCord. Length, 6,748 feet. Running time, 74 minutes. Release date, May 18, 1930.

Strange Case of D.A. "M"

(Unusual Photoplays—Silent)

Dull Picture

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

A DERUSSA production of Russia before the Revolution, presenting a domestic triangle and crook story, which doesn't click. It's overacted and carries but little interest for American audiences, save as a comparison or contrast of American, versus German-Russian production methods.

It's all about the wife of a district attorney, who is a wife in name only, and carries on an affair with an adventurer. When she refuses him the heavy dough he is trying to promote, he threatens to expose her letters and attacks her. She kills him and, sure enough, the husband is assigned to the case. When he finds that the evidence points to his wife's guilt, he orders her prosecuted, and then resigns. She is freed, however.

The picture is alleged to have been banned by the Soviet government, but the reason isn't apparent. It has a fair cast that inclines to overact to a degree, which makes the picture something of a bore. All in all, it's pretty bad. The American public demands better fare than this for its entertainment value. Thumbs down on this one.

Two-reel comedies—good ones—will help.

Produced by Derussa Film Co. Distributed by Unusual Photoplays. Directed by Meinert. Photographed by Farkas and Borsody. Length, about 6,800 feet. Running time, 98 minutes. Release date, March, 1930.

The Week's Lineup Of Short Subjects

"Don't Believe It"

(Christie-Paramount—2 Reels)

Laughs with Jimmy Gleason

A THOROUGHLY enjoyable farce with plenty of laughs via the antics of James Gleason, who is starred. Gleason is scheduled to go to a musical show, "Florida," with his wife, but has too many drinks and is put on a boat bound for the state by his well-meaning friends.

He comes back in a taxi—still under the weather—and his wife and brother attempt to scare him into signing the pledge. Gleason puts over plenty of comedy in portraying the drunk husband. Running time about 17 minutes.

Swell where feature needs a laugh-provoker to build it up.

"Audio Review No. 12"

(Pathe—Sound—1 Reel)

Good Enough

ENTERTAINING, but not unusually so. Terry Ramsaye dug deep into the files and brought out interesting sidelights of notables of yesteryear—"famous, notorious and otherwise." Ramsaye follows this up with the Catfish Band, of Sapulpa, a musical unit which combines jazz with Isaak Walton's pet hobby, out in Oklahoma. Colorful shots of Cape Cod, Provincetown, and the influence of those wild Greenwich Villagers on the peaceful Plymouth town closes the reel. Running time, 10 minutes.

Light feature material will couple effectively with this.

"Down with Husbands"

(Christie-Paramount—2 Reels)

Average Farce

ADAPTED from a rather old vaudeville sketch, "Down With Husbands," is not original, but nevertheless has a number of laughs provided through ridiculous situations.

The story presents the belligerent wives of a town who decide to go on strike. In an uproar, the husbands also organize for their protection. At the finish, the leaders of each factor are a group of three married couples, who make up to end the strike. Johnny Arthur and Bert Roach are featured. Running time about 17 minutes.

Nice offset for heavy feature.

"The Beauty Spot"

(Pathe—Talker—2 Reels)

Same Old Stuff

DORIS DAWSON, the Wampas baby star featured in this two-reel semi-musical comedy with Bobby Carney, is good to look at. And that's the only recommendation we can give "The Beauty Spot." One of the two reels is taken up with poor comedy and the second harps on a musical display which is none too hot, either. Running time, 21 minutes.

The feature must be good. Do not use a musical comedy.

"Topics of the Day"

(Pathe—Talker—1 Reel)

A Pleasing Change

VAN BEUREN hit upon an entertaining gag to spiel the humor culled from the country's press. Any change over the old form which featured the "professor" and "Nifty" would be an improvement. The new presentation centers around a clever layout in a newspaper office and has real color. They'll like it. Running time, 8 minutes.

Where your feature is heavy, this will fit.

"The Musicale"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 936—1 Reel)

Very Good

AL TRAHAN and Lady Yukona Cameron pair off at a musicale given in the home of a society matron, where Trahan rattles off a funny spiel and entertains with piano selections. How that boy entertains is nobody's business. He is clever at the keys and his chatter is funny, as evidenced by the constant roar of laughter at the screening where this was caught. Running time, 9 minutes.

Good material to couple with a dramatic feature.

"The Land of St. Patrick"

(Emmett Moore-Silent—1 Reel)

Good Travelogue

HERE'S an interesting and well photographed travelogue, taking the spectator for a visit to the auld sod. It covers many points of interest, including Dublin, Kilkenny and Cork, the famous Blarney castle with its Blarney Stone and the Lakes of Killarney. It's a good subject for an Irish bill, or wherever a silent travelogue can be spotted. Running time, 10 mins.

Tie in with Irish feature for splendid combination.

"Then and How"

(Vitaphone Varieties No. 937—1 Reel)

Clever Stuff

BILLY and Elsa Newell give their interpretation of front-door courtship when Hector was a pup, and as it's done today. Quite a difference. The gag is worked by the duo in a clever manner. Fine entertainment. Running time, 10 minutes.

Run with a feature which needs comedy relief.

Music License Action Is Filed vs. Spokane House

Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and Villa-Moret, Inc., have brought suit in the Federal Court at Spokane to restrain Guy Merrill and A. H. McDermott, owners and operators of the Gem at Omak, from using music which a copyright is claimed.

More Music Men for M-G-M

Hollywood—Although M-G-M has a staff of over 65 composers, lyricists, orchestra conductors and arrangers, additions are being made to the music department every week. Newcomers include Charles Drury, conductor of orchestras, Arthur Lang, Dr. William Axt, Sam Wineland and Paul Lamkoff.

Lund in Florida

Oscar Lund, who has already made four song sketches produced by the Van Beuren Corp. for Pathe, is on location in Florida, where he is now at work on "Deep South" and "Homing." "Deep South" will feature old-time Southern melodies and "Homing" will be based on the ballad of the same name.

"U" Signs Fort

Hollywood—Garrett Fort has been signed by Universal as a dialogue writer.

High and Low Along Music Row

A NEW stunt in radio exploitation of songs was introduced by Remick, Inc., publishers of the songs in the Warner production, "Under a Texas Moon," when a playlet with the plot revolving around a man and a girl, served as the background for the musical number, "Under a Texas Moon." This program will be a regular feature over station WABC.

Two years ago Donovan Parsons and Vivian Ellis wrote "I Never Dreamt You'd Fall in Love With Me" and, not being able to find a publisher for the song, took it to England, where the number was spotted in the musical revue, "Will-O-The Whispers," and published by Campbell-Connelly & Co., Ltd. The song was an overnight sensation and naturally has found its way back home. The American rights have been secured by Santly Brothers, who have made the tune their No. 1 plug. Now those publishers who turned the number down can join in the chorus, "I Never Dreamt" that it would be such a hit.

A very unusual thing happened last week when critics in their reviews of "Lord Byron of Broadway" were so impressed by the song number, "Should I," as to put on a rave about it. Jack Robbins sure must have enjoyed reading the newspaper opinions that day.

Give the li'l gal a hand. The gal in question being Martha Wilchinsky, who keeps us posted on the wherefore and how of activities at the Roxy. Martha, who some time ago wrote 'If Love Were All," has again done some lyricing and has written "Little Son," with Dr. Billy Axt doing the music.

Bob King sez, "Did you hear the new song, A Little Hiss each morning, A Little Hiss Each Night"? Yeah, Bob, but what do you think of the feller who, on his way back from a vacation at Havana, stops off in Florida and writes a song called "California Sunshine"?

P. S. 92 in Brooklyn must have had a very fine music teacher back in 1912 B. T. (Before Theme songs). Here are some of the songsters who learned their readin' 'n' writin' 'n' 'rithmetic there. Jimmy Rule, of Robbins Music Corp., his brother Bert, who is with Santly Brothers, Ray Sherwood, writer of "Dreamy Hawaii," Eddie Buzzell, Broadway stage and screen star, Joe Zimmerman, writer of "Dancing Dominoes," and Felix Bernard, writer of that former hit, "Dardanella."

The songsters are getting the tuxedos out of the cedar chests, closets or wherever it is that this particular garment is kept (we're not so fortunate), for the annual meeting and banquet to be held by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers at the Ritz-Carlton Thursday, March 27. Some of the boys had better make friends with the tailor.

You've got to take your hats off to Abe Olman and Lon Mooney when it comes to getting plugs for Forster songs. These boys were largely responsible for the success of "I Get the Blues When It Rains" and are doing the same for "That's Why I'm Jealous of You" and "Because There's a Change in You."

* * *

Frank Goodman, of Handman & Goodman, Inc., not only came back from California with a contract from Universal, but also brought his young son, Tommy, a real lariat from Ken Maynard.

Row with Censors Over "Party Girl" Keeps Chi Talking

Interest is centering on what will happen when Tiffany's "Party Girl" opens at the Woods.

The censor board here has turned thumbs down on the picture, but the Woods' management says it goes in regardless, and will probably ask an injunction restraining the censors from interfering with the showing.

Regardless of what the outcome may be, Film Row is mildly agog over the outcome.

'Titanograph' Curiosity Swells Receipts at B. O.

A local exhibitor, balked in using the words Magnascreen and Grandeur screen, by the priority rights of others showing the big fillums, was stumped for a descriptive advertising word.

He finally hit upon "Titanograph" and billed it big. Word was an immediate success, as no one in his locality had any idea what it meant, and the curious stormed the box office to get their peep at the innovation.

Jed Kiley, a former Chicago newspaperman, now doing dialogue on the Coast for Universal, is a boy with a history. Not to go too far back into things, it is readily recalled that Jed, as a night club proprietor extraordinary in Paris, was a greater draw for his College Inn there than any competing floor show in the Latin Quarter spots. On the spot when Lindbergh landed, he nearly succeeded in taking complete charge of the new arrival, to the embarrassment of the late Myron Herrick and to the great glee of Hank Wales, Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, for whom the stunt was attempted. The Prince of Wales was one of the frequent visitors of more than local repute at Jed's fun places. At one time during a waiters' strike, Wales was reported among those who donned aprons and helped out with the glass service. At another time, Jed announced to his guests that at great cost to the management he had secured the Prince of Wales for a song and dance act for one night only. Unknown to Kiley, who expected Wales merely to drop in before the evening was over, the heir to the British throne had already entered unrecognized and heard the announcement. Sportsman that he is, the prince made his way to the piano and rendered "Tipperary."

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

"Keep Plugging"

IT'S been a long, long time since the building contractors in Rome found it would take them more than a day to complete their task, so why should we expect the evils (or whatever else you want to call 'em) to be wiped out overnight in the show business?

We are for the managers, first, last and always, but we want to inject plain, common horse sense into every one of our arguments on their behalf. If we fail to do so, our arguments will hold no weight and we'll get nowhere at all.

It is no new angle for us to shout about "loyalty to your organization." We've done that time and again, because we honestly felt, and still feel, that you can gain more by plugging at your present job than scouting around looking for another.

Yesterday we entertained at luncheon a manager from a city nearby who told us that he had just connected with a small chain and in getting the assignment he was given an hour and a half talk by the general manager impressing him with the fact that if he "plugged for his circuit" he would get far and win plenty of promotion and recognition.

Did he leave that G.M. full of pep and rarin' to go?

He did NOT!

Why?

Because that particular circuit has earned one of the worse reputations in the business for hiring and firing managers. And in most cases without any sensible excuse or reason for doing so.

Then there are other managers working for similar outfits who tell us that they have no ambition to plug because they feel that any day will mean "curtains" for them. Which is certainly rotton for the morale of any outfit.

There is much to be said from both viewpoints in connection with a discussion of this kind. Perhaps the manager feels he is getting the worst end of the deal, and then again, maybe the circuit chiefs are right in acting as they do. We are not sitting in judgment of either side. We are merely trying to point to sound business tactics in what we are telling you. Tactics which are responsible for the success of many a well-known commercial outfit.

If our own candid viewpoint were solicited from the circuit's angle, we would say: "A manager has a right to form his opinion of the people he is going to work for by virtue of their past performances with other managers, just as the circuits form their opinions from what they find out about the past performances of the manager they want to hire."

And since a good rule must work both ways it sounds like pretty fair logic. "Chick"

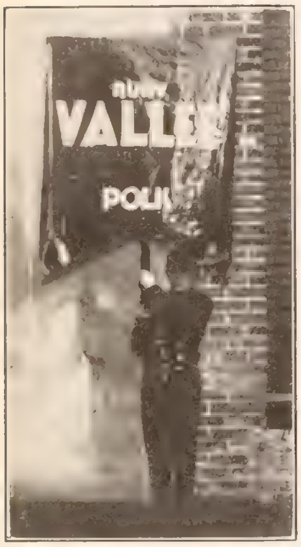
MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Bolivar Hyde's Work Is Certain To Be Of Great Interest

"Welcome news" is what we term news of Bolivar Hyde, Jr.'s, activities, for whenever this department looks over his work we generally know that there's something interesting to report and this time it concerns Bolivar's exploiting of "Vagabond Lover" and "Painted Angel," both of which pictures went over with a bang.



The little youngster in the photograph we are reproducing in this column is one of Bolivar's page boys, who on the occasion of "Vagabond Lover's" booking was dressed up in his spick and span uniform, and paraded about the city of Lakeland, Fla., carrying a banner that boosted the picture and the Polk Theatre, of which house of course Bolivar is the manager. The banner was made up in red and gold, the picture's title being in gold, and the background red, and with such striking colors as these it was a cinch that the stunt would gather all the attention necessary to sell the picture, and no doubt the youngster carrying the banner came in for his share of attention too, which makes us believe that Bolivar planned it that way, as it certainly is a masterly stroke to use one of his service staff as a new ballyhoo touch, for the kid probably knows half of Lakeland. Right Bolivar?

Another stunt we want to comment on is the way Bolivar tied-up with the local Ford Dealer, at the time the new model Ford came out a month or so ago, and arranged to display a model of the car in the Polk's lobby, and in return the dealer was to carry quarter page newspaper ads daily for a week announcing that in conjunction with the "Painted Angel," at the Polk, the new model Ford would be on display. In this way Bolivar secured rafts of publicity for the picture and the house, on the regular "paid" space and at no cost to himself. Thus proving that when a showman is wide awake, as he always should be, there's a million and one ways of securing free publicity and attracting more dollars to the box office window, so since we have always given Bolivar credit for being alert we can repeat that the pictures went over with a bang.

We want to hear more of Bolivar's activities, because as we said, we can always find something to pass on to the rest of the CLUB.

Pearl Had a Fine Herald Which Was Doubly Effective

A corking atmospheric herald made up in conjunction with the showing of "The Sky Hawk," served as the basis for a smashing exploitation campaign promoted by Manager Pearl of the Revere Theatre in Revere, Mass., and his assistant Mac L. Glazier.

The herald, in addition to selling the picture, carried a coupon giving the reader an opportunity to secure a free airplane ride by sending or bringing the coupon to the manager's office. Pearl effected a tie-up with local airport officials who agreed to furnish the ride free in return for the advertising of the firm's name which was featured on the herald.

It is interesting to note that the coupon angle was used by Pearl in an effort to find out the interest value it would sustain, and the enormous amount of coupons which were returned proved the value of the angle in question, besides aiding Pearl in securing a mailing list, since the ticket left a blank for the name and address.

During the run of the film, the airplane company provided Pearl with framed pictures of various spots of beauty to be seen on the air trip from Boston to New York, and also provided him with a miniature plane, which was put in the lobby and attracted considerable interest and comment. With the rest of their campaign, Pearl and Glazier were able to put the picture across successfully in a very showmanlike manner and we would like them to keep us posted on their future activities.

Fashion Shows Again!

Apparently there will be more Fashion Revues staged in theatres this year than ever before and we are delighted that we were instrumental in stimulating this marvelous stunt among so many of our members and readers.

Resnick's story last week helped out in the plans for the preliminaries leading up to these events and the files of the Club pages from last Fall gave many other added angles as a result of the Fall Fashion Shows.

Now that these suggestions are becoming facts, we hope that those members who engineer one of these box office boosters, will be sure to send us all the details.

Larry Goux Now Cashing In Plenty On His Kiddie Biz

The discussion we opened not so long ago, whereby we declared that Saturday Matinee business could be jacked up to the skies, providing the "old bean" was used more often, certainly was productive of results. As a matter of fact, a week after we ran the first article dealing with this phase of show selling, ideas began pouring in thick and fast. Stamp clubs were being inaugurated, school children tickets were being used, special western features were being booked in, and every showman in the ROUND TABLE CLUB seemed determined to show us what he was doing to boost up his Saturday business. In this manner we received many novel angles and were gratefully enabled to pass them on to any of the CLUB members who were wondering how to jack up the box office with Kiddie biz.

One of the best ideas we have come across, on the Saturday Matinee angle, was used by Larry Goux, manager of the Rivoli Theatre in Pendleton, Oregon, and had to do with the forming of a "Mickey Mouse Club," the idea of which, as you know, is derived from the popular Mickey Mouse Cartoons, that have been proving a big favorite throughout the country, so it was only natural, when these clever animations started to click, for the showman to start plugging them right and left.

In order to explain more clearly we are reprinting the membership ticket in Larry's "Mickey Mouse Club."

MICKEY MOUSE CLUB

This week I have
Been diligent in my school work;
Been considerate of my teacher;
Been friendly to fellow students;
Been thoughtful of my parents;
Been consistent in work at home;
Been helpful to those who needed my help.

Signed..

To all of which my mother
or my father agrees..
Address..

You will note from the ticket the clever way he has devised to secure the good-will of the youngsters' parents and teachers. The ticket was first printed in a big ad, carried in the local newspapers, and stated the object and reason for the forming of the club—the standards of which are to encourage: obedience, school attendance, diligent school work, and loyalty to the country.

Larry's showmanship again is in evidence in the tie-up he made with the local newspaper, by crashing the front page with a big story on the new club and an announcement to the effect that all films shown at the "Mickey Mouse Club" Matinees would be specially selected for the children and would be okayed by the Pendleton Better Films Committee. We surmise that the Better Films Committee must be a powerful faction around the district and if such be the case Larry must certainly be commended on his strategic move.

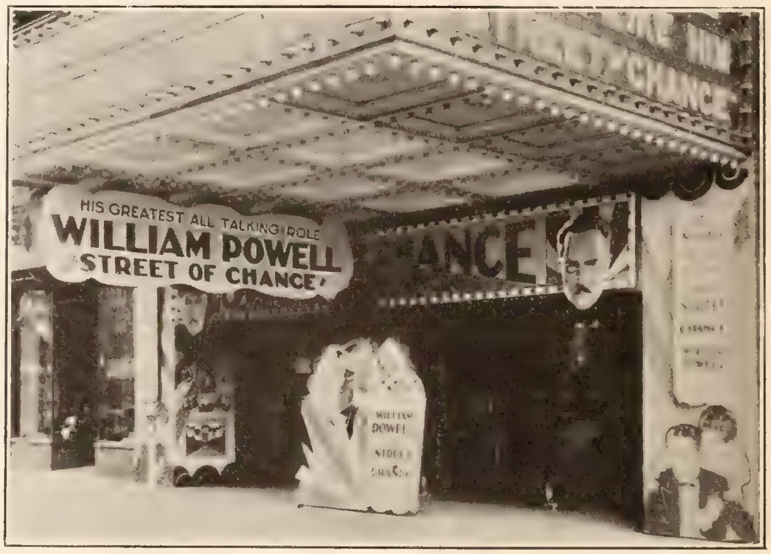
Special prices, somewhat lower than usual, were arranged by Larry for the Saturday Matinees with the discount being given only to the "Mickey Mouse Club" members and we don't doubt but that the good-will and publicity Larry derives from this stunt more than repays him. We want to thank him for passing along this idea, and let him know that we could never get tired telling the world about this kind of up-to-the-minute showmanship.

Harry Herman Sure Takes An Interest In His Business

When it came time to let the people know that he had an attraction that was way out of the ordinary, Harry Herman, Manager of the Paramount Theatre at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, set about to let the front of the theatre speak the volumes that he wanted to convey to their minds that here was something they ought to pay their money at the box office to see.

The photograph with this story shows how he successfully set out to change the entire appearance of the front of the theatre. You will notice that the regular poster frames, facing on the street, were completely covered with beaverboard, upon which was mounted the stills and 11 x 14 and 22 x 28 cards on the picture.

A center piece setting, on an easel, made a most attractive front under this fine piece of work, and the title and snappy selling line which were lettered on separate panels of the beaverboard and set in relief gave a most attractive appearance to the entire display.



It is hardly necessary for us to go into a "rave" about anything that Harry Herman puts across because we have already told you so much about him in past issues of the Club pages, but this is just another example of his fine showmanship, and it is a pleasure for us to be able to pass it along, for whatever it is worth, to our other members and readers.

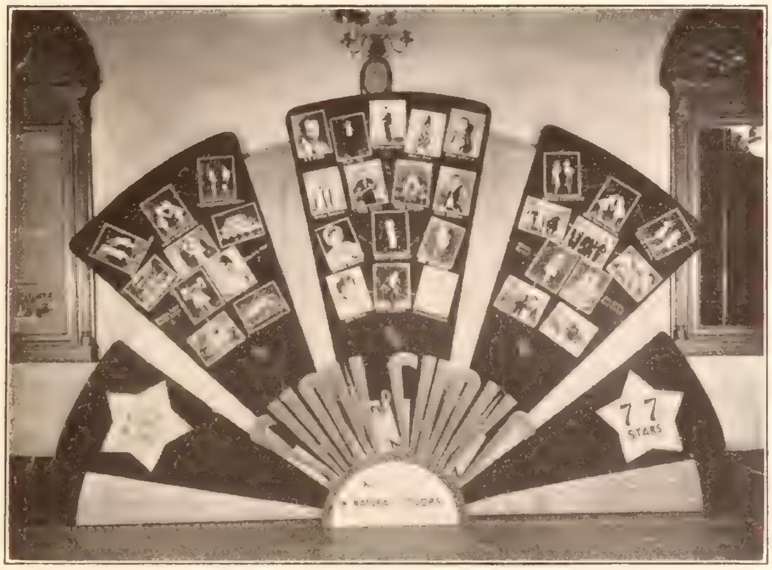
Shewell's Display In Lobby Created Lots Of Interest

When it comes to pulling off fast exploitation stunts you'll generally find George E. Shewell, exploitation manager of the York Theatres in York, Pa., way out in front trying to attract extra biz to the box office, as witness a few of the gags he pulled in connection with the recent showing of "Show of Shows" at the Strand Theatre in York.

We are reproducing a photo of his unique display board on the picture. As you will notice it is shaped like a fan and carries stills of the principal stars and scenes in the film. This attracted considerable comment when placed in the lobby for a ten-day flash before play date. After the picture had opened the display was placed in a large window at the Hotel Yorktowne through a tie-up with the Postal Telegraph, and did much to draw attention to the attraction.

Shewell also made up five thousand paper bags, bearing play date and theatre copy, in addition to listing the stars of the picture, which were given to the local dealers, who distributed them with every purchase.



So many swell exploitation angles and ideas on the "Show of Shows" have been submitted to us that we had about decided that if the rest of the material on the picture contributed did not warrant passing on to the rest of the CLUB we'd let it die an easy death, but Shewell's idea strikes us as being something a little out of the ordinary in make-up and we're glad of the opportunity to pass it on, for perhaps some of the boys may have a spot in their lobby that needs a little "brightening up."

Thanks, Shewell, whenever a publicity director or an exploitation manager has something that really justifies passing on we're only too glad to do it. Let's hear some more from you.

R. E. Martin Sells Pictures By Using Every Good Angle

Plenty of front page newspaper publicity was secured by R. E. Martin, manager of the Royal Theatre in Columbus, Ga., when "Phantom of the Opera" played his house.

Martin tied up with the local newspaper and the newspaper ran stories on the front page to the effect that all the teachers in the Columbus schools were invited to be the guests of the paper and the theatre to witness the picture. Special press tickets were issued by the paper to all teachers applying for them.

Another stunt Martin engineered was a ballyhoo gag in which a man dressed in a phantom red gown and wearing a plumed hat and mask, paraded about the streets of Columbus advertising the picture and the theatre. Through a valuable tie-up with the local radio station, Martin was enabled to make five broadcasts, of five minutes each, in which he stressed the educational as well as the entertainment value of the picture.

"Tod" Browning Of Boston Is Showing His Usual Activity

New angles or old ones make no difference to the live-wire publicity expert of the Metropolitan Theatre in Boston, Mass., as he takes all he can get and then hollers for more. We refer to our friend Harry "Tod" Browning, who is always cooking up something tasty to hand to the patrons of the theatre and his activities around the Hub have been the source of lots of interesting material.

"Tod" has been very busy recently telling Boston all about Ted Lewis, who with his stage band, made a personal appearance at the Met. A tie-up with a nationaly known manufacturer of musical instruments enabled him to secure a spot for the theatre in an ad which was run by the musical instrument company, as a plug for Lewis's endorsement of their product.

On the same program was the picture "Slightly Scarlet," so "Tod" hustled out and promoted a tie-up with a local furrier. The plan consisted of having the furrier run an ad in the local papers announcing that Miss "Slightly Scarlet" would appear at the fur salon during the noon hours and for the first person to identify her, a prize of twenty-five dollars, was offered. This stunt created plenty of excitement around the city and he cleaned up on the publicity.

In the lounge room of the Met, "Tod", through the co-operation of a prominent sporting goods dealer, arranged to have a number of golf professionals appear daily and give lessons and talks, absolutely free. The lounge room was pepped up a lot by the showing of the latest golfing outfits, with trophies also being on display.

The golf gag came in for plenty of play on the sporting pages of the local newspapers and the theatre did not have to expend any dough advertising it, and judging from the way the lounge room was jammed from opening to closing, the stunt came in for a lot of word of mouth publicity.

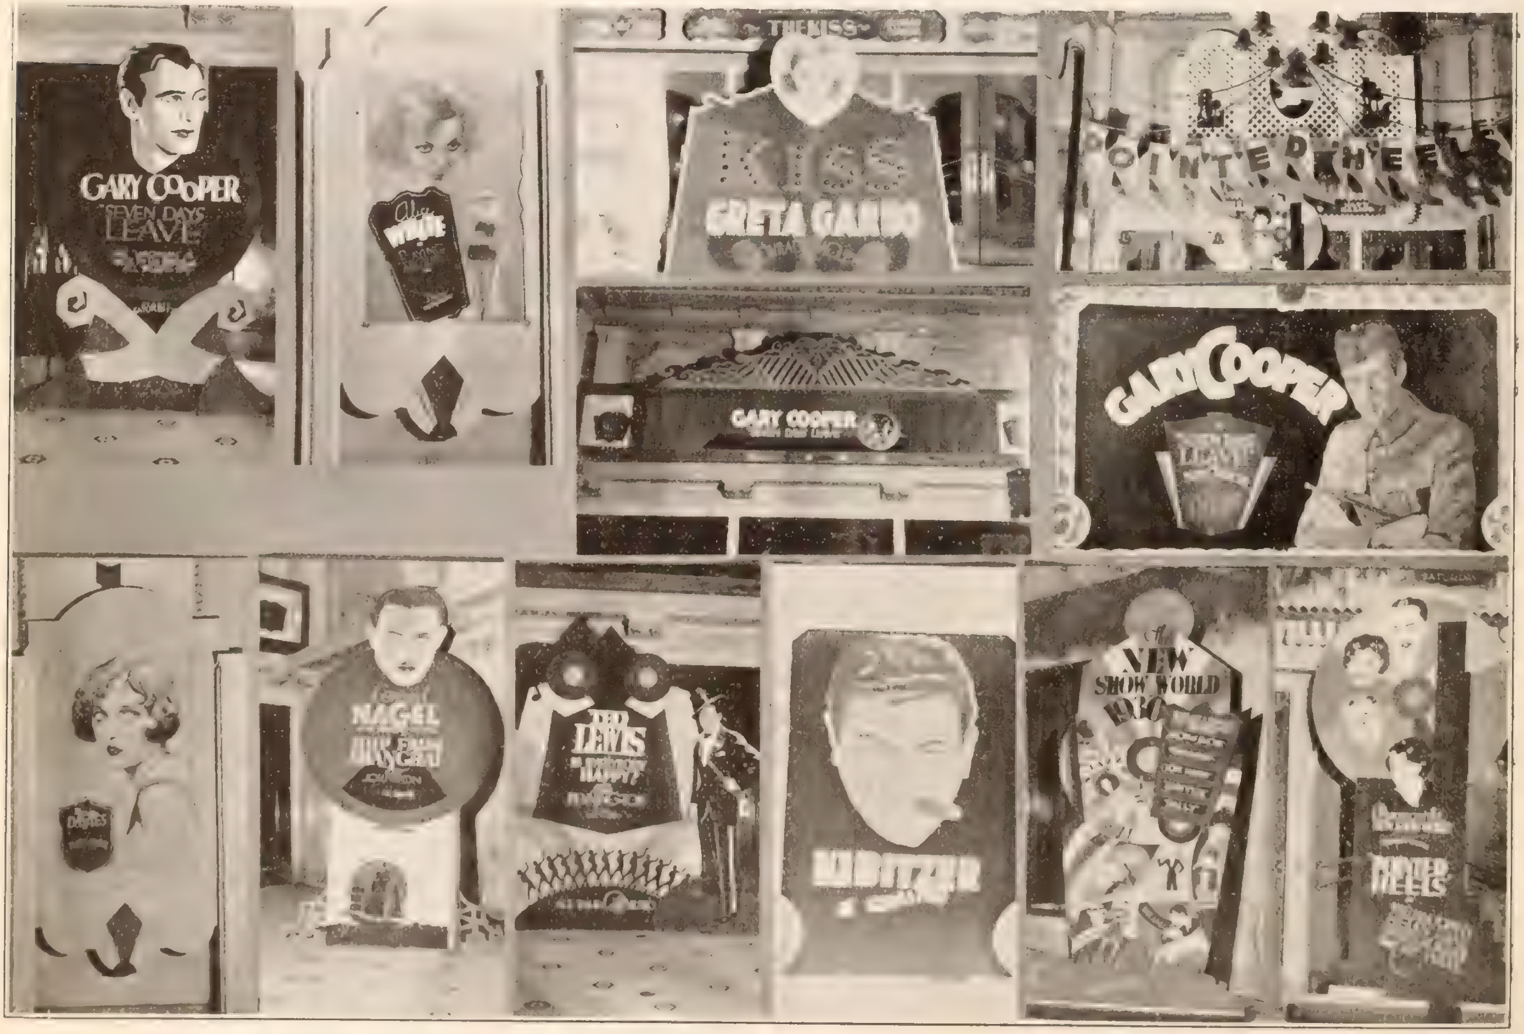
Oak, "Tod," we're glad to see that you're still as active as ever up around Boston and don't forget, the Club pages are always open to tell the rest of the Club about your showmanlike activities.

THEATRE ART WORK

Art work around the theatre will always constitute a most important part of any showman's activities. Here we show you how Irwin R. Waite, manager of the Majestic Theatre in Austin, Texas, together with his artist, William Heckman, work out attractive and interesting art displays for that theatre.

Whether your lobby or foyer is attractive or not, matters very little; you can dress up any lobby with bright looking displays just as Irwin did at the Majestic.

If you are overlooking this angle, you are passing up a great bet. Pay more attention to your displays and your public will pay more attention to your theatre.



MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Laurence Sold the Town on Festival Month to Big Biz.

Through a valuable tie-up with his local newspaper, H. L. Laurence, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Paris, Tenn., was enabled to secure, free of charge, some valuable publicity on his February Festival Month which he recently inaugurated in Paris.

Just to give you an idea of how strongly Laurence "pulls" with the local sheet we are reproducing a picture of the page he pushed, which in addition to carrying a four column story, with a big streamer head on the Festival Month, also carried his newspaper ads for the first week of the "festivities," and as this was the first time a gag of this sort had been pulled in Paris, you can bet it clicked. Incidentally, if you look closely, you'll notice the nice make-up of Laurence's ads, which even though they are mostly made up from mats, still show signs of care in the layout and as a consequence look very attractive and convey everything Laurence is selling. On the bottom of the ad you will notice that Laurence is already plugging his advance "serial," by giving it a prominent place in his advertising, and it is "plugging" of this sort that does a lot towards selling short subjects.

Some of the valuable space secured by Mr. Laurence in connection with his activities.

Another tie-up, in line with the Festival Month, which Laurence promoted with the local newspaper, was the selection of a girl to represent the city, at the contest to be held this month in Memphis for choosing a girl to represent Miss Tennessee in the national finals at Miami beach this spring, with the paper giving the theatre plenty of publicity as Laurence arranged for the beauty contest to be held on the stage of the Capitol Theatre, thus coming in for plenty of paper "breaks" and added box office revenue and as he had enlisted the paper as cosponsor for the contest, he got in a little more good-will.

We must hand Laurence a little compliment for the go-getting way in which he started off his contest and we know that if he continues that type of showmanship his February Festival Month will be more than successful and we hope he'll keep in touch with us and pass on his various activities in connection with the campaign, so that we can let the rest of the CLUB know what he is doing down there.

"I'M ELECTED"

I have been offered, and have accepted, the post of one of three judges for the Columbia Prosperity Month Contest which you will find announced in this issue of the Club pages.

There are many practical slants to a contest of this kind. First: it stimulates interest in the exploitation of your attractions. Second: it creates a desire to win honors, not alone for the prize money offered, but for the nation-wide distinction that such an honor bestows upon the winner. Third: it will help you to earn a name and reputation for yourself as a showman capable of standing the acid-test.

Some points worthy of mention, in connection with the contest, are: double trucks or other co-operative advertising, which will be credited as part of the total advertising linage under Rule 5. Planting of publicity stories in your local papers which will boost your linage for Rule 4. Creation of attractive displays, both in and out of your theatre, which you should photograph and submit under Rule 1.

Go carefully into every angle of the contest and see if YOU can't win at least one of the prizes.

Everything submitted by contestants will be judged strictly from the viewpoint of showmanship and as one of the three judges I pledge myself to see that every contribution will receive the attention it deserves.

WM. C. PINE, Mgr.	Darien Theatre, Darien, Conn.

We have already had the pleasure of telling you about the activities of quite a few of the men listed above, but now that we are all "well acquainted," we're hoping that it will be unanimous from now on. How about it boys?

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

YOUR CASHIERS!

We've touched upon so many subjects in the course of keeping our members and readers posted on various things, it is not surprising that we should now tackle the cashiers of your theatres.

No real showman will deny the importance of this part of his theatre. It is the first direct contact a patron has with the theatre and should, absolutely, be a pleasant contact; otherwise that patron will start the visit to your theatre in a frame of mind that leaves everything happening in the house open for citicism.

The windows of the box office MUST be clean and neat all the time.

If there is a telephone in the cashier's office, make certain that it is being answered the way you would want your theatre's telephone answered.

In other words; do you keep a careful check on your box office all the time to see that it is being handled properly?

If not, then you are falling down on one of the important parts of your job and it's not fair to either the theatre or those you are working for.

Rhiney Hiehle and His Minstrel Band Sold This Picture

A real old time minstrel parade was promoted by Rhiney Hiehle, manager of the Smoot Theatre in Parkersburg, West Va., recently in conjunction with the showing of "The Grand Parade."

Feeling that the "back stage" angle had been worked too much in recent pictures, Rhiney decided to treat the town to a real novelty in the form of the band. He engaged the service of the musicians (who make up the municipal concert band) and dressed them in minstrel uniforms, for which he had to send all the way to Columbus, Ohio. He secured the services of a very attractive looking girl and dressed her up in the uniform of a drum major, in keeping with the atmosphere of the picture, and the way the film heroine was dressed, as you'll notice from the reproduction.

Rhiney coached the musicians in the approved minstrel style and marched them two abreast and ten feet apart which spread the line out almost two whole blocks. In the center of the parade, six boys carried banners announcing the picture, while the whole procession was headed by six "walking gentlemen," all bearing canes, with the girl drum major directing the line of march.

The parade created a big stir, with people wondering whether the band had come with the picture and in a good many cases thought that a real minstrel show had come to town, until they saw the banners. The band was used on the opening day of the picture and paraded through the town during the noon hour. At night they assembled in front of the theatre for the evening show. The stunt afforded the house an opportunity for plenty of publicity, and it is our opinion that the $78 which Rhiney expended was a good investment, since the novelty alone was worth that much money.

The two Hiehle showmen, Ed. and Rhiney (Ed, the manager of the Midland Theatre in Newark, Ohio, being Rhiney's brother, in case you don't know), are well deserving of the place they occupy in the show business and their many up-to-the-minute activities have found a place on these pages a number of times. The gentleman wearing the felt hat and standing next to the boy with the banner, incidentally, is Rhiney J. himself, of whose work we feel sure you will hear more from time to time.

As proof positive that our good friend, Mr. L. L. Chambers, Manager of the Academy and Broadway Theatres in Newburgh, New York, is on the job, we offer the two photographs shown with this story.

On "Burning Up" Chambers secured a small type racing car and had it ballyhooing all over the town on the main street and residential sections of the city. The driver, as you will note in the photograph, was dressed in white racing togs, including the regulation goggles and racing hat. The hood of the car carried the double-faced banner, containing the plug for the picture, and if any of you doubt the effectiveness of this stunt, try it yourself and see what happens.

Another example of his live-wire activities was the fine campaign he engineered and successfully executed on "Hit the Deck," whereby he arranged for a girl in a sailor's white uniform, bearing the imprint of the title of the picture on her hat, and carrying a tray laden with orange life savers, which were distributed on the main street of the town where she was promenading.

Chambers' brother manager on the Publix Chain, Hoff, over in Poughkeepsie, incidentally ballyhooed the same attraction but confined most of it to the lobby, whereas Chambers figured on getting more publicity for the picture by having a girl invade the business district, which is just a few short blocks from the theatre.

If any further explanation is necessary on the life saver gag, we might tell you that they are furnished by the company, and Chambers enclosed them in a small envelope which bore the imprint of the title of the picture and the theatre, as well as the play date.

Great work, Chambers, and I was certainly delighted to have the opportunity of passing this stuff along to the rest of the boys, and only hope that you continue the same brand of showmanship, and, at the same time, see that we get the necessary details and photographs as you have been doing in the past.

A New Slant!

This week we tackle a brother showman's problem from the angle of a man who is up against something he has not been able to work out up to this time.

The last two weeks we told you about showmen who encountered and worked out their own solutions, but now we can really show our fraternal spirit and make some suggestions that "C" may find useful in getting out of a bad situation.

Judging from the letters we have received since this interesting series started, we certainly hit upon a new idea, both from the novel way in which we are handling it, and also from the different problems we are citing each week. Apparently, many of our members and readers find they parallel their own local conditions.

Let's keep up the good work and rest assured that any items of this nature will be treated in the strictest confidence. No names or cities will be mentioned at any time and we are forwarding all opinions, on the various problems, direct to the interested managers.

* * *

May we again convey our appreciation to the many members whose fine Club spirit has made all of this possible and we sincerely hope that they will derive real benefit from the series. "Chick"

YOUR PROBLEMS AND MINE!

"TWO THOUSAND HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE"

C.'s Problem:

C. is located in a town having only one newspaper. This newspaper practically runs the town. In addition to C's house there are three others. When C goes to the Newspaper and requests their co-operation he is informed that if co-operation is given to one it must be given to all and since that is not in accord with the paper's policy they will not help him.

Another problem confronting C. is the interference of local police, who deny him the privilege of ballyhooing his attractions. On "Three Live Ghosts" he dressed up three men in white sheets, who went about town advertising the picture. The stunt created a lot of favorable interest but on the second day the local police stepped in and stopped it.

C. has not lost his temper over these constant interferences and refusals, quite the contrary, he has treated the newspaper heads and the local police with the utmost diplomacy but to date the opposing factions have not thawed out. These are the only two problems confronting C., as he receives wonderful co-operation from the local merchants, who comply with his every request and have been instrumental in helping him put over his theatre.

What Would You Do If You Were in C.'s Place?

What angles could YOU inject that might possibly help to solve the tough newspaper situation that this brother showman is in?

What approach could YOU suggest that may help C. win the local police department to lending a little more co-operation and less interference?

COME ON, BOYS, HERE IS AN OPPORTUNITY TO HELP SOMEONE OUT OF A BAD HOLE. YOU CAN'T TELL WHEN YOU MAY NEED A LITTLE ADVICE YOURSELF.

YOU MAY HAVE A SLANT HERE THAT HAS NOT OCCURRED TO C.

All correspondence on these subjects is treated in the strictest confidence. Your suggestions will be forwarded to C. minus your name or town, unless you specifically say that you want it used.

E. T. Murphy Put Anniversary Over Very Successfully

Up in Catskill, N. Y., the Community Theatre under the able management of E. T. Murphy, recently celebrated its tenth anniversary, and put the party across with a noise that could be heard almost to Niagara Falls.

To show you how Murphy let the house in for newspaper publicity, we are reproducing the front page of the special supplement he secured from the daily newspaper. The supplement carried ten pages entirely devoted to the theatre, its attractions and policies, and it certainly stands out as an ideal example of how strongly Murphy pulls with the business and social enterprises of his community.

Community Theatre To Install New RCA Photophone Sound Equipment and Giant Magnascope Screen

MOST MODERN INNOVATION

Announcement of Elaborate Improvements Comes On Tenth Anniversary Of Beautiful Local Playhouse

Commissioner Farley is a Leader in Three Fields

A Word to the Public from the Management

You will notice that Murphy features an open letter to the public on the front page of the paper, informing them that the best in entertainment has been prepared for them in line with the past policy which for ten years had proven very successful. This open letter angle is a great thing for any manager to use when an occasion arises where it will fit in as it has immeasurable value in cementing friendly relations between the manager and his patrons.

The inside pages of the supplement in addition to carrying stories and pictures on the coming attractions also featured a number of ads which Murphy secured from the local dealers with the ads all carrying congratulations to the theatre on its tenth birthday.

The Community has just gone into a sound and talking policy, and intends featuring in addition, the Magnascope screen, which proves to us that when the showmen who control the affairs of this house start to do anything they decide to do it up right and give the patrons the latest of innovations.

Murphy, who is one of the veteran Club members, has been active in the affairs of the Community Theatre for the past year and a half and the Club pages have carried stories of his activities from time to time, and we hope, that with the new policy in effect and running smoothly, he will find time to let us know how thing are going up there and will send us more of those corking lobby displays which played so important a part in the selling of his shows in the past.

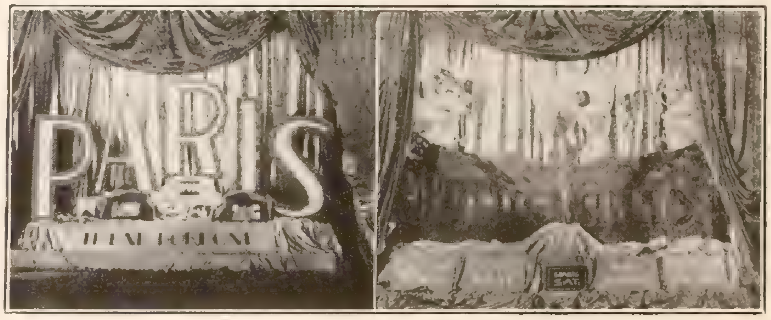
E. J. Harvey Is Another Live-Wire Who Sells Shows

One sure-fire way of exploiting his coming attractions was hit upon by E. J. Harvey, the enterprising manager of the Commodore Hull Theatre in Derby, Connecticut, when he decided to "stage" the future pictures in the lobby.

Harvey set up his "stage" in a corner of the lobby, draping the back wall with a silver curtain. A set of drapes in the front gave it the effect desired and the "stage" was complete. Baby "spots" were set up in the ceiling and on the side of the drapes with a revolving color wheel supplying some beautiful effects. The front opening of the curtains was about ten feet wide.

The pictures we are reproducing show the novel displays he arranged for "Paris" and "Pointed Heels." The "Paris" display was especially constructed to attract attention immediately as the title letters were four feet high, cut out of beaverboard and painted black with a metallic center. The other display was also very effective and certainly pepped up the lobby of the theatre.

During the run of the picture, Harvey arranged for the display to be transferred to the window of one of the leading merchants in the town, thus making it serve two purposes—a coming plug and a current one. We don't imagine that the display cost very much to build, since the drapes are about the only things that would have to be purchased. The beauty of the display, of course, depends on the ingenuity of the manager. If you are looking for something new to dress up your lobby and help sell your coming attractions it would be well to look into Harvey's stunt.



While we are talking about the way business can be boosted we want also to mention the full page co-operative ad which Harvey promoted from the local merchants as part of a campaign on "The Locked Door." The merchants were all given keys to be distributed to purchasers of a dollar or more worth of merchandise. The newspaper ads announced that valuable prizes of merchandise would be donated by the local dealers, participating in the tie-up, to the patron possessing a key which would open "The Locked Door."

In his inside lobby, Harvey constructed a padlocked door and all patrons were invited to try their keys in an effort to win one of the donations. Since the prizes were valuable ones, interest in the contest was very much alive, and the house came in for plenty of publicity on the picture.

Thanks, Harvey, for keeping us posted on your work up there in Connecticut.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

If Any One Can Do This He Sure Is A Real Showman

One of the finest examples of alert showmanship ever to be exhibited came our way recently and it certainly is a pleasure to pass it on to the rest of the Club.

The cut we are reproducing showing the two heralds is almost self explanatory, but for the sake of clarity we will tell you that the "Lost" herald is a bona fide reward offer. The sum of money stated in the herald was actually lost in the downtown business section of Columbus, S. C., on a Thursday evening and next day these heralds were circulated through every part of the town.

On the next day, Friday, when excitement was at a fever pitch, and the whole town was digging in obscure corners (looking for the money), the manager of the Carolina Theatre came out with the "Found" herald, which had absolutely no relation to the money but was a plug for the current picture at the theatre. Study the copy which makes up the herald and you will see what a masterpiece of exploitation the enterprising theatre manager turned out.

The people were running and grabbing the "Found" heralds whenever they were proffered, thinking that the quest for the money was ended and they certainly devoured the reading matter. The house came in for plenty of publicity on this one, and it is probably the first time on record where a herald drew undivided attention from every one it was given to.

Unfortunately, we do not know the name of the manager who perpetrated this "master gag," since we would like nothing better than to introduce him to the rest of the Club through these pages, but we hope that Robert Talbert or Eugene Parrish will bring it to his attention so that we can pass on the result of this gag.

A Showman of Wide Experience Is Ed. R. Moore Of York

During his varied career as a showman, Ed. R. Moore, genial manager of the York Theatre in York, Pa., has annexed many a novel stunt and has found that by using laugh gags as heralds the results were generally pretty good—so in order that none of the CLUB miss a thing we are going to describe some of his stunts which, while not original, may find a spot someplace where they might be used again.

One of the gags was the "Safety Lighter" stunt which consisted of a match being enclosed in an envelope (pay envelope size) and in addition to announcing the envelope as containing a "safety lighter" also carried copy on the picture and playdate. The other stunt on the same lines is the original vest pocket "coat hanger," which as most of you know is nothing more or less than a nail, enclosed in a small envelope which bears copy on the picture and playdates.

On the same "gag" style, but of a slightly different nature is the tie-up Moore obtained with a local bank, when Rose's Royal Midgets played the York, whereby he made up a "gag" letter which was mailed out to everybody in town. The front page of the letter bore copy which informed the reader that he or she had fallen heir to ten thousand dollars which had been left by one of the clients of Rose and Royal, the law firm whose name was on the letter, and requested that the reader call at 41 Beaver Street for further particulars.

If the reader became excited and did not take the trouble to open the letter and therein find the explanation of the gag—as the inner page bore copy reading "Should you ever receive a letter such as this we would suggest you immediately purchase two tickets to see ROSE'S ROYAL MIDGETS at the YORK OPERA HOUSE entire week commencing Mon., Sept. 26th, and deposit the balance with "THE GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY."—then he'd rush to 41 Beaver Street, and upon his arrival would find that he was at the York Theatre.

Not wishing to enter into any discussions concerning the value of this "gag"—since it might have worked great for Moore—we would like to point out that it is a very tricky stunt to use as the re-action may be anything but favorable, particularly if the reader of the letter doesn't take the trouble to read the inner page. At any rate we have to hand it to Moore for the bank tie-up he engineered, as they paid the entire cost of the stunt, which included printing, stationery and mailing, and so at no cost to himself Moore let his house in for a load of publicity.

We'd like to hear more concerning Moore's activities at the York and we hope he will continue the interest he is showing in us. How about it Ed? Let's have some more.

LOBBY STAGE SETTINGS!

Like everything else in the show business, the subject of an old idea revives itself and becomes even more popular than when originally introduced. As witness the lobby, or miniature stage setting stunt which has suddenly popped up in widely scattered sections of the country.

A wide-awake manager can always find some corner or portion of his lobby or foyer where such settings are possible, providing, of course, he is ambitious enough to "dope" it out according to his local conditions.

We can't sit here at Club headquarters and tell Mr. So & So to do this or that in his theatre, when this or that happens to be an impossibility. But we can suggest certain ideas that have come to our attention and pass them along for that group of live-wire showmen who are always willing and anxious to take advantage of brother managers' ideas.

An appropriate stage setting is not expensive in most theatres because the biggest item is the matter of drapes, and almost every theatre (especially those equipped with stages) has an excess of such material. The rest of the setting is just a matter of showmanship, plus attractive looking displays, and, of course, proper lighting. Also not expensive if your theatre happens to carry some baby spots.

The simple suggestion of lobby and foyer stage settings to herald a coming attraction should be sufficient to call to your mind a dozen different angles from which you can tackle this idea. And it's worth the time it takes if you do it right.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Kunze Cleaned Up On Free Publicity For State Theatre

If any one should ever ask us to make up a list of live-wire showmen you can bet that the list would carry the name of Paul W. Kunze, manager of the State Theatre in Stoughton, Mass., for Kunze is one showman who believes in going out and grabbing all the business he can get.

One of his latest stunts is the system he has inaugurated whereby he can get the trade of the residents living in the rural communities around Stoughton by making a special appeal to them through the mail. Kunze sends out a large postcard, carrying the attractions at his theatre, to the holders of mail boxes in the outlying communities. And to test the value of this plan and also to interest the ruralites in acquiring the habit of attending the theatre regularly, on the bottom of the program he made up a detachable coupon, which informed the rural boxholders that when presented at the box office two persons would be admitted for the price of one. This stunt has added a number of new patrons to his house and we believe that in a little while he'll get most of them in.

Another stunt that netted Kunze a whale of a lot of publicity was the giving away of a radio, through a tie-up with a local dealer and a nationally advertised radio manufacturer, which was conducted in a little different manner than the ordinary "drawing." He arranged to give away votes with every purchase of a ticket to the theatre. The votes were given according to the price of the admission tickets, with 100 votes given for every orchestra seat, 50 votes for balcony tickets, and 25 votes for a child's ticket. To secure the good-will of the merchants in town votes were also given them and were given away to customers.

The contest was a winner from the start. The local school was anxious to secure the radio and the pupils got right behind the plan and were rolling up votes right and left. The fire department and one of the churches in town also followed in the footsteps of the school and before long competition in the contest became very keen. The newspapers were "front paging" the standing of the leading contestants and Kunze had a bulletin board out front of the theatre, recording the up-to-the-minute standings.

He also ran a special co-operative page in the local newspapers and the theatre and contest came in for a free "plug." Interest became more acute daily, and since the contest was only run for three weeks, the second week found the leading contestants chasing all over town to get votes, urging their friends to patronize the theatre and the local dealers. On these free radio contests much depends on the energy the manager puts into the thing, as with any kind of break whatsoever they will "click" and we want to command Kunze on the way he successfully engineered the campaign.

Before we tell you about Kunze's house organ we want to say a word about the herald we are reproducing which he used on "Dynamite" and was made up with copy applying to automobile drivers, so that it could be used as an "Auto Tag." Another novel herald used on "Dynamite" measured 3 by 2 inches and requested the reader, as a personal favor to the management, not to reveal the ending of "Dynamite." The heralds were given to the patrons as they left the theatre.

Kunze's house organ is made up in brown ink on good stock yellow paper, and carries four pages, bearing news of the pictures and the program itself and in addition carries ads of the merchandise offered for sale by local dealers. This angle of working the dealers in on the program enabled Kunze to secure the house organ free of charge as the dealers paid for the printing. On "Sunny Side Up" he made up a novel one, calling it the special "Sunny Side Up" edition of the State Theatre News and featured stories describing the high spots of the picture. On the second page of the program the bill for the entire week was carried.

From the number of local ads the program carried we deduced that it must certainly have a drawing power, and since Kunze has found it a very profitable idea we are passing it on in the event that any of the CLUB members may be able to use it.

Incidentally Kunze has an excellent idea for boosting up his mailing list. Whenever a person calls up and requests information about the attractions the party is asked to give his name and address for the weekly program. A trailer is also run asking that patrons wishing a copy of the program weekly leave their name and address with a member of the service staff, and these two mediums have met with excellent response.

Thank you Kunze for your thoughtfulness in keeping us in touch with your activities and we want you to know that we'd like to hear more of your work, so let's hear from you again in the very near future.

George A. Delis Created a Double Truck That Sold

This little article is going to contain a brief say-so on one of our many hobbies. A newspaper layout, with the exception that this time we are not going to stress what should and should not be done when making up ads, but to chat informally on the neat double truck co-operative ad that Manager George A. Delis of the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, created for "Show of Shows."

Everyone is by now, we believe, aware of the co-operative gag and its many uses, but should anyone be in the dark about it we'll explain that it is made up by getting ads from the local merchants who in addition to plugging their own merchandise will plug whatever you are selling at the theatre, in their own ads, enabling you to receive what we might term "two breaks for the price of one." The co-operative idea has been revived again and is being used on most of the big productions to date, with the "Show of Shows" receiving the largest play, though for what reason we are unable to state as the gag will work on any picture regardless of scope or magnitude of production. The theatre ad usually occupies the central position on the page.

On "Show of Shows" Delis, as you will notice from the cut, offered free theatre tickets as prizes to the readers guessing the identities of the various stars pictured in the ads. A list containing the names of the stars was posted on a bulletin board in the theatre lobby and the contestants were invited to use the list to help solve the identities, and there was certainly a crowd in that lobby daily, as the stunt caught on immediately.

To insure the good-will of the advertisers Delis carried a rule in the contest whereby the name and address of the dealers had to be submitted with the names of the stars and in this manner the merchants knew that their ads were read and the money they had expended was put in a proposition that meant something. So if Delis decided to use the stunt on another picture the merchant would probably co-operate again. Which is the way all co-operative campaigns should be run, with everybody satisfied.

A large number of answers was submitted in the contest and the picture was practically sold before it opened and with an ad like this forming only a part of Delis' campaign, the rest of his exploiting should have sold the picture completely since we know from past activities of his, that he is capable of putting on a "wow" of a campaign.

Perry Garnering More Free Space In Local Papers

Fred Perry, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Binghamton, N. Y., tied in with the local newspaper to the extent of securing some valuable publicity on "Taming of the Shrew."

The newspaper agreed to run a serial cartoon strip on the picture daily which Perry followed up by making a "splash" with his ads. The newspaper tie-up was secured free of charge and was evidently successful in selling the picture to the public. A tie-up of this sort, when the newspaper will not permit the use of the theatre's name must be carefully handled in order that the ads for "follow-ups" appear just at the right time.

Perry also secured another tie-up with the paper in which they ran a box on the sport page announcing the presentation at the Capitol of the short subject entitled Grantland Rice's "Sportlight." This tie-up was effected through virtue of Rice's running of a daily column in the paper, so that the announcement was of mutual benefit to both Perry and the paper.

As we have stressed more than once, keep plugging your short subjects. Perry's publicity break is just another example of what your shorts can do for you. When you have something interesting let the rest of the world know about it. Remember that a short subject can attract just as much comment as a feature picture any day in the week, providing it merits it.

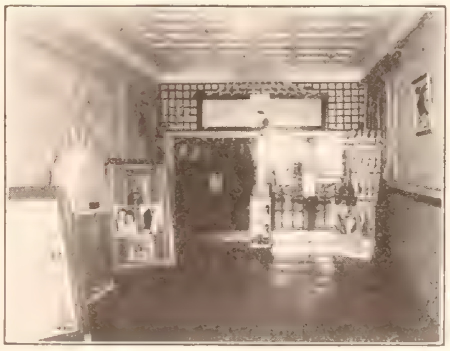
It's a pleasure to hear from Fred so often, because then we know that he is an interested follower of our activities, in addition to being an active member. Keep up the good work.

Harold C. Lee is Popular Manager And Mighty Active

We're always glad, when an opportunity presents itself, to pass on to the rest of the CLUB any of Harold C. Lee's activities that we have on hand because we know that he will generally have something that will interest his fellow members in some form or another.

Lee is the live wire manager of the Babcock Theatre in Bath, N. Y., for the Fox Upstate Outfit.

We want to comment at this time on Lee's eight page program which he issues weekly to his patrons. The program is neatly set up in black and white with three of the pages devoted to ads of the local dealers. In this manner Lee secures his program practically free of charge, the dealer's ads covering all expenses. Lee uses a number of scene mats to offset the type of his ad. By judicious use of scene mats you will be able to secure a program that looks like a million bucks for only a trifling cost.



We notice in the ads that the dealers are assisting Lee by "plugging" his big attraction, "Sunny Side Up," in their ads. This is the sort of friendly co-operation that makes running a house a pleasure.

The cut we are reproducing below shows Lee's lobby display on "Sunny Side Up." As you will notice, the display is very attractive, made so by its simplicity rather than any ostentatiousness. In the foreground can be seen a miniature reproduction of a sunrise, which seems to be made out of crepe paper with an electric light in between producing the effect of the rays.

In the background you will note a "pyramid of girls," which makes a very attractive display and was evidently cut out from a three sheet.

The entire display was very effective and did not cost a fortune to make. We believe that it sold the patrons on the picture, and that, after all, is what most of us are striving to do.

Thank you, Lee, let's hear from you again, and convey our kindest regards to the rest of the boys up your way.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Earle Holden is Holding His Own With Fla. Showmen

An angle that is not generally used at present is the restaurant menu tie-up, and it is for that reason we want to tell you how Earle Holden, manager of the Fairfax Theatre in Miami, Fla., tied-in with one of the local restaurants to good advantage.

The local restaurant permitted Earle to imprint a theatre slug on the bottom of their menu, which bore copy stating that there was always a good show at the Fairfax and for this we suppose that Earle split the cost of printing the menus with the restaurant which was well worth the money as many people patronizing the restaurant noticed the theatre "plug." This is a good angle to follow up for the results should justify the money laid out in printing, which after all would be small, for if you decided to use an "institutional" plug, a cut could be made for almost nothing.

We're also reproducing a sample of Earle's novelty herald on "No, No, Nanette," which created a lot of interest and was made up, as you will note, in the form of a reserved seat ticket for a $6.60 seat in a New York House and carried copy stating that: "YOU'D PAY $6.60 TO SEE IT ON BROADWAY!" By reason of the unusual make-up, it is a ticket that would make them hold onto it and not throw it away. In addition to this Earle had another one on the same picture which was printed in white and blue and measured 3½ by 2 inches. The simple make-up of this herald helped it sell as it bore nothing but the picture's title which stood out big. In smaller type, on one line, he printed the theatre and play-date.

FAIRFAX THEATRE -- WEEK STARTS FRIDAY JAN. 31

Another gag Earle used was in conjunction with "General Crack" when he made up trick "season pass" cards which as you all know are made up in season pass size and carrying flash lines which say: Don't Let The SEASON PASS Without Seeing and Hearing John Barrymore in "General Crack," FAIRFAX THEATRE. When the copy was centered it was all printed in small type with the exception of Season Pass and Fairfax Theatre which was printed in bold red caps, so that at first glance it appeared that the herald was a real season pass. This gag was good for attracting more than passing interest and if, as we imagine, it was the first time it has been used down there, the heralds were probably kept and passed along to friends.

It's a pleasure to see that Earle is still banging them down the old "box office fairway" and is right on the alert to grab every opportunity to get in a plug on his house and the attractions, and since he's always active we look forward to hearing from him again very soon because he knows that news of his activities is a source of continual interest to us.

Saul Pechner is Showing Them How To Put Show Over

When news was broadcast through the CLUB pages long, long ago, that the manufacturers of nationally known products, realizing the tremendous and far-reaching value of theatrical publicity, were more than anxious to co-operate with showmen in tie-ups that would be advantageous to both, a good many showmen have been availing themselves of these tie-ups and finding the "sample" gag a swell good-will builder for the box office. Which is why Saul Pechner, manager of the Fox Theatre in San Francisco, Cal., took advantage of the opportunity to tie-up with the Kiss-Proof Products Co. in conjunction with the Fox showing of Greta Garbo's picture, "The Kiss."

About the time that "The Kiss" opened its run at the Fox they decided to distribute five thousand compacts through a local drug store, and when Pechner got wind of this he immediately tied up with the company's representative, who with the co-operation of the local stores turned over three thousand of the sets to him for theatre distribution.

The sets were enclosed in small glazed envelopes and bore copy stating that the sample was given with the: "Compliments of Greta Garbo in the fiery French drama 'The Kiss' at the Fox Theatre, etc." The samples were distributed at the Loew's Warfield Theatre and four local drug stores, and the picture received a lot of attention in this way which helped prolong its run. In most cases the drug companies loaned their windows for a display plugging the picture and the product and Pechner secured some valuable publicity free of charge, as copy on a card in the window invited the reader to step in and receive a gift from Greta Garbo playing in "The Kiss" at the Fox Theatre.

Pechner certainly used this tie-up to good advantage as his box office receipts must have shown, and we want him to know we are pleased to pass this on to the rest of the CLUB, in order to keep them in touch with what the West Coast's showmen are doing, and we hope to hear more of his work in the near future.

How's This For A Boost?

"I have been an eager reader of the MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB pages ever since this wonderful section of the NEWS was started and I am glad to say that I have obtained lots of good ideas from other exhibitors through the CLUB pages. In fact, I think so much of the CLUB pages, that I have a file, and this section is clipped from the NEWS every week and inserted in same for reference, which comes in mighty handy when there comes along a picture that the old 'idea factory' just can't put out an original on."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Are You "Making Hay While the Sun Shines"—Read This

Pretty smart showmanship is the way we would classify the activities of the manager of Schine's Ohio Theatre in Lima, Ohio. This smart showman turned out a pip of a herald and inserted a new angle in it by tying it up with Washington's Birthday.

The herald as you will notice from the cut carries on it one of the regular exchange heralds. If you study the copy closely you will notice the way he has worked in the Washington Birthday gag. The little illustration on the right of the herald is not a cut but a regular holiday sticker that can be procured in any stationery store.

Since the little herald supplied by the poster exchange was printed in red, it worked in fine on this manager's gag, and he printed the herald in red ink on green stationery stock. On the bottom of the herald, you will notice a plug for "Anna Christie," which didn't detract from the value of the herald, by being run and shows how wide awake the manager was to grab this angle.

We believe that the mailing list was used mostly to circulate the herald, which was sent out in an envelope corresponding in color, and looking just like a real letter. Business must certainly have picked up on the picture by the use of this gag and again we want to go on record as stating that it's pretty smart showmanship and the kind that will bring them in to any house.

Paul Binstock Is Progressive Showman As You Know

When news came in to your Chairman that one of the Round Table Club members, who had been making quite a name for himself, had received the recognition his merit so richly deserved, we felt like rushing over to a radio station and broadcasting the announcement, but then it dawned upon us that since we have a radio station all our own in the form of the Club pages, where we reach the "aces" of the show world, we'd better stick to home. So let's talk about Paul Binstock.

Binstock started with the Fox Metropolitan Theatres as house manager of the Broadway Theatre in Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., and when we first came upon samples of his work, we said to ourselves that here was a man who would bear watching. But when we talk to ourselves we generally do it through the Club pages, and so it was there that we predicted Binstock was in for a promotion.

Sure enough, a little while later we received news that he had been promoted to zone manager of Astoria, where in that capacity he continued the good work which marked his success as a house manager and again we said that advancement was ahead for he was going too good not to have his ability recognized.

Today it gives us great pleasure to announce that Paul Binstock has advanced still further up the line and is now functioning in the capacity of District Supervisor in Long Island under Ben Leo. We want to congratulate Paul on his remarkable rise and we want him to know that we are still under the impression that there's more room up further for men of his live wire type and we hope to hear more of him in the very near future.

Please Take Note

THE pages of the Club are open for the publication of photographs from both members and readers. These photos may be of theatre managers, theatre fronts, marquee displays, lobby settings, etc. Due credit will be given those send photos to the Club, providing they attach the proper description and their own names and theatre addresses.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

PLAY SAFE!

A newspaper story telling about a fire is mighty poor publicity for your theatre, even though that fire may have been a little smoke from the waste paper basket.

So "Play Safe".

Keep a keen eye on your janitorial staff (fancy name for porter) and check up on him, or them, as often as possible to make sure, and doubly sure, that they are not allowing any accumulation of rubbish in isolated corners of the boiler room, cellars or porter's closets.

And by all means, DON'T permit anyone on the staff to smoke within the theatre building at any time whatsoever, regardless of whether the theatre is open for business or not. It's the "almost out" cigar or cigarette butt that starts the smoke and the trouble hours after it has been discarded by the smoker.

As far as I am concerned, the best operator in the business could not work for me if I ever caught him smoking while on the job or in the booth. It's there that our greatest fire and panic worries materialize and if you're careless in checking up, then you are as much to blame as the one who is responsible for a fire.

And while harping on this subject, may we ask "What becomes of your old posters, signs, etc.?" If they cannot be returned or used again, why save them up?

Listen boys, it's far beter to be safe than sorry so why be careless and expose yourself and the theatre's patrons to unnecessary hazards?

Randall Jerabeck Back In Show Game At Former House

If there's one thing that causes us concern, it's not hearing from a CLUB member for a while—and when we start to wonder we begin to swing into action and inquire about him; but this time, just as we started to wonder what had become of Randall J. Jerabeck, we were pleased as the deuce to hear from him.

Jerabeck is one of the original members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB and it gives us pleasure to announce him back on the active list again and to inform the boys that he had been on a trip North enjoying a brief vacation from the arduous(?) task of managing theatres and on his return from the Northland has been transferred back to his former stamping grounds at the Seville Theatre in Chula Vista, Cal., and we know that if he continues the fine showmanship he displayed when he was at the Seville a while back, we will be able to record on these pages again, some mighty nice stunts.

It is certainly a pleasure to hear from Jerabeck again, because then we know he is following our activities with as much enthusiasm as ever and though he is a very busy man just now while sound equipment is being installed at the Seville, we hope that when the wiring is completed he won't forget to let us know how he put across the gala opening that he is contemplating and of which he claims will be a "wow."

Don't forget, Jerabeck, we want to hear from you often now that you're back in the field again, and we hope with your next letter to hear some nice accounts of your activities. How about it?

Nelson M. Towers A New Member Is Popular Townsman

When Earle Holden recommends a member to the ROUND TABLE CLUB you can rest assured that that member must possess more than ordinary qualities because according to one of Earle's recent letters he tells us something about Nelson M. Towers (who runs the Rosetta Theatre at Little River, Fla.) that is really a testimonial to Nelson and his public's opinion of him.

How many of you fellows can lay claim to the fact that your patrons have so much faith and confidence in you that you could be elected mayor if you wanted to run for that office? Well, Nelson M. Towers is in just that position, and he is certainly making that Publix house click like nobody's business down there in that suburb of Miami.

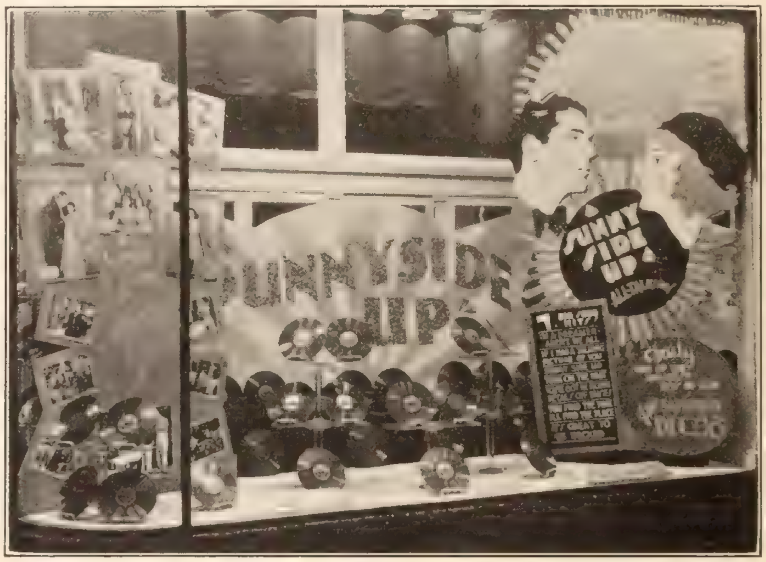
One of the little secrets that we want to pass on right now is that this past Christmas he brought a whole lot of cheer to the poor kiddies which was only through his own effort, and we trust that this opening introduction article about Nelson will act as a stimulant to him to tell us how he is getting the people to do just what he wants them to do as well as how he has become a specialist in "goodwill building."

Come on Nelson we've got the low down on you now and could really say a whole lot more, but we are going to leave it up to you to tell us in your own way just what you are doing down there and especially how you are doing it. Here's hoping that we get your letter by return mail and that it also includes among many other interesting things one of your photographs so that we can build a story that you are well deserving of on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages.

Arthur Stolte Can Sell Them By His Window Displays

So many good window displays have been brought to our notice that it is difficult for us to pick one out for the CLUB pages without incurring the possible displeasure of somebody, but Arthur Stolte, manager of the Paramount Theatre in Waterloo, Ill., arranged so attractive a display for "Sunny Side Up," that we felt the rest of the boys would be missing something if they were not permitted to see it, so as a consequence we are reproducing it below.

The tie-up was effected with the town's leading music store, and Stolte had his artist do some extra good work on the cutouts and sign he used in the window. On the right side of the display you will notice cutout heads of the two stars, placed before an attractive sign announcing the picture. The display is cut out of beaver board, in the form of a sun, with the rays sprinkled with tinsel, and is very nicely colored.



Music records and signs plugging the theme songs of the picture are occupying a prominent place in the center of the window. Cutout letters of the title form an attractive background for the records.

On the left, as you will notice, Stolte has arranged a striking display by using scenes from the picture. The stills are colored and black and white, being framed by tinseled beaverboard.

The entire display was very well done and undoubtedly sold the picture to the public, as a display of this sort should do every time.

You too, with a little care, can arrange displays such as this, which really sell the picture, and the cost of making them is small.

Thanks for keeping us up on your activities Stolte and let's hear more from you regarding your doings at the Paramount.

Richard L. Moss Is Doing Wonders Out In California

When Richard L. Moss left New York to handle a house in California we made it known that we expected to hear some mighty nice accounts of him on the Coast and since he has been out there we have yet to record lack of pep in his activities.

In a recent issue of the Club pages we showed you how he hit upon a novel way of advertising his pictures by featuring them in a style similar to a menu used by a restaurant. The gag caught on like wildfire and created a lot of comment. Now Moss has another one in a teaser ad, which certainly hit the right spot when it came to dragging in extra business.

The copy reads, "DON'T COME TO SEE," and directly underneath in small type, "Midnight Daddies tonight and tomorrow unless you can stand side-splitting fun, hilarious laughter and all other forms of glee. This is one of the funniest all-talking comedies of the year." The teaser was signed, "The Management."

The picture had no stars worth plugging, still Moss, by the use of this simple teaser ad, broke the record for Friday night business at the house. This is one of the best oportunities we can have to state that no stunt is married to a picture and we want to stop long enough to hand Moss a compliment for practicing what we have been preaching for ages.

Another idea of the way a quick thinking showman works was seen in the campaign he promoted for "The Viking" by going to work and selling it through appealing to the various clubs throughout the district. He tied up with the local Boy Scouts and secured some fine publicity in their bulletin which was distributed to scouts for miles around and extended an an invitation to the various scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and commissioners to be his guests. At the same time he announced that all uniformed Boy Scouts would be admitted at the reduced rate of ten cents during the run of the film.

Through a tie-up with the local newspaper he arranged to run a contest, offering free tickets to the best composition on who discovered America first, since the story deals with the adventures of the Norse explorer, "Lief the Lucky." This angle netted him a lot of additional free publicity and he turned in splendid business on the picture.

We would like to call your attention to the "chat box" on the center of the page which he uses to talk, informally, to his patrons on any subject that he thinks will interest them. In this case he is talking about "The Viking" and he leads up to his sales talk in a very disarming manner and before you know it you have read the whole thing. This "gag" is a wonderful angle for any house organ providing the manager handles it carefully and it no doubt worked to good advantage for Moss.

Thanks, Dick, for keeping us posted on your activities and we hope that you will continue the interest you have always shown in the Club. If our plans go through and we are able to hit the trail for the Coast this summer we certainly intend to make it a point to drop in and see what you have accomplished out there.

"All For One And One For All"

Spring House Cleaning

It is rapidly getting around to the time when house cleaning will be very much in order.

By house cleaning, we mean, brightening up of the theatre from every angle beginning with the front and entrance lobby, throughout the rest of the house with particular emphasis on that portion with which the public comes into contact.

Communities where severe winters are the rule, are apt to neglect, to a certain extent, the outside of the theatre because of such severe weather, but now is the time when each mild day should find the manager—and those who work with him—hard set at the task of putting things into proper condition.

Especially, we would call your attention to the lamping of your signs and marquees, which for some unknown reason, is often permitted to fall into a most deplorable condition.

Get after those little things NOW and keep at them until you feel firmly convinced that you are proud of your theatre and everything in it.

Ralph E. Phillips Is Here At Last; Meet This Showman

It seems as though every time we get set to introduce Ralph E. Phillips to the rest of the Club, we receive news that he is being transferred or promoted and we decide to wait until he is set before giving him a real send-off, and now that Ralph is selling his shows at the State Theatre in Chattanooga, Tenn., he is making a quite success as Manager of that house.

We first came into contact with Ralph when he was at the Florida Theatre in Jacksonville, Fla., and when he received his promotion to manager of the Egyptian Theatre in Greenville, S. C., we figured that at last we could run this little story on him, but luck was against us, for a short while later, Ralph was transferred to his present position at the State in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Now that we feel Ralph is "set" at the State, we would like you to meet him, and we want him to know that we extend him a hearty, though somewhat tardy, welcome into the Club. We are sure from what we have heard of Ralph's ability that he will more than fill the job required of him at the State and that he will continue the active interest he has shown in us.

Here's wishing you lots of luck Ralph, and we hope to be able to record many nice things about you in the very near future.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Newspaper Space Is Obtained Free By Max Melincoff

Max Melincoff, manager of the Palace Theatre in Torrington, Conn., is sure putting that house over in great style for the Warner Outfit, with the high-powered showmanship he is displaying.

Max secured a tie-up with the local newspaper whereby the sheet agreed to furnish a photographer, to be used by Max during the run of "Chasing Rainbows." The photographer, following Max's plan, went about town photographing groups of people at the busy sections of the town. He would stop on the corner until a crowd collected, then "shoot" the picture and go on to the next spot. This attracted a lot of comment, and when the newspaper ran a story announcing that free tickets to the Palace would be awarded any one whose head was encircled in the group picture the photographer was taking daily, why everybody flocked to get in the picture and the theatre secured some great word of mouth publicity as well as the newspaper space.

Another tie-up that secured Max some excellent publicity for his house and didn't cost him a cent was also effected with the newspaper whereby they agreed to run the name and address of a local resident in with the classified ads, with Max running an announcement about it in his regular ads. We are reproducing a couple of Max's newspaper ads so that you'll notice how he plugged the classified ad idea, which is a very good idea to get some additional publicity for your house and almost any newspaper will be glad to co-operate with you to this extent. And we also want you to notice the nice layout of his regular ads, which, as you see, are not crowded and contain all that Max is trying to sell. An ad like this is quite easy to make up and Max does not crowd the thing with a lot of mats which don't mean a thing—the one mat he uses enhances the effectiveness of the ad and does not detract from the copy.

Max made up a neat little herald on "Glorifying the American Girl," which was paid for by a tie-up he secured with the local department store, who in addition distributed the heralds at the store. The herald bore copy announcing that through the courtesy of the department store seventy-five free tickets would be given away to persons holding a number, which had been imprinted on the herald, provided that the number corresponded with the ones which Max had posted on a bulletin board in his lobby. This was an excellent idea for securing some valuable publicity for the theatre, and we bet the lobby was crowded night and day, as this gag, while not new, always manages to attract a lot of attention.

We've got a hunch that Max is going to do wonders up there and we want him to know that we're pulling strong for him, as we think that he's more than got the stuff required to pep up his house and we hope he keeps us informed of his livewire activities in the town. How about it, Max?

J. C. Callaghan is Plugging Shows By Using Good Stunts

It seems like "Old Home Week" to be writing about J. C. Callaghan, manager of the Capitol Theatre in Middletown, Conn., for your Chairman remembers well the many and varied experiences he encountered at the Capitol when that house was included in the group he was supervising.

Callaghan has been doing some neat exploitation work in connection with the selling of his shows and from the nice things we have heard concerning his activities we know we can look forward with interest to seeing some snappy ideas of his, as the recent campaigns he put across serve as evidence enough to us that he is capable of supplying us with material which we can pass on to the rest of the "gang."

On "General Crack" Callaghan promoted a ballyhoo in the form of a mule, which was led around the city bearing copy on a sandwich sign which read, "If I wasn't a mule I'd go to the Capitol Theatre and see 'General Crack'," and as this gag had never been worked in Middletown it caused a lot of laughter and drew plenty of attention to the picture, in addition to proving a very effective ballyhoo. This type of showmanship seems to be typical of Callaghan whom we notice never waits for a picture with a "natural" title to come his way, but sets about exploiting whatever he has on hand to the best advantage.

Another stunt Callaghan used was in conjunction with his campaign on "Sally" and was a "trick" throwaway made up in the form of a season pass and bearing copy reading, "Don't Let the SEASON PASS without visiting the CAPITOL THEATRE to see me in 'Sally'." The words, "Season Pass" and "Capitol Theatre" stood out in bold relief on the card, so that at first glance it appeared that the card was really a season pass. The herald bore the signature of the star, Marilyn Miller. The gag was of use in creating interest and served to inform the public of the attraction coming to the Capitol.

Since Callaghan's going great up there we hope he'll be a regular contributor to the CLUB pages.

WARM WEATHER IS COMING!!

Summer is really just around the corner.

You won't be caught napping if you start working out plans now to stimulate business and dress up your theatre.

Do you want some help?

Just say the word and we'll "shoot" some stuff about "hot weather."

Earl Arnold Goes On a Rampage And Shoots Town Tots

Earl Arnold proved that he was right on his toes when he sucessfully engineered local motion pictures of a kiddie review produced in connection with the Lincoln Theatre at Arlington, New Jersey.

The eye-arresting Circus Flyer which he turned out, a portion of which we are showing with this story, is certainly sufficient evidence for us that he tackled it in the right way and beyond all shadow of doubt the response must have been terrific.

The matter of taking local shots of either kiddie or local events is no longer an expensive proposition and, in many cases, we know of individual managers who have arranged for a camera and taken these shots themselves, sending the films to the nearest laboratory for developing and printing, so, do not let the angle of cost worry you, since that element of engaging a special cameraman and paying a lot of money per foot has now been practically done away with.

LET'S SHOOT THE KIDDIES!

FOR THE FIRST LOCAL MOTION PICTURE KIDDIE REVUE EVER PRODUCED IN ARLINGTON

THE ARLINGTON

DAVEY LEES, JOE COBBS, WHEEZERS, MARY ANNS, BIG BOYS, SNOOKUMS, JEAN DARLINGS, BUSTER BROWNS, BABY PEGGYS and MICKEY McGUIRES.

Arlington Has The Living Images Of These Popular Stars

The way Arnold handled this particular idea meant many nights of extra business for the theatre and the finals will undoubtedly find the populace of Arlington hanging off the ceiling or battling to gain admittance to the theatre to witness the result.

Great work Earl, but no different than what we expected from a showman of your type and, if we have told it to others, we now take the opportunity of telling it to you direct. Don't forget to keep us posted as this gag goes along, so that we can, in turn, keep the rest of the crowd posted on how you are engineering the whole stunt, and, undoubtedly, they will find much in it to interest them and perhaps steam them up to go after this angle themselves.

Next time you see Dick Kirschbaum out your way, tickle his funny bone and it may be productive of a couple of "Lobby laffs" which we are going to need mighty soon for the CLUB pages. Oke?

I'd hate to play Earl a dirty trick, but I don't know whether he was kidding or not, by clipping his photograph to a letter head and marking it "Lobby laffs. At any rate, we'll take him at this word and here's his picture. If it gives you a laugh, you can label it "lobby" or "comic" or any other title that comes to your mind. At any rate we are calling your bluff Earl, and here it is.

Incidently, Earl is still trying to figure out, after twenty-five years around theatres, what could possibly be funnier than a manager who stands in the lobby of his theatre, smiling at every Tom, Dick and Harry, and, at the same time, never becoming acquainted with them. Good logic, Earl, and maybe it will make some of the boys sit up and take notice. At any rate, it won't do them a darn bit of harm.

"ECONOMY"

If there is any sign of narrow mindedness in a theatre manager, it is that gentleman who claims that his outfit is so "stingy", they do not let him spend a cent for this, that or the other thing.

First; craving your humble pardon, we would say to you; "You're all wet."

Economy, properly practised, is one of the first signs of efficiency. It does not follow, because your superiors keep a check on you, that they are stopping you from spending money for necessary purposes.

We have tried to instil, into our many members and readers, the thought that they ought to do certain things without waiting for the "bosses" to come along and tell them what to do. A manager, with the proper interest in his theatre's overhead, should be constantly on the alert to save every penny possible because those pennies amount to a vast sum at the end of a year just for his one theatre alone.

We are compelled to bring out of dead storage an old expression, but, nevertheless a timely one: "It's not how much you spend, it's how intelligently you spend it." That's what counts every time and if you are keeping your "showman eye" peeled to hold that "nut" down to the bone, you will guard every cent as though it were your own, and here is what we want to get into your systems so that it won't seep out again:

Before you spend any money foolishly, suppose you hesitate just long enough to ask yourself the very sane question: "Is the spending of this money absolutely essential?" If the answer is "Yes," then you have at least tried to convince yourself that you are doing the right thing. If the answer happens to be "No, I can do so and so and save this money," then you are not only a showman but an executive. And it's from such stuff that Honest-To-God executives are made.

The men who have succeeded in this business and are continuing to succeed are men capable of proving that they know the value of a dollar and it takes a smart man to do that.

"Chick"

Pinkham Fooled Them on Screen Act by "Ace" Gag

Manager A. W. Pinkham used the old telephone stunt with a little variation to advertise "Their Own Desire" playing at the Strand Theatre, Dover, N. H.

Instead of having one person to call up everybody in town, Pinkham had both a girl and a man at the theatre end of the line.

If a man answered the telephone, the girl at the theatre would take up the conversation and give him a sales talk about the picture—under the impression she was calling her sweetheart. After the idea was sold, she would apologize making the excuse that she had been given the wrong number. The same idea applied when a girl or woman answered the phone—then the man at the theatre would give a similar line of talk.

The telephone stunt developed a lot of kidding on the part of everybody, but at any rate Pinkham sold his show, and that's what he was most concerned about.

So if the telephone angle sounds old, Pinkham gives you this new slant which certainly revived interest in the gag itself. Incidentally, talking about new slants brings to light an interesting angle on how "A. W." handled a short subject act so as to cause a whole lot of favorable comment from his patrons.

The particular act that Pinkham worked the gag on was in connection with a Metro release of Van & Schenck (No. 83), during which these two stars solicited song numbers to be sung.

After reviewing the act at the morning screening, Pinkham took advantage of the opportunity and placed two plants in the theatre at all shows.

When Schenck asked for a song number, Plant No. 1 would ask for "There's a Rainbow Around My Shoulder." Then Schenck would reply, "Yes we know that one," and would then sing it. At its conclusion, Schenck would ask for another song and Plant No. 2 in another part of the theatre chirped out, "Ramona." Schenck replying, "Yes, if we remember this one," and then goes on to sing the number.

The illusion was perfect and the stunt had the audiences talking plenty; many patrons seeking an explanation of the effect.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

SAVE THE CLUB PAGES!

Reader response has definitely settled the question of how widely read the pages of the Round Table Club are.

BUT: ARE YOU FILING THE CLUB PAGES FOR FUTURE USE?

Practically every large circuit in the country is spending vast sums to stimulate interest in their organizations through house organs and impress on their managers the importance of keeping the home office publication posted on local theatre activities.

The Managers' Round Table Club pages, however, cover no one particular circuit, but it does cover the entire show business. And that is, naturally, a decided advantage for the live-wire showmen who are anxious to keep a record of what his brother managers are doing.

Every issue of the Club pages contain a wealth of valuable information for those managers and showmen who WANT valuable information. If you don't want a thing, we can't make you want it even if we crammed it down your throats.

Follow the example of the leaders in your own business. Keep a careful file of each issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS and you will then have a file that cannot be duplicated when it comes to ideas on theatre operation, exploitation and management.

Those members and readers who are keeping their own circuit house organs posted on their activities are showing the right spirit. But they are doing no harm in posting the Club as well, since we cover a field so much broader than any one individual circuit and give in return the activities of showmen in practically every chain or independent outfit on the face of the globe. That's covering a lot of territory, but it's the truth just the same as our pages will reflect week to week.

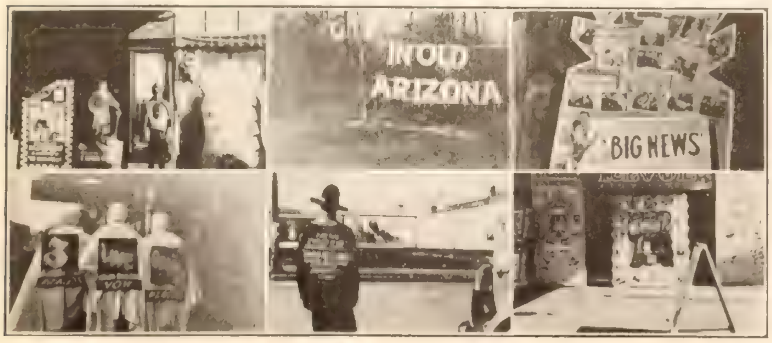
Banniza Shows Us How He Sells His Shows About Town

You all no doubt remember the marvelous exploitation campaign on "Flight" that was engineered by G. P. Banniza, live wire manager of the Princess and Delite Theatres in Decatur, Ala., and which we published an account of in the Club pages a while back.

Banniza has since been turning out some fine work in connection with other pictures, and we are reproducing a couple of the exploitation stunts he used recently. In the cut you will notice the ballyhoo he used on "In Old Arizona." This very attractive "flash" was made up of cut-out beaverboard letters, and was placed on all the highways leading into the town, and stirred up a lot of comment. If we remember rightly this "gag" is in line with an idea created by another of our members and we are glad to note that Banniza, if he is following the same idea, "clicked" with it.



The other photo shows an attractive lobby display he made up for "Big News," which, in keeping with the atmosphere of the picture, is a cut out bearing front pages of the local papers as well as scenes from the picture. This proved an excellent attention arrester and we presume that since it is not too big, that Banniza placed it in a window during the run of the film, or with a local newsdealer.

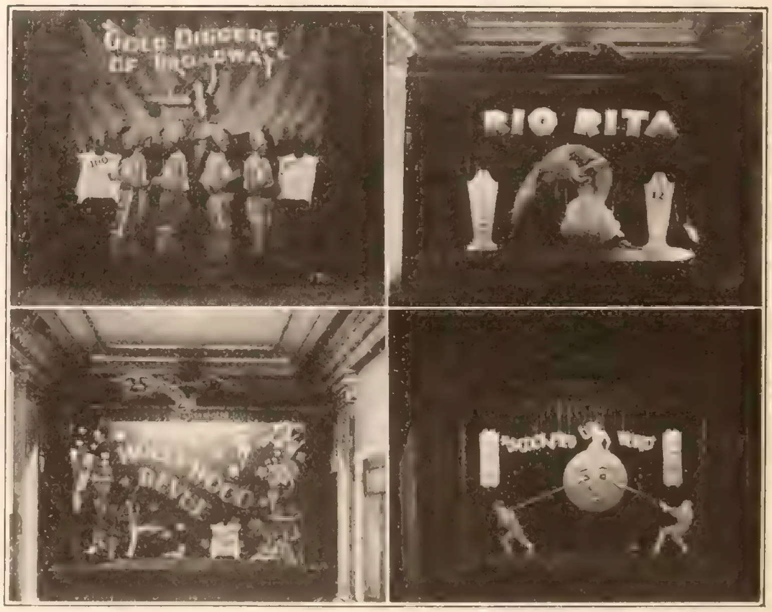
The rest of the layout shows you how he exploited a number of other pictures to good advantage by using ballyhoos in keeping with the atmosphere of the pictures. The "Three Live Ghosts" and the "In Old Arizona" stunts were especially effective.

Banniza is doing fine work down there in Decatur and we want to thank him for keeping us posted and hope he will continue the active interest he has always shown in the Club.

If You're Looking For Novel Angles Chidley Has Them

Here's some pretty darn good examples of the way the Western showman sell their coming attractions and it's certainly a credit to their ingenuity to be able to turn out work such as the reproduction shows.

The photos represent four different stage settings used in the lobby of the America Theatre in Casper, Wyoming, to plug the coming pictures at the America and Rialto Theatres and as most of our Club members know, the houses are managed by that up-to-the-minute showman, C. H. Chidley, under the managing directorship of E. J. Schulte.



An entire miniature stage is used to plug the pictures and the effect is a knockout, especially since the art work is all hand-painted. Simplicity is the keynote in some of the displays while in others a flash is created by filling the stage. You will note an excellent gag on the display for "Gold Diggers of Broadway." Girls, appropriately costumed, and carrying miniature shovels, stood out in relief against the lively background. A lot of comment was occasioned when this gag was first used.

Chidley's method of advertising his coming attractions by means of a miniature stage has met with great favor in the town, as the patrons take it as a guarantee of merit that the picture is a "wow." The settings are made up new every two weeks and by the time playdate rolls around the value of the advertising is seen in the volume of business done by the theatre. In the event of any of the Club members wishing to use this idea, it will pay to study the photos closely as there are some very valuable angles here which will help in the construction and layout of the stage and displays.

We want to thank Chidley for passing this on to us.

Bair Again Puts House In Line For Valuable Publicity

Our good friend, E. E. Bair, continues to build up his already famous reputation as a corking good advertising man by letting us see some more of his recent activities in the way of newspaper publicity and advertising.

The double truck which we show you here must have commanded a whale of a lot of attention out there in East Liverpool, Ohio, and we would call your attention not only to the two pennant effect in the center of the page but the line beneath reading: "Here are a few of the good things said about this picture."

This is how Mr. Bair tied in his current attraction with the automobile show in his city. Marvelous showmanship and crackerjack advertising, says we.

There is every indication of high powered showmanship about practically every piece of newspaper stuff that Mr. Bair puts across and in this respect we would like to comment upon a recent ad that he ran in his paper which measured three columns by about 9 inches, and carried a heavy head reading, "It's the pictures." Further on, he mentions some of the hits that have been shown at the State and American Theatres in the past two months, but called attention to the big ones that were coming to the theatres he is operating.

He then listed a group of the attractions which had been booked for his house, and unquestionably this type of advertising must have created a lot of comment in the town and besides must have acted as a sort of a magnet to keep the people in East Liverpool to await the attraction.

Great stuff, Bair, shoot some more on to us and rest assured that in every instance it will find its way on to the CLUB pages, because your advertising has created a whale of a lot of advertising among our many members and readers.

Frank B. Hill As Usual Is Turning Out Fine Lay-Outs

We're going to give you an introduction at this time to Frank B. Hill, whose name has appeared on the CLUB pages before in connection with many novel stunts used in the selling of the shows at the Capitol, Liberty and Roxy Theatres in Walla Walla, Washington. In case you don't know, Frank manages the three house, while Junior Mercy is the General Manager of the circuit's ten houses for the Inland Circuit.

"Clean Advertising"

Our recent statement about "Dirt and Deceit" in theatre advertising brought forth so many fine comments that we want to take this means of expressing our thanks to the many members and readers who were thoughtful and considerate enough to tell us so.

Lack of time makes it rather hard to write each one of you separately and we must use this little box to broadcast our message.

But, honestly speaking, it's a subject worthy of your utmost thought when laying out your theatre's advertising.

Material of a questionable nature is not a bit necessary to good advertising and our earnest hope is that every one of our readers will desist from anything but honest, straightforward truths in this respect.

Thank you!

Frank has done some wonderful exploitation and publicity work out there in Walla Walla and whenever the opportunity presents itself we are only too glad to pass on some new stunt of his to the rest of the boys, so now we are going to tell you how Frank makes up newspaper ads that really sell.

If you will recall, we recently ran an article in the showman section of MOTION PICTURE NEWS stressing the necessity for plenty of white space in newspaper ads and tried to show you how quality could be secured without the aid of quantity, so when we looked over Frank's first ad on "Sunny Side Up" and noted that he had decided to adopt this plan for his ad campaign, we knew then that we had something to tell the rest of the boys about.

To give you an idea of the effectiveness of this ad we want to tell you that Frank paid for 300 lines on four columns of space, making a total of 1,200 lines, and used only 125 lines on two columns for his copy. The ad was centered with 45 lines on one column topping 85 lines on the other column and was attractively made up, the only scene cut used being a picture of the two stars in the film. On the bottom of the ad Frank carried a catch line running across the four columns, which read, "IT IS REALLY FINE—THERE IS NOTHING MORE WE CAN SAY." So there must be something to this "white space" idea when a representative house of the Pacific Northwest will pay for 1,200 lines of space and use only 150 for copy. Think it over. And when you agree with us, why, we're sure that if you would like to look at the ad, Frank will be more than glad to forward you a copy of one of the best examples of high powered showmanship ever used in a newspaper ad.

Yes, sir, we've got to agree with that catch line Frank carries in the ad. and though the line was originally intended to sell the picture, it has sold us the ad. It is really fine, Frank. There is nothing more we can say.

It is unfortunate that we were unable to reproduce Frank's follow up on this ad, which he had made up in red and black, but we want you to know that it looked swell and carried the stars' names and the picture title in red letters, together with some attractively laid out scenes from the picture.

Fine work, Frank, and we want you to know that the sort of showmanship your displaying out there can stand up with the best the Northwest has to offer and it gives us pleasure to know that we have added another active member to the CLUB.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

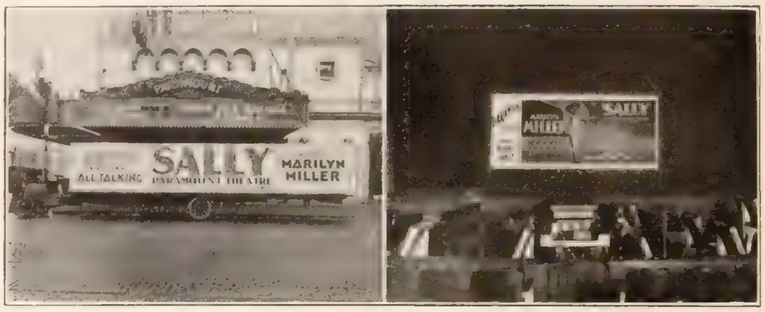
Chas. Pincus Puts Twenty Four Sheet On Theatre Stage

Two of the outstanding exploitation stunts used by Chas. Pincus for the engagement of "Sally" in Des Moines were:

(1) A forty-foot flat wagon, such as is used to haul scenery, was bannered with a huge sign cloth banner and driven about town. The enormous size of the banner made it a great attention attracter.

(2) A week preceding the opening of the picture a billboard presentation stunt was used on the stage of the theatre. The overture for the week consisted of five "Sally" songs and when the band went into the fifth number the curtains parted, revealing a regulation billboard, date strip and all. Instead of the lithograph picture of Marilyn Miller a real dancer was stationed in front of the poster, and at the proper cue she came to life to execute a neat toe dance for the entertainment of the audience.

This successful combination of a unit of entertainment and advertising scored a big hit with the patrons and indelibly stamped upon their minds the play dates of "Sally." The dancer was from a local dancing school and the General Outdoor Advertising Company supplied the billboard gratis in return for the usual credit panel at the top of the board. The lithograph used was the exchange twenty-four sheet poster with the illustration of Marilyn Miller blocked out.



Art Smith's Giant Pass Caused Stir On Midnite Show

Plenty of laughs were gathered by patrons of the Paramount Theatre in Marion, Ind., when Manager Art Smith decided to give away passes for the midnight showing of a recent feature production.

We know you'll probably figure that giving away passes is no laughing matter, we agree of course—too many passes often spoil the b. o. broth—but in this case free passes gave the theatre plenty of word-of-mouth publicity, for the canny Smith had given away special passes MADE UP IN ONE SHEET SIZE. And he wasn't bashful about letting the town know that he gave them away, for much merriment was occasioned on the night of the show when the holders of the passes came down the street carrying their "paper." Poor Annie Oakley would have run out of ammunition shooting holes in those passes.

A gag of this kind, if not used too often, will enable you to secure some excellent publicity for the house, and it can be used for any picture at all, in fact it's not a new gag, and fortunately it has never been overworked. So, if you can find a spot to use it in it will most likely click.

We want to hear more from Art regarding the work he is doing at the Paramount for we feel that he is a real live-wire and we look forward to a nice letter from him telling us how he puts over his shows. How about it Smith?

Frank Sardino Had Whole City Gazing At Freak Ballyhoo

There was one phase of the campaign on "Dynamite," recently engineered by Frank Sardino, manager of the Syracuse Theatre in Syracuse, New York, which deserves more than passing mention, and we'd like to pass it on to the rest of the Club.

Sardino made up a huge box composed of canvas on a wood frame and concealed a man inside it. The man's feet were the only thing visible, and when he walked along the street carrying this strange-looking box, everybody stopped to look at him. To make attention doubly sure, the man had one hand free and while walking along the main thoroughfare, would explode cylinder torpedoes on the side walk as he went along. This stunt had them talking whenever the man appeared and in a lot of cases crowds would follow him along.

Another stunt promoted by Sardino consisted of hiring a big moving van. On each side of the van, two signs reading "Dynamite" were placed. The van drove very slowly along the main streets of the city, preceded by a man on horseback who carried a dynamite danger sign. Inside the van, a man would explode fireworks every minute.

Sardino's lobby was decorated in keeping with the atmosphere of the picture and was done up in red, with special pennants, colored photos, art work and glass electric signs, all helping to sell the picture to his patrons.

Morris' Perfect Publicity Is High Light of Premiere

Sharing honors with the Criterion Theatre of New York City in having the world premiere of "The Vagabond King," the Paramount Theatre of Palm Beach, Fla., exploited the picture by a series of stunts engineered by Walter Morris.

The Publix Sound Train was used to exploit the picture by having a sub-box office built on the rear platform. Copy on the sub-box office read, "THE VAGABOND KING—Reserve seats on sale here! Buy them now! For World Premiere—Dennis King—Wed. Eve., Feb. 19." This train parked in convenient spots at different times of the day and night for the convenience of prospective patrons.

On opening night of picture the Sound Train was parked in front of the theatre and played the song hits from the picture for two hours.

Arrangements were made to install three telephones in three front windows of a vacant store on the main street of West Palm Beach. The windows of the store were painted so that only the face of a girl telephoning back of these windows would show. Across the front of the store was a banner bearing copy. "We're telling the Palm Beachers about the World Premiere of Dennis King in The Vagabond King at the Paramount Theatre Wed. evening, Feb. 19th."

The telephone company prepared a select list of their subscribers which was divided among the three girls. The girls were in the windows Saturday, Monday and Tuesday prior to the opening on Wednesday, and called each number on their lists, telling their listeners about the picture, theatre and playdates.

Several co-operative window displays were also secured on the attraction. Three gowns actually from the production worn by Miss Jeanette MacDonald and two ladies of the ensemble were displayed in a local store window in conjunction with two book frames holding colored enlargements of King and Miss MacDonald.

Arrangements were made for displays in the most prominent local book and music stores. And a co-operative tie-up with the leading representatives of the Florist Telegraph Association resulted in their window being beautifully decorated with flowers and advertising material about the picture. The florist also supplied gratis 750 rose buds which were given to the ladies on opening night of picture.

An electric sign on top of the theatre, lobby and marquee displays as well as countless number of other mediums were also used to make "The Vagabond King" one of the most widely advertised pictures to date.

The only thing we can say about the description we have outlined above in connection with this wonderful piece of work by Walter Morris is that he left no stone unturned to make this world premiere a success, and that is was a success is due to his untiring efforts on behalf of the theatre and attractions.

Congratulations, Walter, and many thanks for forwarding us the campaign book which will be returned to you as soon as the photographs are replaced, which were removed for the purpose of making cuts.

Let's hear some more from you and give our best regards to the crowd down your way.

BE A BOOSTER!

(Thanks to C. Elmer Nolte, Jr.)

"Boost your city, boost your friend,
Boost the lodge that you attend;
  Boost the street on which you're dwelling,
  Boost the goods that you are selling.
Boost the people round about you,
Possibly they can do without you;
  But success will quicker find them,
  If they know that you're behind them.

"Boost for every forward movement,
Boost for every new improvement;
  Boost the stranger and the neighbor,
  Boost the man for whom you labor.
Cease to be a chronic knocker,
Cease to be a progress blocker;
  And if you would have your community better,
  Boost it, boost it to the final letter."

NEXT WEEK

The current mail brought some unusually fine material which we will present on the Club pages next week.

And, of course, we will offer another new angle to the Club pages that is bound to make you sit up and take notice.

Are you interested?

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

MORE REAL SHOWMEN!

ERNEST L. HICKEY is the third of the group of new members proposed by George E. Shewell of the York Theatres Corp., in York, Pa. Hickey manages the Strand and Capitol Theatres in that town and has earned a fine reputation for himself as a wide awake showman, and we want to hear more of his work. Let's have it Ernest and the more the merrier.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

JOSEPH CHADWICK manages the Seltzer Theatre in Palmyra, Pa., and he too, is proposed by George Shewell, whose ambition seems to be to line up the entire state for the Round Table Club. Joseph, we'd like to have you know has made quite a name for himself in Palmyra, and in a little while we expect to pass on his activities to you, and if he'd give us a little inside "info" on his career in the show game, it would certainly be "Oke" with us.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

H. C. PEARL is the manager of the Revere Theatre in Revere, Mass. We have always had a great deal of confidence in the way the showmen in that state put across their shows, and our crystal gazing tells us that we have acquired another member who is going to be very active. Why not shoot us a letter "H. C.," setting forth some of your doings and don't forget to include your photograph with it.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

GEORGE A. DELIS is another showman who really does not need an introduction of this sort, since we have set forth in detail the alert showmanship he has displayed as the manager of the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, but as Delis knows, all who enter the Club, must see their "John Hancocks" on this page sooner or later, so here it is, George, and now you're all set.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

E. W. GILMORE is the manager of the Capitol Theatre in Windsor, Ontario, and though we gave him a little introduction on these pages last week, we feel that since a typographical error was made by the press in his address, the mistake should be rectified now. Gilmore's theatre is located in Windsor, Ont., and not Windon, and since Windsor is up around Jack Allan's district, we sensed that we had better fix up the error before Gilmore and the rest of the live-wires in the district berated us.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

OLINTO ACCORSINI manages the Isis and Academy Theatres in Lynchburg, Va., and with two thousand seats to fill, he should certainly be in a position to tell us a whole lot of fine angles on what he is doing to keep the seats in the two houses filled, and we are looking forward with interest to hearing from him.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

JOHN A. HART is the manager of the Loew's Doan Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, according to Richard Deutsch, who nominates him into the Club, we may expect some live wire showmanship. As a matter of fact though, we have always interested ourselves in the up and coming manner that the Cleveland showmen have of putting their attractions across and we might reveal at this time that we have had our eye on the Doan too. So give us some "info" on yourself, John, and include your photo with your letter.

A. D. RESNICK manages the Hamilton Theatre in Philadelphia, Pa., and is another showman who is continuing to make them sit up and take notice of his activities, by keeping right along with the leading houses in Philly, and giving them all a run for the money. We have introduced Resnick before, so he's no stranger to the Club pages, but "A. D." knows the rule regarding this page and so must appear before you again.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

C. H. STEWART manages the Rialto Theatre in San Antonio, Texas, and we did not need his application blank to inform us that he is going to be a very active member as we have already heard of his showmanship and the way he sells them in San Antonio. So when he sends us in some news of his methods, we hope he will include a photograph of himself. Let's go, "C. H."

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

JOHN STEDMAN is the assistant manager of the Ritz and Palace Theatres in Midland, Texas, and since we have John's boss, Mr. Dodson on our rolls, why it makes the two houses all Round Table. We want to hear more about you, John, since you are holding a pretty important position assisting Dodson with his running of the two theatres, so keep us posted and then we will be able to know how you are getting along.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

G. P. BANNIZA who manages the Princess and Delite Theatres in Decatur, Ala., really does not need an introduction on these pages, since we recently showed how he put over a wonderful campaign on "Flight," and proved his right to acquiring the title of "active" member, but since all members of the Club must be represented on this page, Banniza again finds his name in print. But we want to see your name represented a lot "G. P." so let's have some more of that work you're so capable of doing.

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

W. O. HECKMAN is the manager of the Rialto Theatre in York, Pa., and with George Shewell proposing him for membership, we expect Heckman to be the subject of some interesting items in the very near future because we're well aware that all the York showmen have to step to keep that town "pepped up."

—Wear Your Club Pin ! !—

EDWARD B. LEWIS is the manager of the Dewitt Theatre in Elizabeth, N. J., and knowing his fine record at the Central in Jersey City we feel sure that he is going to continue the good work and will become an active member of the CLUB, and with bigger and better exploitation as his war cry, our opinion should be justified.

—Wear Your Club Pin! ! !—

LYMAN LYNN is the manager of the Liberty Theatre in Pasco, Wash., and is the last but not least of the whole bunch of new members from the Inland Theatres Corp. circuit to be proposed for membership by Frank B. Hill, and his application just about makes that organization 100 per cent for the ROUND TABLE CLUB. Now we are anxious to see which one of these new members is the most aggressive when it comes to demonstrating showmanship. We are keeping our eye on the whole outfit, so some one should start the ball a-rolling. How about you, Lyman?

COMPLETE RELEASE CHART

MANHATTAN MOVIES

By G. BRYON WINSTEAD
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Mar. 18 (U.P.)—Educational films last week released two comedies made under the Mack Sennett banner which will find much popularity wherever shown. There is one two-reeler titled "He Trumped Her Ace" which, as you no doubt have guessed, is about bridge. A husband plays the game as well as most husbands do, a wife takes her grievance to the divorce court and a "kibitzer" turns out to be a divorce court judge. The dialogue is racy and the laughs are spaced just a little too close together if you like to stop shaking between funny situations.

The other Educational comedy "Match Play" brings the American golf champions Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel to the screen. The supporting cast furnishes plenty of hilarious comedy and what Hagen and Diegel lack in camera poise they make up when they address the golf ball—and some of the shots they make, even if it is just in the picture, are destined to cause a lot of amateur golfers many hours of practice in attempting to duplicate.

The Educational-Mack Sennett combination is turning out talkies that no comedy lover should miss.

"Mamba" smashed all records at the Gaiety for the first two weeks of its run. This picture appeals particularly to women. Matinees at the Gaiety — big. Attendance — mostly women. Evenings—men and women.

The picture, highly praised by New York critics, has a two-fold box-office power. It attracts men because of its romance and the jungle scenes, vividly portrayed in NATURAL COLORS. Women like the tense love situation—Beauty and the Beast—as well as the marvelous Technicolor effects.

"Mamba" is SUPREME for ANY HOUSE, ANYWHERE!

Storm Rumblings Reported as Hays Ass’n Prepares for Annual Meeting on Monday Reported Withdrawal Threat, Code of Ethics Slated to Be Acted Upon?

With recurring reports of a storm brewing due to a "show-me" attitude on the part of one or more members, the Hays association holds its annual meeting on Monday. For some time there have been reports, persistently denied, that dissatisfaction within the organization's ranks had cropped up and that threat of withdrawal of membership of at least one company had been made.

Since this reported incident, it is understood that data has been assembled covering association activities in an effort to re-sell the idea of its importance in carrying out functions other than arbitration, discontinuance of which is said to have led to the reported threat of withdrawal.

In addition to this reported business, the association Monday is scheduled to act upon the code of ethics for talkers, recently adopted on the Coast by the M. P. Producers Ass'n.

Code to Offset Hudson

The code of ethics assumes a particularly important aspect at this time, in view of efforts being made by Rep. Hudson (Rep., Mich.) to secure House backing in Washington for his bill providing for Federal regulation. The code already has been accepted by the producers' association.

Ban upon any picture which might lower moral standards, ridicule of law, white slavery, detailing of crime or the drug traffic is provided in the new code.

"The sanctity of the institution of marriage and the home shall be upheld," reads provisions of the code. "Adultery, sometimes necessary plot material, must not be justified nor treated attractively."

"Verboten" Material

Scenes of passion must not be shown in manner which will stimulate the lower and baser elements, and other stipulations forbid: Complete nudity, indecent or undue exposure; obscenity in word, gesture, song or by suggestion; ridicule of any religious faith or nationality, and salacious, indecent or obscene titles.

"Good taste" in treatment of the following subjects is ordered by the code: Executions, third degree methods, brutality, gruesomeness and the branding of persons or animals; cruelty to children or animals, and a woman selling her virtue.

New Wrinkle

Something brand new in chiseling rackets is being attempted by a New York circuit on an employee. He had been working for the firm for five weeks without being paid and when he came to collect his pay envelope, he was told the firm was deducting two per cent off for cash. He probably will sue.

Chi's Big Snow; Big Loop Trade; Big Gin Famine

Chicago—The Loop theatres in this Windy City pulled a great exploitation stunt this week. They made arrangements with the weather man to stage a real old-time blizzard, and, being a movie fan, he sent a two-day whizzer.

The storm may have been tough on others, but it was great for the Loop theatres. Suburban residents, unable to reach their homes owing to the deep snow, remained downtown at night and jammed all the theatres to capacity. Most neighborhood theatres were deserted, with majority of the big stands in the Loop playing to top-notch biz at the box-office.

The Motion Picture News correspondent reports that the bootleggers quickly ran out and their supply was cut off, with the result that the exchange managers feared a gin famine.

No Sale to Zukor Planned, Maxwell States in London

London—Motion Picture News' exclusive story that Adolph Zukor might be expected to acquire the Maxwell theatres in England to offset the Fox hold via Gaumont British is met with denials from John Maxwell. "Nothing to it," is the way he describes the report.

He further declared there was no truth to the story that Warners might buy control of First National-Pathe from him.

Squash RKO-U.K. Yarn

London—RKO representatives scout reports crediting the company with establishment of its own distributing organization in Great Britain, where company's product is now handled on a franchise basis by Ideal. The yarn first gained widespread attention when RKO recently launched a unit to produce

Ina Claire Paid $75,000 By Pathe For Her Contract

Hollywood—Pathe paid Ina Claire $75,000 for the second picture under her contract, which has not been made, and has terminated the contract, figuring it will save money by this course.

The contract called for two pictures at $75,000 each, with a weekly drawing account against salary, and an option for a third picture at $100,000. Through delays, the company found that it only had five weeks to shoot the second picture, "Holiday," before Miss Claire started drawing against the $100,000, and rather than get involved in further expense, arranged for cancellation of the contract.

The star was agreeable on account of various stage and screen offers and is going East to dispose of her property there and to consider several stage offers. She intends to return in about two months.

Thalberg Denies He Is to Supersede Sheehan at Fox

Hollywood—Irving G. Thalberg denies knowledge of any plan in William Fox's mind to place him in charge of the Fox studio, replacing Winfield Sheehan. The plan, reported in Motion Picture News last week, had it that if Fox is successful in his fight for adoption of the Lehman refinancing agreement, Sheehan would be asked to resign his post as production chief. Thalberg further adds no discussions or negotiations along such lines have been held.

Motion Picture News

WHY WON'T THE LITTLE EXHIBITOR LEARN?

THE picture theatre. The hub of community activity no matter where throughout this country you may go. The nucleus around which local business activity thrives. The life of any and all civic parties. Potentially and actually a sound investment but recognized lastly as such by the exhibitor himself.

Take the plight today of the little showman. He's facing tough times. He has to have sound equipment or go out of business. The cost is heavy and the financial responsibility a worry. Good roads carry his audiences of yesteryear to the nearest large city or town where the producer-owner—or—controlled theatre gives the public more comfortable seats, nicer surroundings and pictures to sit through much faster than the small exhibitor can ever hope to get them.

Flirting with the Bankers

Not a pleasant outlook. Yet the little fellow sits back, thinks how rocky times are and does nothing when he can do plenty. For instance, how many exhibitors are cultivating the friendship and the counsel of their local bankers?

How many of them have had enough business sagacity to develop an "in" so that they can have an "out" for their worries? How many of them have thrown out financial life-belts for support on the day when wide film takes over their screens or those screens will go dark?

Every theatre owner in the business can clear his path of obstacles if he will muster enough thinking power to marshal his resources. This week and every week and right from the pages of MOTION PICTURE NEWS the answer is to be found in how the big companies, the national chains, conduct their operations.

The Lesson of the Chains

For example, do you think that the moguls of Wall Street or La Salle Street battered down the doors of the successful companies in this field in frantic effort to force finances upon them? What the big operators did was to study their own situations, draw up their own picture, analyze their needs and then went out as doggedly as they knew how to sell and sell and sell until the money they were after was underwritten.

The little fellow's job may be difficult, but it's as easy as logrolling by comparison with the obstacles the big companies had to hurdle. The small exhibitor knows his community, is constantly, or should be constantly, throwing himself into contact with the monied interests in his own town.

Showmanship Off Stage and On

If the little man lays claim to any reputation at all as a showman, he practices in the theatre and out. That means he meets the banker in community life. And that makes it easy to foster and cuddle the contact for future dealings.

The unaffiliated theatre owner will have to use his head if he intends remaining in business. The day of blockheads, thick heads and lunkheads is gone beyond recall.

The fellow who pulls through is the chap who uses the showmanship assets of which he likes to boast to ease himself into a spot of financial safety.

No Monopoly on Brains

The battle won't be easy. The tenacious hold of the chains is gripping the unattached exhibitor in a vise that is tightening inexorably as the months roll by. It is this forum's opinion, nevertheless, that exhibition will never be closed to the man who has initiative, backbone and the four-lettered word that spells guts.

The banker angle—not in the field afar, but localized in the community—is one of the answers. It's one big, definitely constructive move toward self-preservation. Why won't the little exhibitor get wise?

Protection Seen the Big 5-5-5 Issue As Delay on Contract Change is Expected

Fannie Brice Suit Set for April 7

Trial is slated April 7 on three damage actions involving $180,000 filed against Art Cinema Corp., headed by Joseph M. Schenck, by Fannie Brice and her husband, Billy Rose. Miss Brice is asking for $125,000 which she was to have received for a second talker. She said the contract for the first called for $125,000 for 14 weeks, and asks $30,000 for overtime. Rose asks $25,000, for work on the second talker.

Fejos Clashes With Junior And Quits "U"

Hollywood—Paul Fejos, Hungarian doctor, Hollywood director and long Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s, pet, is no longer on the Universal lot.

Fejos asked for his release: there was a confab on the unexpired portion of an existing contract and the relationship covering period of years ended. Now the director is negotiating with several large studios.

Time was when Fejos got everything he asked for at Universal City. The traveling crane, which cost the company a pretty penny, was a Fejos idea, but the Hungarian felt he had to have it adequately to secure camera angles, asked for it, designed it, had it built and tucked the key in his pocket. The crane was an exclusive Fejos affair.

The director and Laemmle Junior have had a number of run-ins on stories, treatments and casts. Yet Fejos has a real admiration for Junior and Junior likes Fejos. When "Broadway" reached the production schedule, Junior picked Fejos to direct it. This was a prize property on the lot and the director picked to make it might well feel he had been honored—from the company angle.

But Fejos knew how heavily Universal was on the nut for story and carrying charges and was frankly skeptical about the outcome. "U," already in for plenty, figured the best way out was to go the limit and make the picture an "epic"—a million dollar picture. Fejos argued for a picture in the same tempo as the play. He tried to avoid smothering the guts of the story with production values. But Junior, being the boss, won out and Fejos had to carry out orders.

It is reported that, at Fejos' insistence, the company purchased "All Quiet on the Western Front." The director had a war record and was daffy about making it. But Junior assigned Lewis Milestone the job and Fejos, the Whiteman picture. Then John Murray Anderson was assigned Whiteman and along came "La Marseillaise." Fejos is understood to be on record

Disney and Powers At Odds; Squabble Results in Break

Hollywood—Through business dissolution of P. A. Powers and Walt Disney, the Disney Cartoon series of Mickey Mouse and Silly Symphonies will be released through Columbia. Rumors of the Powers-Disney break were reported for several weeks in local circles, with various releasing organizations attempting to make new deals with the Disneys.

Roy Disney declared that all contracts held by exhibitors through either P. A. Powers or Celebrity Pictures for either of the popular cartoon series will be fulfilled by Columbia exchanges by the new arrangement.

Mary Nolan Hurls Defi At Universal on Layoff

Hollywood—Mary Nolan declares she will never set foot on Universal Studio grounds again. Universal contends the star is still under an ironclad contract, and will be expected to live up to it.

In the meantime, Miss Nolan finds herself on a 12-week layoff as provided for in her contract, and discovers Pauline Starke playing the leading role in "What Men Want."

Just another case of a star getting temperamental against the policies of a studio—only in this case the Mary Nolan blow-up at Universal has been long in arriving.

Helen Twelvetrees Gets Writ on Cruelty Charges

Hollywood—Mental cruelty and brutality charges won a divorce for Helen Twelvetrees from Clark Twelvetrees. She testified she thought she could reform him, but after three years has concluded that this is impossible.

Schwartz Continues with Century Staff Split-Up

Jack Sokaloff, chief booker and film buyer for the Schwartz Century circuit of 26 houses in the Metropolitan zone, has resigned. The chain has split with a number of its old chiefs in recent months.

Test Action on Clearance To Be Held Up Pending Action on Problem Is View

With plan of distributors to get suggestions from as many exhibitors as possible on proposed contract changes expected to put over adoption of a contract for some months, the 5-5-5 conferences are to be resumed Tuesday in New York, tackling protection as one of its major problems.

The protection problem is an acute one in several sections of the country, and effort is slated to be made to arrive at a plan for dealing with the plan regionally. Zoning committees in each key city are expected to be named to deal with the problem of extended protection, which some exhibitors insist is more important than any other phase of the contract.

Efforts to secure a wide diversity of exhibitor opinion on contract changes will put over adoption of the agreement until after the new selling season, it is stated. Accordingly, so far as most exhibitors are concerned, the new contract would not become operative for a year, unless provision is made to make it retroactive.

While the protection situation is under discussion, it is understood that test cases planned by a number of exhibitor units on the subject will be held in abeyance.

Grauman to Handle Coast Opening of "Hell's Angels"

Hollywood—Sid Grauman is to take charge of the Los Angeles opening of "Hell's Angels" for Caddo Prod., it is reported. The picture is slated to open the new Pantages house here about May 3. The booking at the Chinese was cancelled due to inability of Fox West Coast and Howard Hughes of Caddo to agree upon financial arrangements.

Goethe Poem Filmed

No date has been set as yet for the New York opening of "Hell's Angels," and it is probable that the opening may not take place until fall. The picture is to go into the Cohan, under present plans. Wayne Pierson is to handle the New York opening. He was engaged 15 months ago for the purpose.

Seek Two Chains

Philadelphia—Warners is dickering for the Handle & Rovner chain of 22 theatres in southern New Jersey, according to "The Exhibitor." This will mean a lot more accounts for the Warner exchange. Warners also is dickering for the Wilmer & Vincent Pennsylvania houses. Publix also is seeking this circuit, it is stated. W. & V. has about 18 houses in the Keystone State.

No comment on the above reports could be obtained Thursday at the Warner or W. & V. offices.

An Insider's Outlook

THE dear old fillum bizness is living up to its chameleon traditions. Nary a week goes by, but that the moving times through which this industry passes brings its changes.

Very soon now, you may hear something that approaches the startling. The underground rumor route is charged with a load of speculation, about the future of a certain organization. If and when the stuff whispered actually takes place, the shock will be sufficient to stir the jaded in this business as rarely before.

It wouldn't do at this time to mention the outfit by name, for that which threatens may not take place after all. But if it does, what you will see is this:

The severance of relations of a number of important names now identified with this unknown.

A reorganization.

A new policy designed to keep what's left of this corporate family happy.

And a far less highfalutin' attitude toward those outside the pale, yet inside because the insiders depend on the outsiders to carry on their dealings.

Sounds mysterious and is.

That Front

From Everyman's Land, sometimes dubbed Wall Street, comes this:

That a well known producing and distributing company, prominent in the field, is scanning the immediate future with worry and trepidation. Business is good. No concern there.

But the headachy condition is being aggravated by a long string of commitments which insist upon falling due with too much regularity and too much frequency for bankrolls and lines of credit. The few individuals who know what's going on are sanguine that the situation is temporary and that the embarrassed one will pull through with at least a couple of standards flying. These same gentlemen point to the messy Fox situation and voice the hope that the new near-crisis will not tie the purse strings of the investing public into any more knots than now exist.

This latest in under cover dramas is now nearing the climax. Like the Fox situation, it may break out in an overnight rash. The principals involved have many friends, especially in the ranks of a friendly, competitive company headed by an executive who has come to the rescue on more occasions than one in the last fifteen years. He may prove to be the angel again.

Manhandling

The city is not far from New York. The dominant circuit is controlled by a producing and distributing corporation of prominence. Of local first runs, this chain has more than its share. Despite woefully bad selection in operating personnel and the incompetence that runs hand in hand with mismanagement, these theatres are doing pretty well.

Bulwarked by mass buying power, the unreasonable protection which all circuits demand and get today, there is no reason for any other condition to prevail. Yet, this very group of houses is pulling some of the roughest stuff this writer has come across in a number of years.

When Jolson Skidded

After the tear glands stopped their sentimental overflow at the opening of "Mammy" Wednesday night, the New York audience applauded Al Jolson into an impromptu speech.

"You all seem to like it," he said in effect. "You think it's wonderful; your applause indicates that. But that's tonight. Tomorrow morning a couple of cuckoos will say it's l—sy anyway."

Three newspaper critics heard the crack, stopped in their tracks, looked at each other, said in unison:

"Oh, yeah!"

And then hurried to their typewriters to knock off their reviews.

Not satisfied with its present set-up and the lion's share of box-office intake, this crowd is hammering down opposition by tactics that smack of gangland. Banners on competitive theatres are being torn down and destroyed; prints mysteriously fail to arrive at their destination; bodily violence for those who won't fall in line has actually been broached.

Sitting at headquarters is the head of the company whose attributes are gilded like the lily—by his press agents. It may be he doesn't know what some of his subalterns are doing, but nevertheless the two extremes of the picture are ironic and grimly laughable.

Who Pays for This?

Producers, hot after talent, have been on the hunt for many months. Their diligence has been rewarded by the transfer of many Broadway stage notables to the coast. Yet the scrutiny with which they are combing the main stem isn't always as close as they think. For instance:

A young stage producer, projecting himself into the future, recently figured it was high time to break into production. He hied himself to one of the biggest names in the business. Offered to work for six weeks at no pay, merely to demonstrate his capabilities for the job. A square-shooter's proposition, and an unusual one in this business.

But the executive was busy. After all, he has to do something to warrant his three grand a week. It wasn't long thereafter when the young hopeful blossomed forth with a play. An instantaneous hit. Critics frothed at the mouth over it. And the excitement percolated into the film business.

Right now—this minute—the important production executive, tongue hanging from mouth, is dangling a contract in four figures before this selfsame stage producer while the latter openly chortles, asks for more, and will probably get it—and plenty.

More Truth Than——

Two big producers met the other day. Said one:

"Say, what's this story I hear about you retiring from your company."

Second producer: "I don't know a thing about it, but I haven't talked to my bankers today."

All of which carries far more import than this poor attempt at comedy indicates.

Wind from Windy City

Someone started a record hot shot in Chicago to help melt the snow the record blizzard dumped there. Here it is:

That Samuel Insull, one of America's kings of finance and public utilities—chiefly gas—is buying Fox, Loew's, Paramount, Shuberts and perhaps a couple of more headline babies we inadvertently overlooked.

Lasky Sees "Malicious Propaganda" In Reports Authority Has Been Clipped

Schulberg, Paramount's Studio King

Hollywood—It wasn't so long ago that Walter Wanger, functioning as general manager of production for Paramount, found himself at cross purposes with Ben Schulberg, kingpin of the company lot here. Wanger lost, which means, in turn, that Schulberg won and from that time on, the studio became acutely Schulberg-conscious. Reports which Jesse L. Lasky denies that he is to confine his production control to New York has caused some lifting of eye-brows and wonder over exactly what was transpiring.

His Control of Both Studios Stays—Denies Published Stories to Contrary

Jesse L. Lasky wants to know the "who and why" of reports appearing in other publications intimating that his authority over Paramount's West Coast studios has been clipped in favor of B. P. Schulberg and that he is to devote his time to the limited production activities of his company in the East.

The Paramount official hints at "malicious propaganda" and perhaps sabotage in these published reports, according to which he will establish a permanent home in New York and leave to Schulberg the destinies of the Hollywood plant, which Lasky has personally supervised for many years.

As a matter of fact, Lasky has always maintained a permanent residence in New York and never on the Coast. What he proposes to do is to establish a home in Hollywood and spend considerably more time there than he has until now. His next trip West will be made when the company's convention train pulls out in May for the annual sales jamboree in San Francisco, after which he will remain in Hollywood until the end of August. Then he returns to the East for a few weeks and again journeys West.

Reports disposing of Lasky's future did one thing however. They revived speculation over his status with Paramount and were responsible for renewal of stories that the move, if true, was another step in the oft-credited suspicion that he was about to sever connections with his Paramount-Famous-Lasky organization.

When it was determined recently to play up Paramount in the main titles of the company's product and one down to the point of elimination the long-standing credit line "Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky present," wiseacres seized the evidence as further proof—in their eyes—that the Lasky star was on the wane. The fact further that the main titles carried the name of B. P. Schulberg as associate producer in large lettering as against Zukor's and Lasky's in small type and as part of the corporation's trade mark caused additional tongues to wag, both in New York and Hollywood.

Lasky says his relations with the studios, East and West, are unchanged.

Looks pleasant enough here, but Jesse L. Lasky is perturbed over reports intimating his influence at Paramount is on wane.

Duty on Silver Set; Expect Free Newsreel Entry

Washington—Carrying only two items affecting the industry, the Senate has passed the tariff bill and sent it to the conference committee, where the final word on tariff rates will be spoken some time within the next six weeks or two months.

The passage of the bill by the Senate came nearly 15 months after the initial work on the measure was started with the opening of hearings by the House committee on ways and means in January, 1929. The bill was reported to the House by the committee in May, and was passed May 28. It then went to the Senate finance committee for hearings, and was reported to the Senate Sept. 4, since which time it has been almost continuously under consideration.

Both of the items affecting the industry were inserted by the Senate and, therefore, are subject to consideration by the conferees. The most important was the amendment of Senator Pittman, imposing a duty of 30 cents per ounce on silver, which it is estimated will cost the industry up to $10,000,000 a year. The other item gave duty-free entry to undeveloped negative film of American manufacture, exposed abroad for silent or sound newsreel.

While there may be some opposition in conference to the duty on silver, it is not believed that there will be any difficulty in securing the free listing of news-reel negatives.

Films to Be Used to Put Over "Mex" Gaming Place

Hollywood—Agua Caliente, the new $5,000,000 casino, race track and resort located a few miles below the California-Mexican border and a favorite week-end resort for Hollywooders, will use pictures extensively to advertise the project.

Films, via Multicolor, were shot recently of the casino and hotel interiors; race track, golf course, etc., and will be assembled into a two-reeler that will be routed in theatres both in the United States and abroad.

No indication has been given as to whether or not those in charge will reimburse theatres for showing the films.

Keith Out; Lew Cody Cast For "What a Widow"

Hollywood—One result of Joseph P. Kennedy's plan for shooting "What A Widow" in three days of dress rehearsals resulted in the replacement of Ian Keith as leading man by Lew Cody.

Officials in charge of the production figured Keith was not just the type for the lead opposite Gloria Swanson in the production and spotted Cody in his place for the regular picture.

In addition to change of the leading man, it is reported various changes have been made in dialogue and sequences as a result of seeing the dress rehearsals of the picture on the screen prior to start of actual shooting. Kennedy figures his experiment now a practical demonstration of what can be accomplished in saving production costs besides insuring quality.

3 Stockholders to Get Look at Stanley Books

Wilmington—Books of the Stanley Co. will be shown to the three stockholders who brought mandamus action against the company. The three were among those who refused to exchange their Stanley stock for Warner Brothers Pictures stock when the latter absorbed Stanley. They contend the Stanley firm concealed from them the true value of the common stock they owned and demanded to see all books.

Raskob, Du Pont Aide, Launches War On Eastman via Warner Stock Buy

Now Tied in with Pathe, Du Pont Interests Seek Greater Market

The fight is coming into the clear. Sparks struck by Du Pont in the long-anticipated war with Eastman Kodak over raw film stakes threaten to touch off a can of dynamite which has been threatening to explode for some months.

John J. Raskob, financial advisor for the Du Pont interests, has been buying into Warner Bros. His holdings, as reported some weeks ago in Motion Picture News, total approximately $9,000,000 with the end not yet in sight. Harry M. Warner dismisses the buy by stating that his company's stock is in the open market and may be purchased by anybody who has a sufficient line of credit to finance it.

Lurking in the background is the inside yarn that the Du Ponts engineered the heavy stock purchase by way of additional leverage to expand their raw stock business. Warners and First National jointly use millions of feet of film a year, exactly how much is difficult to compute, but enough to make a real difference in Du Pont's sales.

Du Pont made its first splurge in the film industry via Du Pont-Pathe Manufacturing Company, a subsidiary fifty-one percent controlled by the powerful Wilmington interests and forty-nine percent owned by Pathe. That deal makes it obligitory for Pathe to use Du Pont negative exclusively and is generally regarded as the first of several steps of which the Warner hook-up is the next to counter the Eastman hold with stiff competition.

Marathon Dances Under Fire in Indianapolis

Indianapolis—This city would stop marathon dances staged by theatre managers or others, if an ordinance just introduced in the city council is passed. Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan had requested the city legal department to draft the ordinance.

The ordinance would not only prohibit "any person, persons, association, firm or corporation" from conducting an endurance dance, but prohibit the leasing of a "room, hall, theatre or auditorium," to be used for such a dance. An endurance dance is interpreted as meaning a dance which continues more than twelve hours, regardless of whether rest periods for participants are allowed. Penalties attached are not less than $25 nor more than $200 in fines, to which may be added imprisonment not exceeding 180 days.

Para., RKO May Build Studios at Burbank, Cal.

Hollywood—Paramount and RKO may build studios at Burbank, it is reported here. Warners recently announced plans for new stages at Burbank.

Odor Is New Gag for Pictures

Washington—The sense of smell is to be added to make pictures more effective, if the patented idea of John H. Lovell is adopted. Appropriate odors are to be projected into the audience, to provide "atmosphere" for scenes, under the plan. Thus if flowers are shown on the screen, their odors would be wafted to the audience. Shots of edibles would be accompanied by the proper odor, and so on. No details were given as to how the odors would be expelled into the audience.

Anti-Chain Bill Suffers Setback By Texas Solons

Austin, Tex.—The movement against chain theatres and other chain enterprises received a setback when the House committee failed to report the bill on tax circuit operation. The vote by the committee on revenues and taxation was 8 to 6 against the proposed measure.

The anti-chain bill is said to have had the backing of the Texas exhibitor unit, headed by Col. H. A. Cole.

Baltimore Showmen Hit Daylight Saving Plan

Baltimore—Theatre owners here are distributing ballot cards for voting on daylight saving. A protest meeting was held at Keith's last Sunday, where several addresses against putting the clocks ahead were passed. Women are making speeches at various houses against daylight saving. The Daylight Saving League claims that 824 firms, employing 54,000 workers, want daylight saving time.

Quick Action on Censor Law for Ads in Quebec

Quebec—Censorship of theatrical newspaper advertising is provided in a bill introduced, given three readings and passed the same day. No pictures can be used in newspaper advertisements except from posters or stills passed by censors, while original illustrations must be approved by the board.

Western Division Wins Pathe Strafe Contest

The Pathe western sales division has copped first prize in the strafe sales contest, just completed. Herbert MacIntyre is manager of the division and the ace branches and their managers in the order they finished are: Des Moines, Lou Elman; Seattle, Lee Theuerkauf; Milwaukee, Tom Greenwood.

Hammerstein To Film Tully Play, "Bird of Paradise"

"The Bird of Paradise," said to be one of the most valuable vehicles extant that has not reached the screen, will be filmed for United Artists by Arthur Hammerstein, who announced this week that he had acquired the producing rights. Produced by Richard Walton Tully and Oliver Morosco, it was one of the biggest bets on the boards, but a plagiarism suit brought against them held up its screening until now. First National held the film rights at one time, but officials of that company refused to state when they disposed of them.

"In the screen spectacle," Hammerstein said, "the music will be composed by Rudolph Friml; the adaptation will be made by Howard Emmett Rogers, the lyrics will be by Jack Brennan and the settings by William Cameron Menzies, supervising art director of United Artists. I propose to make 'The Bird of Paradise' available to the entire country on the most pretentious scale that men, money and time can effect."

Eight M-G-M Employees Have Narrow Escapes

Hollywood—The thrill was not in the script, but it was a real one, and eight members of a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer unit are still talking about it. While aboard a 30-foot launch 12 miles off Long Beach the boat overturned and sank to the bottom of the sea with a lot of expensive equipment. The members of the unit, saved by a passing speedboat, were John Miljan, an actor; Cameramen Gordon Avil, Dale Dederman and George Nogle; Soundman Ed Hoffman, Electricians W. H. Vernon and Lloyd Isabel and Property Man Bert Sperling.

Nolte New President of Maryland Exhibitor Unit

Baltimore—Charles E. Nolte has succeeded Herman Blum as president of the Maryland exhibitor unit. Other officers who were re-elected, are: Lauritz C. Garman, vice-president; Frank A. Horning, treasurer. Blum was elected a director

Government Agents Secretly Checking Up Hays and Members for Violations

Posing as Employees, Seek Evidence for Anti-Trust Action

What may mean a new offensive on the part of the Federal Government may develop as a result of secret investigations of industry conduct sponsored by officials in Washington. "Spotters" have been planted in the Hays association and in the offices of several of the larger companies in New York with instructions to report their findings to Washington.

Whether or not the probe has been completed or not seems to be a point in doubt. It is known, however, that agents, posing as employees, have been boring in for some months with orders to keep their eyes peeled and their ears open for whatever they can pick up.

On Hunt for Inside Data

As closely as the purpose can be learned, the idea is to secure data to be filed in official archives. It may be that the information thus obtained will be kept for future use, but easily within the realm of possibility is the launching of an entirely new compaign against certain practices which Government bureaus are believed to hold contrary to law.

The anti-trust laws recognize the right of individual corporations to refuse dealings with individuals. Under such Federal regulations, for instance, a distributor may turn down an exhibitor if he feels he does not want to do business with him. On the other hand, any agreement on the part of one or more companies to so do falls into the category of restraint of trade.

The Hays Slant

What Federal agents are after is evidence, if any should exist, which would indicate that the latter situation has or does prevail. Concentration on the Hays office was determined upon to discover if the association has sponsored or is attempting to bind its company members in agreements which fall under anti-trust regulations.

Visited by Stork

Richmond—The stork has visited the Byrd, Richmond's $1,000,000 uptown playhouse, and left numerous baby alligators in the aquarium of the place of amusement. Several large alligators were recently brought from Florida and placed in the pool in the Byrd lobby. The arrival of the baby alligators has caused hundreds of children and their parents to make trips to the theatre. The Byrd aquarium is one of the largest pools to be seen in any playhouse in the South.

Hudson Hits at Hays, 4 Firms In House Talk

Washington—Declaring that his bill to regulate motion pictures was "a direct result of the cleverness of the industry—Fox, Paramount, Warner Brothers and Radio-Keith-Orpheum—at evasion and defeat of the Federal Trade Commission in its endeavor to eliminate the objectional practices of alleged monopolistic chain theatres, block booking and blind booking" Representative Hudson of Michigan urged enactment of his measure this week during several hours of general debate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill in which members of the House of Representatives discussed everything but the legislation under consideration.

Those provisions of the measure dealing with the subject matter going into the films, he claimed, was merely the incorporation into the bill of the producers' own code or standard of quality for films adopted in 1921 and reaffirmed in each subsequent year up to the present time, but which, he asserted, "the 'czar' of Hollywood seems unable to enforce among his four 'subjects.'"

For nine years the Federal Government and the people of the country have been trying by concession, entreaty, cooperation and, finally, lawsuits, to get this industry to clean house and have met with evasion and promises that an older and more mature industry would not countenance, Hudson asserted.

"My bill is now in the Interstate Commerce Committee for consideration, and already the movie men and their press agents wildly shout 'censorship' and 'restriction of business,'" he said. "The same thing, they forget, was shouted when the Interstate Commerce Commission was proposed. The ordinary channels of government have been unable to cope with the overgrown bad boy in his adroitness. Hence the Hudson bill and loud shouts of 'wolf' from Hollywood."

Ralph Williams Named Aide to Ted Schlanger

Ralph Williams, who, in addition to his supervisory duties in the Atlanta territory, has been acting as manager of the Universal exchange there, has been named assistant eastern sales manager, with headquarters in New York, and supervision over the South. He is the second assistant to Ted Schlanger to be named by Lou B. Metzger, general manager. The other is Sig Wittman, who has supervision over the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh territories. T. O. Tuttle, who has been manager of the Universal Charlotte branch, has been named manager at Atlanta, and Cowan Bain of Jacksonville moves up to become manager at Charlotte.

After Sales Dope

Al Lichtman

Bruce Gallup

Lichtman, Gallup, Lusty Leaving To Study U. A.'s 18

Sales angles of the 18 pictures which are to comprise the United Artists program for the 1930-31 season will be studied by Al Lichtman, head of United Artists' distribution; Bruce Gallup, advertising and publicity director, and Lou Lusty, head of publicity for Inspiration Pictures, upon their arrival on the Coast. The trio entrain Monday for Hollywood.

United Artists' projected program of 18 pictures for the new season compares with 15 releases during the 1929-30 season. The national magazine and newspaper advertising is to get special attention during the trip of the three executives to the Coast.

National Screen Service Net for 1929 Is $475,625

Net income of $475,625 is reported by National Screen Service for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929. This is equivalent after charges and Federal taxes to $4.32 a share on 110,000 no-par shares outstanding. In 1928, net was $233,976, or $2.12 a share. Assets as of Dec. 31 are $732,199 and liabilities $226,867, compared with $363,917 and $173,292 respectively in 1928.

M.P.T.O.A. Directors to Hold Spring Meet Monday

Directors of the M. P. T. O. A. will hold their spring meeting on Monday. Reports will be presented by M. A. Lightman, president; Jay Emanuel, treasurer, and M. J. O'Toole, secretary. These will be supplemented by a number of committee reports. E. M. Fay, Providence, is chairman of the board of directors.

Industry's Trade Practice Conference And Others May Be Probed by Congress

Representative Wants Work of Federal Trade Commission Investigated by House

Washington—Trade practice conference held by the industry in 1927, under auspices of the Federal Trade Commission, may be investigated by the House, if a resolution offered by Rep. Patman (Tex. Dem.) is adopted. The congressman accuses Attorney General Mitchell of "following in the footsteps of Harry Daugherty" in his attitude toward "monopolies and trusts," demanding that the trade practice conference work of the commission be probed.

The trade commission, the congressman said, repeatedly has been refused congressional sanction for its trade practice conferences, asserting the attorney general is "working harmoniously" with the commission and likewise is abusing "power entrusted to him."

Exhibitor Protests Use of "Paramount" by Rival

Seattle—As an aftermath of the recent change in name of the Publix Seattle here to the Seattle Paramount, the Publix and its local subsidiary, the Seattle Theatre Corp., were cited to appear before Court Judge Robert M. Jones and show cause why they should not be restrained from changing the name.

The order was issued on petition of William F. Code, owner of the Paramount at 2115 North 45th St., in Seattle, a small neighborhood house that has been operated under the name of Paramount since 1921. Code further alleges that since the Seattle changed its name to Paramount two weeks ago that he has suffered damages to the extent of $5,000.

Radiotone Offers New Plan to Exhibitors

Radiotone Pictures, New York, will permit exhibitors to return Radiotone equipment if business does not improve after four months, the company states. The price for a complete apparatus is now $1,200, having recently been reduced from $2,000.

There is no down payment for Radiotone. Exhibitors pay as they play, $100 monthly.

Kidding Public Proves Disastrous for Czech

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia—Kidding the public is not a healthful pastime here, it was shown when the town's first "sound" film was found by the audience to be produced by live actors and musicians secreted behind the screen. Yells and hisses followed by throwing of missiles resulted when the deception was discovered. Patrons compelled the return of their admission money.

Hays' "Cargo" Ban Up in London

London—Echoes of Will Hays' ban on "White Cargo" are heard in "Kine Weekly," which finds it "difficult to appreciate the grounds upon which the Hays organization banned" the British-made production from their producer-owned theatres. The paper claims that W-P Film Co. which produced the picture, was assured by "an official of the Hays organization that there would be no opposition to it in the States."

The Hays association officially denies any such promise was made.

against the story treatment finally adopted. He saw it one way and Junior another. So the picture was made—and practically re-made with John Robertson as the pinch-hitting director.

Now Fejos has wired New York critics disclaiming any credit for the picture, which is to be released as "Captain of the Guard," except for the sequences showing the banquet of the Hussars, the march of the men of Marseillaise and the battle scenes. The rest, his wire says, "is unknown to me."

Universal has eliminated Paul Fejos' name on all billing as director of "Captain of the Guard." The company admits the sequences outlined in the Fejos telegram were directed as asserted and declares the picture was practically re-made because "it couldn't be ended" as the director treated it.

Pathe Cinema Distributes Photophone in France

Pathe Cinema has been named exclusive distributor of RCA Photophone in France. All sound equipment installed to date and operated by RCA Photophone in France will be serviced by Pathe Cinema.

Guimond and Berg Added to Columbia's Ad Staff

Lou F. Guimond and Herb Berg have joined the advertising and publicity staff of Columbia Pictures. The former, who is a veteran of the exhibition and distribution fields, is to edit the company's new exhibitor house organ and assist Hank Linet, department head, with details of the April anniversary campaign. Berg joins Columbia from "The Film Daily," and is to assist Hal Hodes in sales promotion and in editing of "The Beacon."

Wire 73 Theatres in France and Algiers

Washington—The Establishments L. Robouts, agents for the Ernemann projector, state that 73 wired houses in France and Algeria have equipped their projection rooms with Ernemann projectors, according to advices to the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

The French Tobis announces its 1930 reproducer, completely fitted up, at the price of 140,000 francs, 160,000 francs, or 195,000 francs, according to the size of the hall. The Tobis-Klangfilm apparatus takes any kind of sound film and has a special disc attachment.

Another Atlanta Bombing

Atlanta—The Rialto was the scene of the second theatre bombing to occur in Atlanta within the last six months, shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning, when a dynamite bomb was thrown through a ventilator window on the Luckie Street side, damaging the theatre to the extent of about $500 and rocking business houses for several blocks.

According to John A. Comzy, manager of the theatre, the damage was confined for the most part to backstage and to the side wall. No one was in the house at the time of the explosion. Mr. Comzy could give no possible motive for the bombing. The theatre went "non-union" last Monday.

Insurance Cuts of Millions Claimed In Prospect in Allied-Sentry Deal

"Early Bird Catches . . ."

Loew's will advance the opening hour of the New York theatre, on the main stem, to 8:30 A. M., beginning Monday. The house has a grind all-picture policy, playing to non-workers.

Management figured out where the bunch pounded the pavements until 11 A. M., opening hour, and decided to switch to 8:30, the zero hour for want-ad chasers. One A. M. darkens the house.

"Grischa" First On Market But What of Outcome?

Hollywood—RKO raced Universal to the screen with its war picture, "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," but the Coast is wondering if Universal's "All Quiet on the Western Front," will not fare better than its intended rival.

Herbert Brenon, so the story goes, conferred with Carl Laemmle, Jr., on a proposition to direct "All Quiet," but they could not get together on a deal. Brenon subsequently signed to make a picture for RKO, when it is declared to have been decided that a war picture to beat the Universal production to the market would be a good idea. The result was speeding up of "Grischa," although Brenon is said to have felt a longer time on filming would result in a better picture.

Meador with Technicolor As Business Manager

J. E. D. Meador, for years director of advertising and publicity for the old Metro Pictures Corporation, has signed a contract to act as business manager for the New York offices of the Technicolor Corp. Meador will contact with the New York offices of producers using technicolor and with studios of the New York district where a number of technicolor features soon will go into production.

Jersey Gets Tough with a Heavy Billboard Tax

Trenton, N. J.—Assembly bill No. 22, regulating billboards, has been passed by the House, and is awaiting a Senate vote. The measure provides for a tax of 3 cents a square foot on billboards, a reduction from the 5 cents originally proposed. State motor vehicle department would be vested with enforcement.

Members to Get 30 Per Cent Off On Equipment and Reductions Of Fire Insurance

Involving savings on fire insurance expected to total millions yearly for theatres of the United States, Sentry Safety Control Corp., Philadelphia, has concluded a deal with Allied States Ass'n. for co-operative purchase by Allied members of the fire prevention device Sentry manufactures. The device fits into the projector.

Under terms of the deal, details of which are to be completed at the Allied meeting in New York March 31, Allied is to be given a 30 per cent reduction of the control, for urging its use upon members. A part of this reduction is to be rebated to Allied units for organization purposes, in return for their support in pushing the device. The amount of this proposed rebate has not yet been set.

The Sentry device is rented to theatres on a $5 weekly basis for two machines. The reduction will make the device available to Allied members for $3.50.

The Hancock Insurance Co., New York, for some time has been offering a 25 per cent cut on insurance rates to theatres equipped with the Sentry device. In addition, a 50 per cent cut is understood to have been authorized on booth insurance by the National Fire Insurance Underwriters. In five southwestern states even lower rates are understood being offered, calling for additional reductions of 10 per cent on building and 10 per cent on contents insurance. Effort is to be made this week to secure similar reductions on a national scale from the underwriters.

Sentry, it is understood, also is to give Allied members 30 per cent reduction on its automatic change over device and upon the sound head Sentry manufactures.

Lewis Warner Continues in Charge at Brooklyn

Lewis Warner continues in charge of the eastern Vitaphone studio in the realignment which brings Sam Sax, veteran independent producer, to the studio as production manager. Warner took over operation of the plant several months ago. Sam Sax for nine years has been active in the independent field and has produced 59 features. He formerly was connected with Gotham Prod.

Rosenzweig All Set

Confirming exclusive announcement in Motion Picture News, several weeks ago, Rosenzweig and associates will battle Fox in Ozone Park, Long Island, where the Fox Metropolitan houses purchased this group's holdings in the drive last year. Plans for two houses have already been filed by the independent group and others are in work.

'Member the Old Days?

Des Moines — Exploitation stunt plugged for "Road House Nights" at the Strand brought fond memories to many an old turk in this town. Management set up a bar in the lobby, dressed ushers as beer slingers and served bock beer, bread, meat, cheese, pickles, onions, etc.

And the vehicle flopped, grossing five grand, which rated the Paramount picture only 95%.

Oakie's Salary 'Jam' is Settled; Coming to N. Y.

Hollywood—After weeks of negotiations, Jack Oakie has finally adjusted his salary difficulties to his entire satisfaction. Under the new deal, Oakie receives a pay check of $1,750 weekly; in place of his former salary of $300.

Oakie, signed to a term contract by Wesley Ruggles two years ago, was cast by the director in several opportune parts. As a result, Oakie skyrocketed into prominence, finally landing permanently at Paramount. When the latter company figured Oakie of starring rating, the player wanted to discontinue his contract with Ruggles and make a direct deal with Paramount.

Ruggles had assurances from Paramount that Oakie's salary would be tilted considerably, and the director then attempted to adjust matters with the player whereby he would receive a guarantee of $1,500 weekly; with Ruggles obtaining $1,750 from Paramount. Oakie held out, and the long delay just meant savings of over $1,000 weekly to Paramount. Finally the player agreed to a basis whereby he gets a weekly figure of $1,750, with Ruggles being taken care of for his contract agreement with Oakie to the tune of $250 weekly.

Oakie is coming east in about two weeks to star in Paramount's "The Sap from Syracuse."

Reform Element Fights Malden Sunday Shows

Malden, Mass.—While a typewritten petition 66 feet in length, said to contain between 3,200 and 3,500 names, circulated among church people in opposition to Sunday theatre licenses, was being considered by Mayor William A. Hastings, the aldermen and common council members of the license committee have been preparing a schedule of fees to be charged theatres for Sunday licenses.

This schedule calls for $10 per Sunday for the larger theatres, $5 for the medium-sized and $1 for the small theatres.

Otterson's Reported "Pooh-Pooh" of German Patents Costly to "Erpi"?

Admiralty Gets Tough

London—Naval chiefs have decided that when a British producer wants the use of battle ships for production, the producer must insure the boat against damage. When British Instructional Films asked for help, the Admiralty laid down the law and told BIF to "tell England" it wants all boats covered before a camera is cranked.

Goulding's Film Finished on 18 Days Schedule

Hollywood—Edmund Goulding has completed direction of his second successive talker production on a shooting schedule of 18 days. Goulding both wrote and directed "The Trespasser" for Gloria Swanson, and completed the picture on an 18-day schedule. Moving over to Paramount recently, he wrote the story of "Devil's Holiday" and repeated his 18-day shooting layout for that picture.

In addition to his writing and directing, Goulding also composed the music for all song numbers, with Leo Robbins writing the lyrics. There will be neither retakes nor added scenes for "Devil's Holiday," and the picture will establish a new record at Paramount for completion after first preparations were made on the story. Goulding leaves within two weeks for a European vacation trip, returning to Paramount in June to prepare for direction of the talker version of his own play, "Dancing Mothers." The director holds a three-picture contract with Paramount.

Injunction Halts Censors' Ban on Birth Control Film

Seattle—"No More Children," a state right silent film basing its theme upon the dissemination of birth control information, was pounced upon by the Seattle Board of Theatre Censors when it opened an advanced price engagement at Joseph Danz's local downtown Embassy, this week, and was banned from the screen, causing the theatre to be dark for almost a day before Danz and his attorney, John F. Walthem, obtained a restraining order enjoining the board from interfering with the showing of the picture. After considerable consultation and discussion with F. A. Musgrave, owner of the picture, Danz made several eliminations in the film and changes in his street lobby displays, and the film was allowed to conclude its engagement unmolested. Despite the wide publicity received in this action, the film played to fair business only, with prices raised to 50c top for the engagement.

Tobis Officials in New York to Negotiate New Deal For Licensing

Reported failure of John E. Otterson of "Erpi" to take full cognizance of the patent situation in Germany, as a result of which its licensed companies are kept out of that market, may cost Western Electric a tidy sum before the current tangle is cleared away.

The Tobis group, headed by H. J. Kuchenmeister with Milton Diamond as legal advisor is in New York already for a deal. Warners, at odds with Western Electric for many months now, have been negotiating, but whether on their own or on behalf of "Erpi," which is reported buying into the W. B., is not known. The fact remains that the Electric's licensed companies are out of the German market; that they have been becoming more firm in their efforts to find out why from "Erpi" and that the latter's promise to make a satisfactory settlement is long past delivery date.

Figuring importantly in the situation is M. A. Schlesinger of General Talking Pictures, whose De Forest patents are pooled with Tobis-Klangfilm in a holding company. Schlesinger is reported willing to swing a deal which will give "Erpi" the right to license and thereby placate its members in that market, but is determined to make a deal which will protect the interests of General Talking in the sound reproducer field.

The inside yarn goes that if Otterson had not originally "pooh-poohed" the potentialities of the German interests the situation might be completely straightened out today.

Amusements Active in N. Y. Corporate Field

Albany—The theatre field is chiefly represented in the newest batch of corporate papers filed here with the secretary of state. Names of attorneys are listed in the following lineup:

Theatre Guild Studio, theatres, Limburg, Riegelman, Hirsch & Hess, 160 Bway, N. Y.; Branford Prod., theatres, H. M. Whiting, 41 E. 42nd St., N. Y.; Co-Es Corp., theatres, B. Rich, 50 E. 42nd St., N. Y.; Wilmac Amusement Corp., theatres, J. I. Goodstein, 21 E. 40th St., N. Y.; Orthophonic Pictures Corp., produce, W. O. Van Keegan, 9 E. 41st St., N. Y.; Buck & Bubbles, produce, H. S. Hechheimer, 140 W. 42nd St., N. Y.; Happiness League, theatres, J. Wilzin, 521 5th Ave., N. Y.; American General Film Distributors, produce and distribute, C. Levy, 11 W. 42nd St., N. Y.; Kasil Theatre Corp., and Westdale Theatre Corp., and Throggs Neck Theatre Corp., and Bradwell Theatre Corp., all represented by B. J. Rich, 50 E. 42nd St., N. Y.

Hold Everything

Hollywood—And now Jim Tully and John Gilbert, leads in the recent battle here, are to work on the same lot, M-G-M having signed the hobo writer to collaborate with John Howard Lawson on added dialogue sequences for "Trader Horn."

A Big Success

Credit Paul Gulick with one of the most successful luncheons of recent months, the one tendered on Wednesday to John Boles, star of Universal's "Captain of the Guards." Not a speech during the affair, and what a welcome relief. Boles, incidentally, made a big hit by his personable charm in informal chats with those present.

Norma Shearer's Mind Not Made Up On New Contract

Hollywood—Norma Shearer has not made any plans as to her future, preparing to take a vacation before signing any new contract. It is most likely that any new deal she makes will provide for but two pictures yearly, giving her plenty of rest between pictures. She will continue with M-G-M, however.

Colombians Prefer U. S. Talking Productions

Washington—The natives of Colombia are becoming enthusiastic supporters of American sound pictures, Walter J. Donnelly, commercial attache at Bogota, has reported to the Department of Commerce here. Silent pictures continue to be exhibited, but the attendance at those theatres has registered a marked decline in favor of sound film.

Music is one of the chief attractions. The patrons do not object to a reasonable amount of talking in English, provided that the thoughts expressed do not affect the theme.

Four Amusement Firms Get Charters in Penn.

Harrisburg—Charters have been granted to the following amusement corporations:

Castle Amusement Co., Philadelphia; incorporators, Earl A. Becker, Marshall M. Cohen and Ernest J. Einhorn.

Republic Amusements, Inc., Rochester, Pa.; incorporators, R. B. McDaniel, Edward M. Hipple and L. R. Glass.

Austin Amusement Co., Stroudsburg, Pa.; incorporators, Russell L. Marvine, Victor Austin and W. Adolph Rake.

Roxy Theatre Realty Co., Philadelphia; incorporators, Esther Appelman, W. L. Matz and Sigmund H. Steinberg.

Another for West Coast

Calexico, Cal.—Plans have been completed and bids will soon be asked for the construction of a Class A theatre at Second and Heffernan Sts., for Dave Croft and the Fox West Coast Theatres, through the latter's subsidiary, Valley Theatres. The house will have a seating capacity of 1,200 and will cost about $100,000.

Fox Cabinet To Be Asked To Quit; 'Ringing In' Pathe Their Objection?

Correcting an Error

In the report of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs meeting, published last week, it was stated in error that the resolution passed was adopted by state presidents of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. This was due to an error in transmission of the correspondent's account of the affair, which was attended only by presidents of clubs affiliated with the state federation.

Maryland Stand On Mrs. Winter Job Is Outlined

Baltimore—Resolution which was adopted by the presidents of the clubs affiliated with the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs at a meeting in Baltimore recently, decrying the exploitation of the name of the General Federation in any industry, the film, or otherwise, of their name, particularly as it appertains to Mrs. Thomas G. Winter's appointment to a position with the Motion Picture Producers' Assn., reads as follows:

"Whereas, We, the presidents of the clubs affiliated with the Maryland Federation, have made an earnest effort to ascertain the facts concerning the appointment of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, a former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, as a paid employe of the motion picture industry 'to serve (as alleged in a recent newspaper article purporting to have been issued by the president of the general federation) the organized women of America in Hollywood for the purpose of interpreting their mass point of view in the motion picture producers'; and,

"Whereas, We are not in sympathy with a policy which advocates representatives of the federation, either general, state or district, being employed by or receiving financial remuneration in any form whatsoever, either directly or indirectly, from organizations in business for financial profits or gain; and,

"Whereas, We believe that such a policy, if introduced or permitted to be introduced, will lead to the attempted exploitation of the clubs comprising the federation, to the detriment of the clubs and the weakening, if not total destruction, of the federation itself; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we urge upon the president of the General Federation and the members of the executive board that they take immediate action under article 6, Section 5, of the constitution and by-laws of the General Federation, to put a stop to the practice of permitting the use of the name of the General Federation of Women's Clubs by the motion picture industry or any of its employes, or by any other industry or commercial organization which, either directly or indirectly, seeks, through paid advertisements or otherwise, to make use of the name of Federation for financial gain."

Deal "To Save Bankers' Faces" Through Pathe Buy, Loew-Wesco Sale Hinted

That bombshell exploded in the industry by injunction suit of Winfield R. Sheehan to restrain William Fox from carrying out the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read refinance plan, is but the forerunner of a steady barrage to be laid down by opposing sides in the Battle of the Bankers now raging about the Fox entrenchments.

Sheehan, James R. Grainger, Saul Rogers and John Zanft of the Fox cabinet, will be asked to resign, it is understood, at next meeting of the board of directors of Fox Film and Theatres, and then will divulge what they are expected to say is the inside story of their opposition to the Fox-favored plan, the latest reports have it.

This will be the allegation, it is understood, that the carrying out of the plan carries with it provision for bringing Pathe into the Fox deal. The cabinet, it is reported, objects to such a step, maintaining that Fox's own producing and distributing facilities are sufficient for its needs and that so far as exhibition is concerned the latter company can add no strength to the Fox theatre holdings.

Elisha Walker is in Pathe to the tune of $7,000,000, so the story goes, and is reported prepared to offer $9,000,000 to acquire the firm for the reported Fox pool.

As a second step, it is reported Fox's West Coast Theatres and Loew's holdings would be sold to bolster the Fox financial condition. The Loew stock would be run up to a figure, it is said, which would allow the Fox interests to get out at minimum loss, and then perhaps to pick up the stock again at lower prices.

Sheehan Opposes

Sheehan has opposed sale of the Loew and West Coast holdings from the start and asserts in his affidavit in the action against Fox, that a pledge was made to retain these holdings by John E. Otterson and Harry L. Stuart, co-trustees with Fox under the original agreement, which Sheehan says should be fulfilled.

The move to oust the Fox cabinet members, as reported planned by the board of directors, climaxed a week of court actions, highlighted by the filing of an affidavit alleging prejudice against Judge Coleman, before whom various actions are pending. Another action before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, seeks to enjoin Judge Coleman from acting upon suit of Fox to restrain Otterson and Stuart from voting the 50,101 shares of "B" stock deposited under the trusteeship agreement. One of the circuit judges found himself disqualified from sitting in the case because his wife owns American Telephone & Telegraph stock. An open letter to stockholders was sent out by Halsey, Stuart during the week, tracing the alleged dealings with Fox Film and Fox Theatres.

For detailed account of the week's developments in the Fox situation, turn to pages 38 to 45.

Now It's Law Suits

Even law suits need press agents. Spurred into action by a realization that the William Fox camp has presented its side of the controversy on company refinancing far more thoroughly and sympathetically than its own, Halsey, Stuart engaged Harry L. Reichenbach to spread its own yarn to the world.

Harry's first story was the Sheehan affidavit. The New York dailies devoted exactly 266 inches to it. All of which forces Harry to modestly admit that he's still pretty good.

It used to be lions at the Belleclaire and missing virgins from Stamboul for him. But even law suits, it appears, feel the need for the Reichenbach touch.

Coast Wonders At Feist's Presence At Fox Confab

Hollywood—Studio circles are speculating on the meaning of attendance of Felix Feist, M-G-M sales chief, at a meeting of about 40 executives and department heads Tuesday at the Fox studios. James R. Grainger, Fox sales head, presided and informed his hearers it was their job to make pictures and his to sell them, with a heavy schedule required to complete the first 20 pictures for next season's release.

The production end, said Grainger, should not be concerned with the present Fox financial situation in the East as the company is basically sound and they must make and sell pictures regardless. The meeting lasted about an hour and one-half with the studio workers silent on the discussions.

If William Fox is successful in carrying out his favored refinancing plan, an ouster of the cabinet members who supported his opponents is slated, MOTION PICTURE NEWS reported last week. In that event, Irving Thalberg would replace Sheehan at the Fox studio, and Feist would take over Grainger's sales duties, it was reported.

Prejudice Charge Removes Coleman from Cases

U. S. Judge Coleman has withdrawn from the Fox receivership actions as a result of prejudice allegations made against him by Harry L. Stuart. He has been replaced by Judge John C. Nott. Judge Coleman's decision to step down in the case was announced by him yesterday from the bench, when the receivership hearings were to have been resumed.

Samuel Untermyer had vigorously fought Judge Coleman's withdrawal from the case because, he said, Coleman was thoroughly familiar with its many complicated angles.

Broadway Show-Window Policy Being Dropped by "U"; Going After 1st Runs

Atta Boy, Ed!

Discovered: a new synonym for laughter—Eddie Lambert! He packs a mean comedy wallop.

Ed is an old legit and vaude trouper, who has been knocking 'em cold with his funny Jewish chatter, but his performance in "A Western Knight," Educational Mermaid comedy, tops the list as ace-high comedy material. It's a wow! The audience in the main stem New York house where this was reviewed roared continuously during the entire two reels.

Take the tip, exhibs: book "A Western Knight."

CUNNINGHAM

Spicy Lobby in Chicago Theatre For Congo Film

Chicago—Shubert's Garrick, a legitimate house, wired some time ago, has taken the sound picture "Ingagi" for a four weeks' run. The picture will show twice daily; matinees at 75 cents and nights at $1. Lurid lobby advertising depicting a gorilla fondling a near-nude native woman has drawn both patronage and criticism here. Newspaper advertising of the picture is decidedly more restrained. Most local critics plugged the feature in their reviews.

The Garrick management states that no new policy is indicated for the house by this booking, and that after the four weeks' run of "Ingagi" a stage production will go in.

Raytone Gets Westerns, Shorts

Raytone Pictures, New York, has acquired distribution of "Overland Bound," last film of the late Leo Maloney, and plans to release also a series of 18 half-reel Walt Disney cartoons to be recorded by Brunswick under title of "Alice Cartoons."

Agreement on B. T. P. Payoff

London—Although stockholders have not voted approval, creditors of British Talking Pictures have decided on paying off 20 shillings on the pound, and their plan is expected to carry at the forthcoming meeting.

Gets Seven Pictures Set at Roxy as Starter Under New Plan

Universal will drop its Broadway show window policy when the Colony reverts to B. S. Moss May 31, intending in the future to go after business from the first runs. Moss is to convert the theatre into a legit house.

This is emphasized by the deal just closed between S. L. Rothafel and Lou B. Metzger, for showing at the Roxy of the seven pictures which make up the balance of the season's Universal feature releases.

The show window idea, Universal feels, is being outgrown in the industry, hence its decision to seek Broadway outlets on the merits of its product, rather than to maintain its own house. The element of cost, too, enters into the matter in an important way, it is stated, although this was charged off to advertising.

Universal obtained the Colony under a five-year lease at $5,000 a week, it is understood, and has operated the house for four years, during which it is said to have been in the red on an average of $3,000 weekly. This would place the estimated cost of the venture between $600,000 and $750,000.

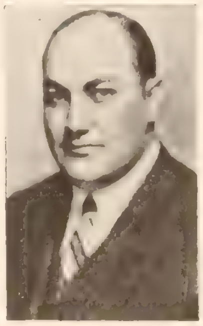
"King of Jazz" Premiere at Roxy Under New Deal

Lou Metzger's seven-picture booking deal with S. L. Rothafel sets Paul Whiteman's "King of Jazz" for initial showing at the Roxy, the revue opening at tilted prices about May 2, then dropping to "pop" admission. Whiteman and his gang will be on hand for the premiere.

Exclusive of Fox's booking arrangement with the Roxy, the "U" deal is the biggest yet for that house, and embraces what's left on the current line-up, including "All Quiet on the Western Front."

That Deal

Only two weeks ago, Lou Metzger took over the reins of Universal's sales organization, but he's been stepping ever since that day. His seven picture deal with the Roxy is his most important contract so far, and "U" is doing plenty of chirping about its significance. The booking is a record for the Roxy for product other than Fox and is the first step in abandonment of Universal's Colony show-window idea on Broadway. From now on the company is prepared to battle in active competition with other distributors for first run business on the big street.



Lou Metzger

Yeah?

Recently one of Carl Laemmle's many nephews announced that he was changing his name from Edward Laemmle to Edward Lawrence and was going to see if he couldn't make good with that monicker.

A week ago Edward Lawrence became Edward Laemmle again and is now back on the payroll of Universal.

All of which is introductory to Irving Hoffman's flip crack:

"Out in Universal City they are saying: 'Laemmle gave us his relatives but thank God we can choose our friends.'"—N. Y. Daily News

Hammond Keeps Secret Plans For Sound Invention

Gloucester, Mass.—No plans have been made for marketing of the new sound device developed by John Hays Hammond, Jr. Considerable secrecy shrouds the nature of the new device, which is said to eliminate mechanical noises and add to the naturalness of the tone. The device was demonstrated before a group of electrical engineers, radio experts and phonograph manufacturers. A further demonstration for theatrical parties is anticipated. Hammond is the multi-millionaire inventor of radio control of ships and of torpedoes.

Exhibitors Take Advantage of Ten Per Cent Cancellation in Contracts

Poor Business and Product Held Cause for Using the Privilege

Exhibitors in Chicago and in other sections are reported taking advantage of the cancellation clause in their contracts, to the discomfiture of distributors. This is the clause which permits cancellation of ten per cent of any block of pictures, upon payment of 50 per cent of the rental involved.

Poor business, coupled with dissatisfaction over product, is said to account for the increased number of cancellations. The clause was the one proposed by distributors at the Trade Practice Conference when they were urged by the then Federal Trade Commissioner Abram F. Myers to make some concession to exhibitors upon block-booking, which the commission had frowned upon.

Hank Linet Completes Fine Job

Hank Linet has done a real job on the advance campaign for Columbia's tenth anniversary which is to be observed in April. The campaign to select Miss Columbia has achieved national prominence, and resulted in a veritable flood of publicity for the company.

In addition, a number of national hook-ups have been arranged. It is a campaign which should add prestige to this fast-growing independent concern founded and operated by Joe Brandt and the Brothers Cohn.

KANN

Tom Moore to Market Devices Cooperatively

The Essem Laboratories, Inc., with a plant at 521 West 57th St., New York, has launched a comprehensive program in connection with its processing service that will enable it to assist materially in solving print troubles.

The chief feature of the plan is the research laboratory in New York, to be operated on a cooperative basis, for perfecting and marketing inventions of associated inventors. Other angles include:

Perfection of inventions now on the market; a rejuvenating and cleaning process; developing films under advanced methods at increased speed; a heat-absorbing device to curtail warping and buckling, color photography by more simple and practical methods, a new process to extend the life of a new non-flam (acetate) raw stock, so that it will equal that of nitrate stock, and laboratory facilities for the perfection of inventions of others.

Tom Moore, of Washington, is president of the company.

German Language Okayed for Films Shown in Czech

Prague—By vote of 379 to 143, the trade here has decided on German as the language for talkers distributed in Czechoslovakia. The vote was a result of a wrangle in the local industry and was decided upon following screening of "Atlantic."

R-K-O Starts Remodeling Columbia Into First Run

R-K-O's plan to remodel the Columbia Theatre, New York, into a first-run to seat 2,300 gets under way Monday.

Thomas W. Lamb has been retained as architect. The scheme will be modern and the structure will include a radio broadcasting studio. Only the four walls will be left standing under the plan which calls for completion of the job by November 1. The front will be entirely illuminated and the upright electric sign will be 145 feet long.

Less Than One-Half of Canadian Houses Wired

Toronto—Wired houses throughout the Dominion are increasing at a rapid rate. Since Dec. 1, the total has increased by 80 to reach 433. The country has 975, so that less than one-half are now showing talkers. Ontario has 154 wired theatres and Quebec 67. Toronto has 63, Montreal, 38; Winnipeg 26 and Vancouver, 22.

Toronto—Colonel John A. Cooper has been re-elected president of the M. P. Distributors and Exhibitors Association of Canada.

Golf Carpet Innovation To Boost Educ'l Comedy

Educational is introducing an innovation for "Match Play," offering an indoor golf game carpet to any de luxe house which will put over a campaign for the comedy, which in the company's opinion merits gift of the carpet. The carpet is a 9 x 6 affair, and is placed in the center. The object is to putt a golf ball into the disc. All balls so placed count as a joker, with numbers on the carpet corresponding to cards, drawn by the player, according to where his ball places. Five shots are allowed. Exhibitors are being urged to stage putting contests in their lobbies, tying up with golf clubs, sporting goods stores and other merchants. The Des Moines, at Des Moines, now is conducting an extensive campaign in connection with the novelty.

Sunday Shows Big Issue in Peekskill's Election

Peekskill, N. Y.—Sunday shows is the big issue at the election here April 8, which will culminate a bitter fight for a liberal Sabbath.

Town Officials Action On New Theatre Permit

Winchester, Mass.—Town meeting adjourned just as the article relative to the establishment of the first motion picture theatre in the town was reached, but it will come up again, probably at the next meeting, leaving the question so that it can be brought before the meeting by a majority vote at any time.

George A. Daley, who is sponsor for the article and stands ready to construct a theatre and lease it to some operating chain, is not identified with the theatre industry but is in the steel business. The present plan is to have the town meeting allow the question to go to referendum.

State Legislative Activities

LEGISLATIVE solons are busy at many spots with measures regulating various phases of the industry, judging from the number of new bills affecting films now up for consideration by state bodies. In Texas, Senator Love introduced a measure to require operators to be provided with equipment approved by insurance commissioners. License fees are jumped in Virginia by a new bill. Texas' governor has approved a law taxing tent shows in that state. A bill to place Rhode Island under daylight saving ruling is up in that state. Kentucky would tax all amusements.

Although a majority of legislative activities recorded in this regular MOTION PICTURE NEWS survey do not affect the industry directly, they do influence its operation through the channels of regular and general business. Number of each bill, name of its author, a brief description, and the committee to which it was referred for action are included in the compilation, which follows:

Kentucky

S. B. 204. To make certain changes in the workmen's compensation law: Passed by house.

S. 335. Mr. Turner. To increase the penalties prescribed for the issuance of a cold check; Banks and Banking.

Jealousy

A West Point cadet, on leave of absence, visited one of New York's picture palaces and burst into tears of envy when he saw the ushers standing at attention.

Vote on Sunday Shows

Syracuse, N. Y.—Spirited battles were waged in municipal elections in central and northern New York over the question of Sunday shows at Canton, Massena and Gouverneur. In Canton such exhibitions were made legal. Gouverneur rejected the same proposition.

Increases Capital Stock

Indianapolis, Ind.—Officials of the Fall Cities Amusement Company of Jeffersonville, Ind., have filed papers with the secretary of state here increasing the capital stock 1,500 shares of common of no par value and 500 shares of preferred with a declared par value of $100.

Annual Fight On "Daylight" Stirs Indiana

Indianapolis—The guy who wrote about the "melancholy days have come" got his seasons mixed insofar as the theatre owners of this state are concerned. Just about now are the melancholy days, for in many cities of the state the theatre interests are preparing to wage their annual fight against daylight saving ordinances. In some they likely will be successful against the golf players, but in others they will lose as they did last year. In all probability, Fort Wayne will have daylight saving as it did last year. Indianapolis will likely be the scene of a bitter fight again. Daylight saving in this city never has been too popular and ordinances providing it have been defeated again and again.

Two new towns are trying to get into the ranks of early risers. They are Richmond and Lafayette, where ordinances already have been introduced and referred to the proper committees.

Lens Company Chartered

Norfolk, Va.—Considerable interest is being manifested in theatrical circles in the Micro-amplifying Lens Corporation, of Norfolk, which has just been chartered with authorized maximum capital stock of $25,000.

Officers and incorporators are: F. M. Sutton, president; W. M. Wilder, vice-president; L. F. Vogel, secretary-treasurer; and Bertram S. Nusbaum, general counsel, all of Norfolk.

The authorized purposes of the corporation is to manufacture, buy, sell and generally trade and deal in, import, export, lease or hire equipment, contrivances, contraptions, including those which may be used in connection with motion picture machines or projections, and especially that certain device known as the New Superior Micro-amplifying Movietone Lens.

Appeals $100,000 Tax

Seattle—The Pantages Theatre Co. of this city last week petitioned the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to review an order of the federal board of tax appeals that approved collection of deficiencies in income and profit taxes in 1918 and 1919, amounting to approximately $100,000. The company, which was dissolved as a corporation here a few weeks ago, alleges that assessment and collection of this amount is barred by the statute of limitations.

"U" Handling German Film

Universal is distributing in America a German film featuring Ernst Udet, German war ace. It is a drama of Alpine climbing.

Counting Big Heads

Hollywood—A certain star, hearing that the census is about to be taken, went into the sulks when she learned that she would be counted as only one inhabitant of these United States.

High and Low On Music Row

SEVEN composers have contributed songs to "Swing High," the Pathe musical circus romance which E. B. Derr is now producing at Culver City. They are "There's Happiness Over the Hill," written by Henry Sullivan and Ray Egan; "The Farmer's Daughter," a comedy song by John Ruskin; "My Guitar" and "Shoo the Hoodoo Away," written by Ted Snyder and Mort Harris; and "It Must Be Love" and "Could I Grow on You?" from the pens of Abner Silver and Mack Gordon.

Although strains from "Under a Texas Moon" are themed throughout the Warner picture of the same name, the song is never completely sung. Remick, publisher of the number, is getting some real action on this tune, which has just been recorded by Victor.

With removal of the business department of Robbins Music Corp. to the annex on the sixth floor of its Seventh Ave. quarters the enlargement of the professional quarters rapidly is nearing completion. Robbins personally is supervising the work which will add six more piano rooms and a spacious salon for the convenience of the profession. A formal reopening will be held as soon as alterations are completed, and if we do say it, Jack Robbins is second to none when it comes to playing host.

Before he consented to broadcast next Sunday over station KFI, Will Rogers made officials of NBC promise to have a special microphone so that he could park his chewing gum. Whattaman!

Two songs from Maurice Chevalier's Paramount picture, "The Big Pond," have been recorded on Columbia discs by Paul Whiteman and his orchestra. The numbers are "You Brought a New Kind of Love," written by Pierre Norman, Irving Kahal and Sammy Fain, and "Livin' in the Sunlight, Lovin' in the Moonlight," which was composed by Al Sherman and Al Lewis.

Besides being the rage throughout the country, Amos 'n' Andy, those boys who have inserted the phrase "Ah's Regusted" into the English language, are proving to be honest-to-goodness friends of the woikin' goils. According to one telephone operator, the only respite she gets is at 7:00 P. M. when thousands of "customers" tune in on the radio to follow the trials and tribulations of the "Fresh Air Taxi Corporation."

Martin Goodman, formerly with Shapiro-Bernstein & Co., Inc., is now mechanical and exploitation manager for Handman, Kent & Goodman, Inc., publishers to Universal Pictures. Marty, who has been in the biz a good number of years, predicts some record-breakers in "You Alone," "Maids on Parade" and "Can It Be?" the tunes in the Universal production, "La Marseillaise," which opens Friday at the Roxy.

Miss Lucille Tyson, formerly with Charles Bayha Music Co., is now secretary to Jack Glogau at Shapiro-Bernstein. "Lucy" is as efficient as the day is long and we mean a day in June.

What a break it would be for the songwriter if the suggestion that the latest planet be called "Pax" is accepted by the powers that be. With the phrase "stars above" already done to death, the boys who write the country's songs could then say something like this: "'Neath Pax shining above, he acts like one in love," or perhaps "Strolling with Max by the light of Pax." You're welcome to the titles.

Cooper Fights Canadian Fee On All Music

Ottawa—Music license fee will be collected by the Canadian Performing Rights Society from all theatres, dance halls and radio broadcasters in the event the bill introduced by Hon. Fernand Rinfret becomes law. The society, it is said, intends to levy a fee of ten cents per seat if the bill is passed. Col. John A. Cooper, of Toronto, head of the Canadian exhibitor and distributor unit, is leading the opposition to the bill.

Prager Handling School Sales of Goetz Picture

William L. Prager of Hollywood, who recently completed a transcontinental motor trip with a sound film show projected via portable apparatus, has been placed in charge of distribution of "The Woman Who Was Forgotten" to non-theatrical accounts. The picture is handled by States Cinema Corp. A series of school showings in the metropolitan territory recently were started by Prager. The picture was produced by Charles S. Goetz and is sponsored by the National Education Ass'n. Under plans of the showings, the school plays on percentage, its end being turned over to the school fund. A percentage of the distributor's intake goes to the home for aged school teachers' fund.

1,785,229 Join Defense League, A.F. of M. Says

A total of 1,785,229 residents of the United States and Canada have joined the Music Defense League since its formation, Jan. 13, according to the American Federation of Musicians. The organization is continuing its membership drive, urging the public to protest against the substitution of mechanical music for living musicians.

Howson Delivers Lectures

Albert S. Howson, scenario editor of Warner Bros., who has achieved an enviable reputation as a speaker both here and abroad, will talk on "The Opportunities of the Motion Picture" at the new George Washington Hotel, New York, Sunday afternoon, March 30th.

On May 20th he is scheduled to speak before the Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. on St. Nicholas Ave. and 159th Street.

Sunshine Girls in RKO Films

Hollywood—After a vaudeville tour from New York to the Coast in RKO theatres, the John Tiller Sunshine Girls will locate in Hollywood for several months to appear in dance ensembles for three RKO productions.

Greenthal Jacobson's Aide

Monroe W. Greenthal, for a year editor of Universal's house organ, "The Gold Mine," has been appointed assistant to Sam B. Jacobson, editor of the Universal Newsreel. Ben Grimm, assistant to Milton Silver, advertising manager, has resumed editorship of "The Gold Mine."

Before the "Mike" In N. Y. Studios

SAM SAX, formerly of Gotham Prod., has been appointed general production manager for Warner's eastern Vitaphone studios by Jack Warner. Sax won a name for himself among the independents and has many successful productions to his credit.

Sanford M. Abrahams, of the Warner home office, has been placed in charge of publicity for the eastern Vitaphone studios by A. P. Waxman. He replaces Ethel Gordon, who resigned to accept a similar position with Lawrence Rivers, Inc., producers of "Green Pastures," legitimate show.

What is this phenomena auto-suggestion? No sooner did we get a glimpse of the prison cells, erected for the shooting of "Strong Arm" at the eastern Vitaphone studios, than we felt and gave vent to the urge of warbling that famous "prison" song. You know—the one that goes "I wish I had someone to love me."

"Strong Arm," written by Wallace Sullivan and directed by Edmund Josephs, boasts a cast which includes John Harrington, featured in "Young Sinners," and Henry O'Neill, who plays the prison chaplain in the current Broadway drama "The Last Mile" and enacts the same role in the Vitaphone short.

Ed Duper, cameraman, was taken sick on the Vitaphone lot last week, suffering an attack of indigestion. The studio staff say that his faint was merely the result of seeing Murray Roth on the set minus his cane. Can(e) you beat that?

Broadway moved to Flatbush or so it seemed at the Warner Flatbush studios, where we found Joe Frisco, Harry Rosenthal, Ona Munson and Roger Pryor, all from current Broadway shows.

Bob Ripley, the cartoonist of "Believe it or not" fame, made a Vitaphone Variety, exhibiting several curiosities, including Cygna Conly, the girl who speaks 200 words in 20 seconds; One Long Hop, the little Chinese boy who was born on the day of Lindberg's epoch-making flight, and a set of miniature furniture built inside of a bottle. "Believe it or not" Ripley receives over 3,000 fan letters a day.

Synchronization of music and speech of three new features has been completed at the Caravel studios, Long Island City, by Talking Picture Epics. "The Break-up," featuring the breaking up of the winter's collection of ice in the Yukon and a visit to the "Valley of 10,000 Smokes" with accompanying talk by Captain Jack Robertson; "Wild Men of Kalihari," with Dr. Ernest Cadle, leader of the Denver African expedition and the Cadle-Cameron expedition, is an account, by camera and microphone, of the discovery of the primitive race of bushmen, who inhabit the regions of the Kalihari desert, and "Lost Gods" shows archaeological excavations conducted at Carthage and Utica by Count Khun De Prorok. Nat Shilkret directed the music for all three.

Charlie Smith and Joe Dale, stars of Mendel, Inc., "getooked a treep" to the Paramount Long Island studios, where they made a two-reel short entitled "Accidents Will Happen," under the direction of Mort Blumenstock. (I'm still leffing.) In order to have grounds for an accident suit, Charlie had to use his head, so he got under a large piece of cracked ceiling and was successful. The prop used for the falling ceiling was quite heavy and poor Charlie did not relish a retake.

Herbert Brenon is reported as having spent $984 in long-distance telephone tolls to tell "Bill" Le Baron, RKO production chief, about a Danish play he has found at Copenhagen.

Harvey B. Day, veteran Educational executive, has just returned to New York from a trip throughout the South.

Phil Reisman, Pathe's sales chief, spent several days during the week at Atlantic City. Phil's probably resting up for the big drive he'll start on "Swing High," when that flicker arrives from the Coast early in April. It's the first picture to be made by E. B. Derr, Pathe production generalissimo, and the grapevine report is that there's a big one on the way.

Now that the usury charges growing out of the Julian oil case have been dismissed against Cecil B. De Mille and other defendants, the money situation on the Coast may loosen up.

James Seymour, co-author with Joseph Santley of "Swing High," Pathe picture now nearing completion, is the man who handled the film lecture course at Harvard and later edited the addresses into "The Story of the Films" for Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of Pathe's board of directors.

"Did you ever see 'The Cock-Eyed World'," asked Helen Twelvetrees of Ben Turpin, between scenes of "Swing High," Pathe's all-dialogue circus romance.

"Did I ever see the 'Cock-Eyed World'?" repeated Ben. "Why, that's the only way I have been seeing it for 53 years"

It wont be long before they'll be loading up the old pep guns to give the boys a shot in the arm and hop them up for the new season, for it's nearing sales convention time. Sales meetings nowadays means plenty of hard work for the sales crew, nothing like the old days when sales conventions depended upon how many could be rounded up for the meetings.

Sales pressure was built up in a round of excitement, with the meetings utilized for catching up on a little sleep.

Now the poor sales crew has to do its sleeping on its own time, if any, and be on its toes during the meetings.

It sure is tough memorizing a selling argument on a flashy list of illustrations on pictures, only to have most of them changed by the time they get back to their territories.

Then the old game of reductions and higher rentals is on in earnest, with salesmen and exhibitors at catch weights.

The exhibitor may catch the salesman lying and the latter catches plenty unless he turns in higher rental contracts.

One consolation they may have is that there won't be as many pictures to sell next year. And there won't be as many exhibitors to sell them to either.

Imagine the merry-go-round both will be on when they try to recoup their stock market losses out of film rentals.

There'll be a lot of hullabaloo about where the conventions are to be held, but what's the difference, when you can't see anything anyway, going or coming?

Yep, sales conventions are starting soon. Well?

Warners' pulled a good Broadway gag for opening of "Mammy," with a "grand, glorious and glittering" parade of minstrels. The minstrels gave a concert in front of the Warner, following the parade.

One of Broadway's satellites declares that the legitimate plays have been so punk of late that soon the picture theatres will be forced to put out signs reading:

"Positively a Motion Picture."

West Coast Accepts Warner, Publix Challenge in Theatre Building Race

No New Financing

Warners is not planning any new public financing at the present time, according to statement of Albert Warner, vice president and treasurer. Reports had gained circulation to the effect that new financing was to be undertaken.

Big Battle On For Domination Of New England

Boston—The big names that figure in the battle for control of exhibition in New England are Sam Katz, the Warners and William Fox, with Netoco, said to be leaning toward Publix as a runner-up.

The latest move in the tussle goes to the Katz organization. Publix has just acquired four more theatres in the fight. These are the Gardner at Framingham, Saint George at Framingham, Gorman's at Gardner and Orpheum at Gardner, all Massachusetts theatres with a total seating capacity of between 3,500 and 4,000. George A. Giles was the former owner.

Netoco is constructing a new theatre at Gardner which may have been the cause of the Publix purchase there.

It is understood that Giles, who sells to Publix, is to acquire the Norwood at Norwood and one other theatre not yet mentioned in the negotiations, although verification of this phase of the deal cannot be obtained.

Lloyd Kicks Up Fuss

"Welcome Danger" kicked up far more fuss than recent cabled dispatches from Shanghai indicated, newspaper clippings received from Shanghai this week indicate. The picture, when shown at the Grand Theatre, caused a storm of protest and precipitated what threatened to be a near-riot on the part of several hundred Chinese students who claimed the film was anti-Chinese. The manager of the Grand, the dispatches state, avoided bodily injury by the skin of his teeth.

A Brace of Steppers

Des Moines—Stan Mayer can be proud of his Fox sales force, for two of his salesmen are the charter members of the company's 100 Per Cent Club. Membership is for salesmen who close all sound possibilities in their territories.

U. A. in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—United Artists, which heretofore has served this territory out of Chicago, is building an exchange here.

Determined to Be Outstanding Coast Circuit, Harold Franklin States

Hollywood—Fox West Coast Theatres has accepted the challenge of other circuits, notably Publix and Warners, and is preparing to build in all spots where competitors contemplate expansion.

This is emphasized by Harold B. Franklin, president of the circuit, who says the chain is determined to be "the outstanding theatre operating group of the Pacific Coast."

His statement was made in connection with announcement of the 2,500-seat theatre to be built at San Pedro. The firm also is building in a number of California cities, in some of which Warners already have announced theatre projects. Meanwhile, Publix scouts are reported operating throughout the state, with a theatre at Oakland already slated. This will mean that all three firms will build in Oakland, it is understood.

Expanding in Far Northwest

Seattle—Further moves in the expansion of Fox West Coast Theatres in the Pacific Northwest territory are indicated by announcement that construction on a $100,000 theatre and store building at Port Angeles, Wash., would begin on about May 5. The house will be operated by Fox Pacific Theatres, Inc., a Fox subsidiary directed from this city by Al Finkelstein and Al Rosenberg. William Aitken of Seattle is drawing the plans.

Install Carter System

Minneapolis—Carter sound equipment was recently installed in the Bijou. The house is owned by G. I. Terry. The sound installation is of the dual type. W. M. Robinson, sales manager of the Carter Sound Equipment Company, of Chicago, personally supervised the installation and appointed the A. W. Starbird Electrical Company of this city as northwest distributor.

Mary Lewis in N. Y.

Mary Lewis, who recently signed a contract with Pathe to appear in talking pictures, is in New York, where she will remain for a short time before returning to California to sing and act for the films.

While Miss Lewis is in New York, the script of the screen musical play, based on her career from choir singer to operatic star, will be prepared at the Pathe studios.

Claudette Colbert's Cruise

Claudette Colbert, after she completes her next picture will leave for a world-encircling trip which will claim most of the 1930 summer months. She has arranged to sail aboard the Imperial Prince from Los Angeles May 20.

Seek Locatelli Chain

Boston — New England Theatres Operating Corp. is understood to be negotiating for the Locatelli string of theatres in suburban Boston of which the Capital, Arlington and Ball Square, Somerville, are the principal houses.

Publix Battles Warner Brothers In Connecticut

New Haven—Acquisition of Vuono's circuit of four houses at Stamford and South Norwalk opens the long-planned competitive battle of Publix against Warners in southern New England territory, where Publix has been an important factor.

Warners have had most of this state sewed up since their Gottesman purchase, and, it is understood, Publix will build in direct competition, despite present unhealthy business conditions at many Gottesman spots, where Warners are taking it on the chin. Heavy expansion by Publix was tipped off by a scout searching sites.

Spain Plans Talker Tax

Washington—The Department of Commerce is informed that the Spanish Government has asked the Ministers of Labor and of Public Instruction to work out protection measures for the Spanish musicians, who are much prejudiced by the invasion of colored and foreign musicians, and by the sound-film. It is planned to increase the entertainment tax rates for wired houses and for music-halls in which the orchestra is wholly or in part composed of foreign musicians.

In and Out

Players in and out of New York from Hollywood this week:

Laura La Plante, who may join First National, where her husband, William Seiter, is a director.

Colleen Moore, whose future affiliation is undetermined. Miss Moore is reported to be holding out for more money than producers seem willing to pay her.

Plans Spanish Talkers

Mexico City—On stopping here on his way to New York, Wirt Bowman, of Agua Caliente, Lower California, announced that he is preparing to make Spanish-talking pictures in Agua Caliente, using Mexican artists and staff.

Rene Adoree Ill

Los Angeles—Renee Adoree is confined to a sanitarium suffering from a bronchial infection.

Some Inside Dope On Pictures and Picture People

They Say That—

Paragraph Pickups from the Columns of Contemporaries

TALKING pictures have merely scratched the surface of the public's mind today. . . . To keep pace with this industry, the small-town exhibitor needs must educate himself—sell himself—then his public. As plainly as the wise ones of the movie world see the star itself, they see storms bearing down all around it. The menace of this girl's past. The menace of herself.

Drama, which has been sadly missing in Hollywood in these later, saner days, has returned with her, and because all Hollywood is and must be vitally interested in drama, eyes and tongues are busy with this new story, this new and incomprehensible personality.

British Lack Judgment?

London—"Recent British films I have seen do much to illustrate a defect which strikes at the essence of our apparently ingrained weakness in the production field," states "Kine Weekly's" editor, who claims "there is one factor in which we have been lacking during the past seven or eight years and that is subject-selection and treatment. It is not too much to say that we are getting worse instead of better."

U. S. Officials Omit Industry From Survey

Washington—The picture industry was not included in the report of the National Business Survey Conference, made public this week by Julius H. Barnes and voicing optimism concerning the general tone of business in the United States, because of the necessity of keeping down the length of the report, the Department of Commerce replied in answer to an inquiry by Motion Picture News. Here's the explanation:

"No mention of motion pictures was made in the Barnes report because of the fact that certain industries not directly affecting general trade and others requiring considerable explanation were omitted in an effort to reduce the size of the report. The export industry, for instance, was also left out. It was the desire to have the report as complete as possible, but this was the first attempt at a general survey of business conditions. Future reports will be more extensive if the industries now omitted indicate a desire to be included."

Nervy Showmen Bicycles Coast Preview Shows

Hollywood—"Bicycling films" has been with the industry for a number of years, but it remained for an independent exhibitor in a Los Angeles suburb to pull the classic of them all. This exhibitor has two theatres in his town—the California and Cosmos at Glendale—both opposition to circuit houses, but about a mile apart.

A studio preview is booked into his better grade house, but signs advertising the event are hung up at both theatres. The regular studio preview goes on at the first house at 8:30. Then each reel is bicycled to the second theatre for the preview showing; with the picture starting in the second house about 9 o'clock. The studio employees and executives have not checked up on the system so far.

"U" Completes Deal for "East Is West" Rights

Hollywood—Universal will definitely produce "East Is West" with Lupe Velez starred. Deal for silent and dialogue rights was finally adjusted to Universal's satisfaction after an involved situation which demonstrates what can happen when both silent and dialogue rights have to be obtained for talkers.

Universal entered into negotiations with Sam Shipman and John B. Hymer for the dialogue rights to "East Is West," and a deal was consummated with the author's contingent on the company's being able to secure the silent picture rights from Joseph Schenck. The latter set a price on his rights, but somehow M-G-M figured the vehicle would be ideal as a Joan Crawford starring picture.

M-G-M is reported to have asked Schenck for privilege of purchasing the silent rights, figuring to get the talker rights through Shipman, now a contract writer with M-G-M.

With the matter up in the air, Carl Laemmle, Sr., and Irving Thalberg got together. In view of Universal's practical completion of the deal, Thalberg withdrew his negotiations with Schenck to allow Laemmle to obtain a clear path for the property.

The Dwarf Is Socking The Giant—And How!

Cash-in-the-bank exhibitors have thrown the laugh-preserver of knockout shorts to many audiences sinking in boredom with ordinary program features.

Notes-in-the-bank exhibitors are not yet awake to the increasing importance of good short subjects in making up their programs.

Some short subjects producers and distributors are alive to the growing value of their real-quality releases and what they can do to step up the tempo of any show.

Others are plodding along, grinding them out; mentally day-and-date with those exhibitors who still regard shorts as fillers.

It's a great story, this short subject problem, and we're going to tell it in a way that will jolt the ideas of some and electrocute the beliefs of others.

It will be published in detail on April 19 in a special section of

"Honey" Mops Up 12 Grand at RKO Providence Run

Providence—Stacked against the heralded "Vagabond King," at the Majestic, and "The Rogue Song," at Loew's State, Nancy Carroll's "Honey," aided materially by a wild animal picture, "Hunting Tigers in India," mopped up big at the RKO Victory, grossing $12,000, which is phenomenal for this 1,600-seat house.

Matinees, with 50 cents top, were splendid but night business fell off. Here's the complete story:

Weather: Fair and cool.

First runs: "Vagabond King," Majestic; "Rogue Song," Loew's State; "Honey" and "Hunting Tigers in India," RKO Victory.

"VAGABOND KING" (Par.)

MAJESTIC—(2,400), 25c-$1, 7 days. Other attractions: Mason and Keeler in "Money, Money, Money," Beatrice Lillie, Paramount News. Gross: $12,800. Rating: 90%.

"ROGUE SONG" (M-G-M)

LOEW'S STATE—(3,800), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions: Hearst Metrotone News, Joe Stoves' organlogue. Gross: $22,600. Rating: 115%.

"HONEY" (Par.)

VICTORY—(1,600), 15c-50c, 7 days. Other attractions: "Hunting Tigers in India," "The Land of St. Patrick," Pathe Sound News. Gross: $12,000. Rating: 125%.

"Frozen Justice" Freezes Out All Others at K. C.

Kansas City—"Lummox" did not get above par at its Loew's Midland run, where the United Artists film turned in $15,000 on a 100 per cent business, lowest rating of local first runs, which were topped by "Frozen Justice," a Fox picture at the Pantages. The stage show, however, is to be given a good deal of credit for the 120 per cent rate marked up on the $14,000 Pantages gross.

Weather: Fair.

Opposition: "Lummox" and vaudeville, Loew's Midland; "Cohens and Kellys in Scotland" and vaudeville, headlined by Pat Rooney's trio, Mainstreet; "Frozen Justice," stage appearance of Loie Bridge players in "Jes' Ma," Pantages; "Green Goddess," Royal; "Sarah and Son," Newman.

"LUMMOX" (U.A.)

LOEW'S MIDLAND—(4,000) 7 days 25c-60c. Other Attractions: Hearst Metrotone News, Columbia "Silly Symphony," vaudeville ("Milady's Fan," with Gene Dennis, the "Wonder Girl," as feature attraction). Gross: $15,000. Rating: 100%. (Management reported the picture below par, but business was brought up to normal by the stage show.)

"COHENS AND KELLYS IN SCOTLAND" (Universal)

MAINSTREET—(3,067) 7 days, 35c-60c. Other Attractions: RKO screen news, Pathe Audio Review, three vaudeville numbers, headlining Pat Rooney, Marion Bent, Pat Rooney, 3d. Gross: $17,000. Rating: 110%.

"FROZEN JUSTICE" (Fox)

PANTAGES—(2,166) 7 days, 25c-50c. Other Attractions: Pathe sound news, stage appearance of Loie Bridge Players, in "Jes' Ma." Gross: $14,000. Rating: 120%. (Credit for business given to stage show, rather than to picture.)

"GREEN GODDESS" (W.B.)

ROYAL—(900) 7 days, 25c-50c. Other Attractions: Paramount Talkertoon ("Prisoner's Song"), Paramount short ("Stronger than Sex," with Bert Roach), Vitaphone short ("Barber Shop Chord"), Paramount sound news. Gross: $4,750. Rating: 105%.

"SARAH AND SON" (Paramount)

NEWMAN—(2,000) 7 days, 25c-60c. Other Attractions: "Down With Husbands" (Paramount, with Johnny Arthur and Bert Roach), "The Revelers" (M-G-M), "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" (Paramount Song Cartoon), Paramount sound news. Gross: $7,900. Rating: 105%.

Believe It or No!

Hollywood—The February bills for transcontinental telephone conferences between Samuel Goldwyn and Florenz Ziegfeld are reported as $1,530.25. All related to the filming of "Whoopee," starring Eddie Cantor.

Among other things, musical themes played on the piano were transmitted over the telephone for consideration in supplementing the original musical score of "Whoopee." Several of these calls were of an hour's duration. So the p. a. says.

"Harmony" Steals Cleveland Town; Grosses $47,000

Cleveland—Local exhibitors are still chirping about the sensational intake of "Harmony at Home," which rolled up the staggering gross of $47,000 at RKO's Palace, where the Fox film was rated 235 per cent, running a split bill headed by Gene and Glenn, radio artists.

Business at all downtowns was okay, except at the Keith E. 105th St. house. "Tiger Rose" (Warners) dropped the gross there to $16,000, breaking with the week's lowest rating—88 per cent. All other stands hit above par. Their complete b. o. performance follows:

Weather: Favorable.

First runs: "Son of the Gods," RKO Hippodrome; "Harmony at Home," vaudeville headlined by Gene and Glenn, RKO Palace; "Tiger Rose," vaudeville headlined by Viola Dana, Keith's East 105th St.; "Rogue Song," Stillman; "Girl Said No," Allen; "Chasing Rainbows," Loew Unit Show, State.

"SON OF THE GODS" (First Nat.)

RKO HIPPODROME—(4,500), 7 days, 30c-75c. Other attractions: "He Trumped Her Ace" (Educational), Fox Movietone News. Gross: $32,000. Rating: 128%.

"HARMONY AT HOME" (Fox)

RKO PALACE—(3,600), 7 days, 35c-75c. Other attractions: Sportlight (Pathe), Pathe News, Pathe Review. Vaudeville headed by Gene and Glenn, radio artists. Gross: $47,000. Rating: 235%.

"ROGUE SONG" (M-G-M)

STILLMAN—(1,900), 7 days, 45c-75c. Other attractions: Marionettes. Hearst Metrotone News. Gross: $18,000. Rating: 120%.

"THE GIRL SAID NO" (M-G-M)

ALLEN—(3,300), 7 days, 30c-60c. Other attractions: "Getting a Ticket" (Paramount), Snap Shots (Columbia), Metrotone News. Gross: $22,000. Rating: 110%.

"CHASING RAINBOWS" (M-G-M)

STATE—(3,400), 7 days, 30c-60c. Other attractions: "Alice's Adventures" (Fischer), Paramount News, Loew Unit Show "Blue Garden" with Allan Rogers, M. C. Gross: $23,000. Rating: 115%.

"2nd Wife" Takes $26,000 in Hot Boston Battle

Boston—A stiff week for all houses here, without a single first-run flop. There was opposish aplenty, what with "Sarah and Son," "Rogue Song," "Sally," the local premiere of "Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," third return of "Wings," "Vagabond King,"

"Unborn Child" Breaks Monroe Record at Chi

Chicago—"Her Unborn Child" beat all local runs to a standstill, turning in a house record at the Monroe, where the state rights release chalked a rating of 200 per cent. Big runs, generally, experienced healthy biz. Paramount's "Roadhouse Nights" hit 150 per cent, and "Framed" (RKO), 140 per cent. The six b. o. records on first runs follow:

Weather: Mild with rain and snow, then cold and clear.

Opposition: "Wedding Rings," Orpheum; "Roadhouse Nights," stage show headed by Ted Lewis and band, Chicago; "Anna Christie" (stage); "Hello, Sister," 5 RKO vaude acts, State-Lake; "Framed," Woods; "Her Unborn Child," Monroe; "Murder on the Roof," second week, Castle.

"Disraeli" Takes $2,130 in Three Day Ottawa Run

Ottawa—Exhibitors here had a strong line-up to meet opposition of final professional and amateur hockey games and to counteract the Lenten observance. The outstanding business of the week was registered at the Avalon with "Disraeli" which grossed $2,130 for three days in a 990-seat house, the rating being 125 per cent. "Taming of the Shrew" hit the Regent with a $6,240 gross and a rating of 97 per cent.

The record for the week follows:

Weather: Fair and cold.

First runs: Professional and amateur hockey games; "Taming of the Shrew," orchestra revue, Regent; "Burning Up," five RKO vaude acts (3 days), B. F. 'Hold Everything' Grosses $37,000, Breaking Record

Los Angeles—Red hot weather slumped business generally at Hollywood and L. A. houses, although a few attractions hit the long end above par. The new run of "Hold Everything" at Warners' Hollywood established a new price intake for that house, tipping the till at thirty-seven grand, one thousand more than the previous record. Fox's "Men Without Women" took a bad flop, returning $2,700, on an 87 per cent rating, and Columbia's "Melody Man" was worse. The latter worked on an 84% rating, grossing $13,500.

First run performances at Hollywood and Los Angeles theatres:

Weather: Very hot and sunny.

They Say of Chaplin

If it weren't that policemen's clubs are called truncheons in England, this could never have happened, says "Photoplay":

"Charlie Chaplin was in one of his silences on the lot recently. He goes into them when thinking up gags. Everybody has to be quiet, while Charlie sits and thinks. Suddenly he gets the gag—and leaps up proclaiming it.

This time he wondered what to do with a policeman. For minutes he sat silent. Then some bit of business to do with the policeman's club struck him.

"He leaped into the air and shattered the silence with one word:

"TRUNCHEON!" he bawled.

"With one accord, everybody—principals, extras, technicians, cameramen and everyone else—dashed off the set.

"Pop-eyed in amazement, Chaplin watched them go.

"Now what caused that?" he finally asked.

"Why—didn't you call 'luncheon'?" someone asked, innocently.

"Vagabond King" Flops Badly in 2nd M'p'ls Week

Minneapolis—Mild weather did not help the b. o. cause at local first runs, which suffered one of the heaviest drops in recent weeks, Paramount's "Vagabond King" (second week) taking the biggest nosedive, with a $12,750 cash intake, which means 25% less than par for the Century.

M-G-M's "They Learned About Women" was the only attraction here which ran at par, all others running under the quota, these including "Sarah and Son," "Roadhouse Nights," "Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," "Melody Man," "Evidence" and "Vagabond King." Performances of all runs follow:

Tibbett Grosses $23,000 at Balto With 'Rogue Song'

Baltimore—High spot for the week was the gross piled up by M-G-M's "The Rogue Song," starring Lawrence Tibbett, who sang his way right into the hearts and pocket books of Baltimoreans to the extent of $23,000, or a 126% business. Next in line for a high average was the Rivoli where "Song of the West" (Warners), grossed $9,600 (120%). The low mark hit by Radio's "The Second Wife," but this might be attributed to it being the second week for this picture. It grossed $1,980 (30%).

A Slight Error

Hollywood — Another De Mille legend:

Arriving at the studio one day, his gorgeous de luxe motor found itself blocked by a measly Ford. De Mille, so it is said, squawked to the gateman.

When the extra girl who owned the Ford finished the day's work, the gateman explained to her what trouble she had caused him. Regrets and that sort of business followed.

Along came De Mille. The extra girl approached him and said:

"I'm sorry Mr. De Mille. As a matter of fact I have been admiring that car and wondered who owned it. You see, I attended the preview of your new picture the other night, and, having seen it, I didn't think you worked here any more."

Judge Coleman Asked by Stuart to Step Down from Fox Cases for Alleged Bias

Jurist's Statements, Course of Conduct, Cited in Plea for Withdrawal

Federal Judge Coleman, before whom the various Fox receivership actions are pending, is charged with personal bias against Halsey, Stuart & Co. and in favor of William Fox, the Fox companies and the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon, Read group, in an affidavit filed by Harry L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart, asking Judge Coleman to remove himself from further Fox litigation.

Stuart cites various statements and course of conduct of the judge to back up his claim of prejudice, offering the following quotation:

"Mr. Untermyer, I give you my assurance that there will be no plan considered by me from these gentlemen (Halsey, Stuart & Co.) until this plan has been rejected; and if it is approved and gone through with we are not going to consider whether or not Halsey, Stuart & Co. might present a better plan.

"My own information and my belief is that Mr. Fox would not deal with them and that any plan from Halsey, Stuart & Co. would presuppose a receivership."

Attorney's Pleas Denied

He contends that his counsel, Morton A. Bogue, requested a copy of the letter sent to stockholders, but that the judge informed the attorney that he was not entitled to see a copy of the notice, and that subsequently the notice was sent out worded in a way which precluded consideration of any but the Fox-favored plan. He also says his attorney was not given the financial data on the Fox companies, in accordance with Judge Coleman's instructions, and that the counsel subsequently was told that Halsey, Stuart had no right to the data and no right to submit a plan, questioning the firm's motives in the matter.

At a conference following the stockholders' meeting, the judge is alleged to have said that there were certain obstacles in the way of carrying out the approved plan, one of which is the trusteeship agreement. He indicated then, it is charged, that he might appoint a receiver to put through the approved plan. When his attention was called to the New York Supreme Court decision upholding the trusteeship, Judge Coleman is alleged to have stated he was very much surprised at the decision and couldn't understand it.

Another conference was held between the rival banking groups, it is stated, at which Judge Coleman was to have been mediator. Instead, it is charged, he took an active and partial role, stating that some agreement would have to be reached so the approved plan could go through, and that unless Halsey, Stuart reached such an agreement, he would take "drastic action" and use the power of the Federal Court to see that the approved plan was consummated.

Fox started his action to abrogate the trusteeship agreement in Judge Coleman's court, because of the Judge's alleged intention to remove "the obstacles" of the trusteeship, Stuart alleges. Judge Coleman's action in cabling Lord Lee of Fareham, asking postponement of the payment in the Gaumont deal, is cited, as is his approval of the $6,000,000 loan floated to make the payment.

The judge is asked to enter a certificate of disqualification and the naming of a new judge in the actions requested the senior circuit judge.

Judge Cabled Lord Lee for Pay Delay

Judge Coleman requested a postponement of payment in the Gaumont-British deal, Harry L. Stuart charges in an affidavit. The judge cabled Lord Lee for a postponement until after the stockholders' meeting March 5, when the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon, Read plan was ratified.

"After a thorough study of situation I have become satisfied that receivership would be disastrous to the company and that every reasonable effort should be made by parties interested to avoid that result," he cabled.

Film Row In Chicago Moves To Other Site

Chicago—This city's original Film Row—Wabash Avenue and Eighth Street to Eleventh Street—is due to pass out of existence by next fall. The new picture center will be at the Thirteenth Street and Wabash Avenue corner, with the bulk of the concerns housed in three buildings.

Warner Bros.-Vitaphone and First National will start the trek southward on April 17, the date set for completion of the new Warner Bros. building at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Wabash.

Construction of Paramount's new exchange at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Thirteenth Street will be begun early in May, with completion scheduled for September. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will leave its third floor quarters in the Universal building for the present Paramount location, south of Thirteenth Street, at that time.

The new Film Exchange building at Thirteenth and Wabash is set to receive the following next October: Universal, Educational and Sono Art-World Wide, United Artists; RKO; Tiffany.

Fox Assailed by Bankers for "Waste, Secrecy and Business Incompetence"

His Management and Actions Hit in Letter Giving Stockholders "Lowdown"

Responsibility for a Fox receivership, "if that disastrous course must follow," rests on the shoulders of William Fox, states Halsey, Stuart & Co., in a letter to company stockholders, which gives the lie to a number of statements upon relations of the two companies made by Fox.

The letter and statement were issued, it is asserted, "to acquaint stockholders with the real facts involved in the situation, with which the companies are at present being confronted," so they might be advised of the reasons for the present difficulties.

Transactions between Fox and the banking firm are recited in detail in the letter, which traces events leading up to the trusteeship, Fox's repudiation of it and deals with the recent stockholders' meeting, pointing out that the action of the board of directors precluded even consideration of the Halsey-Stuart plan. Halsey, Stuart began financing Fox expansion in January, 1927, in what was the first effort the company made to sell theatre securities to the public.

It was largely through the interest of John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., that the New York banking firm which controlled West Coast Theatres, "was persuaded to do business" with Fox, the letter asserts. Halsey-Stuart loaned Fox $1,000,000 on unsecured obligation, without cost or commission, except ordinary bank interest, in order to complete the deal, it is claimed. The firm also completed financing of the New York metropolitan area deals, up to which time Halsey, Stuart had furnished $23,150,000 in Fox financing, it is asserted. The compensation over the entire period was to be cash payment of $1,000,000, it is pointed out.

Fox Charge Assailed

Fox's charge that the $1,000,000 was exacted as a condition of the financing of the Loew and Gaumont purchases is assailed as untrue. On the Loew deal, it is stated, Halsey, Stuart loaned Fox $10,000,000 without commission or bonus, it is claimed. The firm says it purchased a total of $48,150,000 in securities in addition to $15,700,000 of temporary loans, upon which only ordinary bankers' discounts averaging less than 5¼ per cent were collected. The $1,000,000 compensation, therefore, is less than two per cent on financing done by Halsey, Stuart, and practically the only profit on business done for Fox over a three-year period, it is claimed.

Halsey, Stuart agreed to finance the Roxy Mansion, 58th St. and Lexington Ave., New York, but the project never has been started, and the property has been standing idle at an approximate expense of $500,000 in carrying charges and ground rent for three years. Another $250,000 has been similarly spent upon the 17th and Market St., Philadelphia, site, acquired for $4,000,000, it is asserted, and $100,000 more on a Newark site. Projects at Cleveland, Boston, Kansas City and Los Angeles were dropped, even though Halsey, Stuart was willing to provide financing.

High Finance

Bonus of $600,000 and six per cent interest was charged Fox Film by the Lehman - Bancamerica - Blair - Dillon, Read group, for a loan of $6,000,000 from March 1 to April 15, it is charged by Halsey, Stuart in its letter to stockholders of the company. Fox, it is asserted, bought an interest in Gaumont-British Co. for $20,000,000, paid $14,000,000 and borrowed the balance from the bankers the last day of grace under the agreement. The bankers received as security the entire stock purchased in England and a contract which virtually tied up West Coast Theatres in the deal according to the letter. This gave them about $60,000,000 worth of securities for the use of the money for 45 days, it is claimed, the rate of interest declared being 80 per cent per year, if the bonus is figured as interest.

Denial is made that Halsey, Stuart advised Fox to buy the Gaumont interest. The banking firm says that Fox dealt secretively in the matter and didn't take his bankers into his confidence, and did not reveal the "true situation" until December, 1929.

Claims Fox on Spot

"Realizing that this deal had been handled by him in a manner that has laid him open to attacks by his stockholders for improvidence and waste in the management of assets of the company, he hurriedly rushed into the public press to shift responsibility for his business incompetence to the shoulders of those who had no part whatever in the matter, in the hope that this unjustifiable attack might receive credence," the letter asserts.

Although the company is investing around $20,000,000 for control of the British chain, the British associates who acquired the properties in conjunction with Fox "have invested practically nothing except a profit which they made out of the transaction" and control has been placed in other than Fox hands, it is charged.

Deny Market Crash to Blame

Claim that the stock market crash was responsible for plight of the Fox companies is branded untrue by Halsey, Stuart, which claims that last summer it offered to form a financial group to refinance Fox. However, it is asserted, Fox refused to supply the banking firm with an audit and survey, preventing the refinancing. The stock market crash in October would not have affected the company, Halsey, Stuart contends, more so than others in the industry, had the refinancing been carried out.

Fox is responsible for the lack of proper financing of the companies, it is charged, for "obstinate and unreasonable" refusal to permit consummation of the plan, as well as by "improvident administration" of the companies' affairs. His assertion that he was incapacitated from July 17 to October, due to an automobile mishap, also is attacked, the claim being made that he carried on business dealings and meetings at his home during the entire months of September and October, during which he formulated his plan to sell stock of the theatre firm to patrons in a campaign which is declared to have resulted "in dismal failure."

Fox's Charges of Ulterior Motives by Otterson, Stuart "Absurd"

Trusteeship Jam Cited

The trusteeship arrangement then is cited, claim being that the trustees raised a "very substantial" sum of money to take care of pressing obligations. Fox disappeared for four or five days, it is asserted, and then sent a letter to the other trustees that unless he received assurance that his brother-in-law, Jack Leo, would be assured a permanent position with the companies, and unless Otterson agreed to withdraw as a trustee when the $15,000,000 debt to Electrical Research Products was paid, he wouldn't go through with the agreement. These conditions, Halsey, Stuart says, were met, but even then Fox declined to meet the trustees, it is asserted.

Prior to the trusteeship, Fox tried to sell West Coast Theatres and stock of Loew's, it is asserted. The letter then calls attention to one signed by the Fox "cabinet," urging Fox to carry out the trusteeship agreement. The "deluge" of litigation is declared due to Fox's conduct in repudiating the trusteeship agreement.

The letter attacks as absurd Fox's charges of ulterior motives on the part of Harry L. Stuart and Otterson. Fox's inference that adoption of the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan or a receivership was in prospect also is assailed, as is the conduct of the recent stockholders' meeting at which the plan was adopted, and the Halsey, Stuart plan excluded from consideration.

Fox neglected to inform stockholders that they have two alternatives, it is charged, the Halsey, Stuart plan or a return to the trust agreement. The letter is supplemented by a copy of the affidavit in Winfield R. Sheehan's suit to restrain carrying out of the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan.

Sensational Writ Filed by Sheehan Emphasizes Open Break With Fox

Says He Learned of Straits of Fox Company While in Europe

Believed Firm to Be Sound and Was Reassured by Fox Cable

Making public the definite split between him and his chief, with whom he has worked since inception of the company in 1915, Winfield R. Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of Fox Film Corp., has filed suit in Supreme Court to restrain Fox from carrying out the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon, Read refinancing plan.

This plan, avers Sheehan, would cost the Fox companies as much as $31,000,000 more than the Halsey, Stuart plan. The latter, he said, would put $9,000,000 more cash into the companies, and save from $13,000,000 to $31,000,000, Sheehan charges, adding:

"Mr. Fox should have been the first to welcome an opportunity to carry out such a plan. Instead, he has conducted himself as if these enterprises were his own private affair, to be regulated by his own whims, personal desires and caprices, disregarding the many thousands of stockholders and the thousands of employees whose livelihood depends upon the proper continuance of these enterprises."

Following is the text of Sheehan's affidavit in the action:

"I am the vice-president and general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, and have been such for the past fifteen years, commencing with the inception of that corporation, which was organized in the month of February, 1915, and I have been a director of the corporation for approximately eight years.

"My duties in connection with my position called for the exercise of the greatest responsibility. From the inception of the corporation, I have been actively engaged in inaugurating and establishing its sales force and sales policy, throughout the entire United States and the entire foreign field, as well. I organized and inaugurated the operation of every branch office of this corporation in the United States and Canada, and organized or supervised establishment of the branches in all foreign countries.

"I also organized and inaugurated the studios of the corporation in Hollywood, California, and organized the newsreels, educational and scenic films departments.

"Since the inception of the company, I have been solely responsible for the inauguration and carrying out of the sales policies of the company, both domestic and foreign.

Effected Fox Reorganization

"Approximately four and a half years ago, I was placed in charge of all the production of the motion pictures at the Hollywood, California studios of the Fox Film Corporation. At that time, I entirely reorganized and enlarged the entire production organization, and from that time on, I have been constantly in charge of all of the production activities of the company at the Hollywood studios.

"In the course of exercising my duties as the production head of the company, I personally engaged every important motion picture star, director, scenario writer, music writer, production executive, and all other major technical executives and department heads.

"When I undertook my duties as production head, which was in the month of October, 1925, the aggregate gross annual business of the company, derived from the distribution of pictures produced by it, was $21,321,869.59.

"For the year 1923, the gross income derived from similar sources was $16,723,685.23.

"For the year 1924, the gross income derived from similar sources was $16,865,232.71.

"For the year 1925, the gross income derived from similar sources, as hereinabove stated, was $21,321,869.59.

For the year 1926, the gross income derived from similar sources was $23,547,633.92.

"For the year 1927, the gross income derived from similar sources was $25,542,718.66.

For the year 1928, the gross income derived from similar sources was $66,525,737.48.

Break First Loomed Over 3 Months Ago

The storm between Fox and his cabinet was brewing as far back as December 17. It was on that day that Winfield Sheehan, Saul E. Rogers, James R. Grainger, Clayton P. Sheehan, John Zanft and Courtland Smith signed their now famous round robin letter asking Fox to adhere to the letter of his trusteeship agreement with John E. Otterson and H. L. Stuart.

Its publication exclusively in MOTION PICTURE NEWS created a furore throughout the industry and gave to the trade its first intimation that a battle royal was impending. Fox, in his affidavit filed in answer to the receiverships later sought by Mrs. Susie Dryden Kuser, attempted to dwarf the communication into significance by declaring its signatories had drawn it up without full appreciation of the situation.

Since that memorable day, Courtland Smith is out of the organization and John Zanft has had his wings closely clipped.

The full text of the communication is included in Sheehan's affidavit filed with his order seeking to restrain Fox Film from carrying out its refinancing plan with Lehmans, Bancamerica-Blair and Dillon, Read and Co.

"For the year 1929, the gross income derived from similar sources was approximately $72,000,000.

"With reference to the year 1923, the net profit earned by the company from the distribution of motion pictures produced by it was $2,323,685.23; in 1924, it was $2,580,659.78; in 1925, it was $3,388,830.63; in 1926, it was $3,999,323.31; in 1927, it was $4,144,614.86; in 1928, it was $9,774,215.71; and in 1929, it was about $15,000,000.

"Based on my knowledge of the plans and arrangements made for production for the year 1930, I have every reason to believe that the rate of increase of gross business and net profits for that year, will be approximately twenty-five per cent. more than for the year 1929.

"During the past four and a half years, my duties kept me constantly in California, with the exception of occasional trips that I made to New York in order to confer with other officials of the company, and trips that I made to Europe for the purpose of conferring with literary and technical artists, and in order to formulate and organize policies, both foreign and domestic, and to acquire plays, stories and musical compositions for the company in connection with its motion picture productions.

"I was the responsible general manager and the chief executive of this company, and under my management and supervision, the company has prospered enormously.

"With the exception, however, of theatre expansion and financial arrangements and laboratory work, I was responsible for all of the business activities of this company.

"I have a more intimate knowledge of the general business details, production details, distribution details, and all other fields which are under my supervision, than any other official, executive or employee of the company.

Uninformed of Loew Financing

"When the defendant Fox arranged to purchase the Loew stock, I was informed by him in a general way of his intentions. I was given no information as to how the purchase was to be financed. Apparently, the defendant Fox believed that this was not in my department and saw no need to acquaint me with the details of the purchase; and as a matter of fact, it was never his practice to consult with me about any financing plans of the company and I was never permitted to participate in matters of that kind.

"It was generally conceded by statements of motion picture theatre owners, and confirmed by the contracts for film service obtained by the corporation, that the Fox Film Corp. was one of the most successful, prosperous and progressive companies in the world.

"I had every reason to believe that the company was in a sound financial condition. Profits had been increasing yearly. The business was expanding. The talking pictures produced by the company (talking pictures having come into vogue) were highly successful and profitable. It was the producer of some of the finest and most outstanding pictures, throughout the world. Among the great successes were: 'What Price Glory,' 'Seventh Heaven,' 'Four Sons,' 'Street Angel,' 'The Cock-Eyed World,' 'They Had to See Paris,' 'Sunny Side Up,' 'Song o' My Heart,' starring John McCormack, 'Four Devils,' 'Sunrise,' 'In Old Arizona,' and two hundred others which were produced and distributed during the last four years.

"In October, 1929, the business of the corporation made it necessary that I visit New York, for general business conferences, and visit Europe, in the interest of the business of the company.

"From New York, I embarked for Europe. While there, I learned of the serious market crash that occurred in the last week of October or the first week of November, 1929.

Tip-Off Emanated from Others

"Thereupon, I cabled to Mr. Fox and suggested that if he needed me I would return to America on the next steamer. He cabled back that everything was satisfactory; that while there had been a crash in the stock market and the entire country was embarrassed, he felt that his companies were in a strong position and that there was no reason for me to concern myself with the welfare of the companies.

"Accordingly, I continued my business in Europe, and visited a number of countries, returning to Paris in the latter part of November.

"It was then that I received a number of urgent trans-atlantic telephone calls from officials of the company, other than Mr. Fox, notifying me that the company was in serious financial straits by reason of the fact that Mr. Fox had engaged in a program of over-expansion, without having adequately provided for the financial requirements thereof.

"This information came to me as a shock and surprise because, on the eve of my sailing for Europe, Mr. Fox had informed me that the companies were in strong financial condition and that their future was extremely bright.

"I was advised that it was imperative that I take the next steamer and sail for America.

"I promptly went to London, preparatory to leaving for New York, and while there, visiting with a gentleman who was a personal representative of Mr. Fox, a trans-atlantic telephone message from Mr. Fox came in and this gentleman spoke to Mr. Fox over the trans-atlantic telephone. He told Mr. Fox that I was in the room, whereupon, a telephone conversation ensued between Mr. Fox and myself, in which I told him that I had received this very serious information and was greatly distressed over it. He again assured me that everything was all right, that there was no danger threatening the company, and that it would pull through the crisis to the satisfaction of all concerned.

"The next day, I sailed for New York, and I arrived here on Dec. 3, 1929, at about 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

"The Master Stroke"

"From the ship, I proceeded immediately to Mr. Fox's apartment in his hotel, and after customary friendly greetings had passed between us, Mr. Fox informed me that he had actually signed a trust agreement between himself, John E. Otterson, president of the Electrical Research Products, Inc., and Harold L. Stuart, head of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and that under said trust agreement, he was the third trustee. He informed me that he regarded the execution of that agreement as a master business stroke on his part, and that in view of the serious financial condition of the company and of the critical financial conditions that generally prevailed in the country at the time, he considered the power and prestige of the Electrical Research Products, Inc., which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., as a remarkable ally; and that the banking strength of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., which had been the financial bankers of the company and had rendered splendid service to the company, as an additional powerful friend.

Averse to Orders

"Can you imagine me taking orders from a flag lieutenant?" William Fox asked Winfield Sheehan in the course of an argument over the carrying out of the trusteeship, Sheehan's affidavit states. Fox was alluding to John E. Otterson, who was formerly a lieutenant in the United States Navy, and said the trusteeship was distasteful, Sheehan says.

Sheehan's Stand

Winfield Sheehan first received news of the Fox companies' financial stress while in Europe, he asserts in his affidavit. Hurrying to New York, he arrived to learn that Fox already had signed the trusteeship agreement with Harry L. Stuart and John E. Otterson, and was very enthusiastic over the step taken. Both Sheehan and Fox agreed that the trusteeship was of great benefit to the company, he said, but that nine days later Fox told him he intended to repudiate the agreement, over Sheehan's protest.

Fox "Happy" Over Alliance

"Mr. Fox informed me that he was very happy over having made this alliance with these interests, and for several hours, he emphasized to me the tremendous advantages that would flow from this extraordinary arrangement he had made. In fact, our conversation lasted until four o'clock in the morning, during all of which period, he was devoting his time to impressing upon me, in the most forceful manner, that this trust agreement was not only the means of saving the company, but was a master stroke on his part. He repeatedly stated to me that that was the finest financial achievement of his entire business career and would place the company in the strongest financial condition of any company in the entire industry, in the world.

"During the course of this conversation, I stated to Mr. Fox that there might be some possible difficulty in operating under the trust agreement, unless I was placed in a position where I could deal freely with all of the parties to the trust agreement, that all understandings of policy would be open and aboveboard, and would be known and sanctioned by the three trustees as a unit, so as to avoid any possibility of undercurrents or cross-currents.

"Mr. Fox assured me that there would be no danger or possibility of that, because he regarded Mr. Stuart as the soul of honor, and one of the finest banking minds in this country; and that Mr. Otterson was a firm, capable executive, who represented the vast interests of the telephone company, than which, Mr. Fox stated, there is no better conducted or more honestly-operated business enterprise in the world.

"On the next day, Dec. 4, Mr. Fox repeated to me, with the same degree of enthusiasm and with the same emphasis and confidence, that the agreement with Stuart and Otterson was highly beneficial to the company and satisfactory to him and a great achievement on his part.

"I told Mr. Fox, that afternoon, that Mr. Otterson, and Mr. Charles B. Stuart, a brother of Harry L. Stuart, had invited me to dine with them at the University Club, that evening. Mr. Fox had previously stated to me that I might expect a call from these gentlemen, to discuss the business affairs of the company, in accordance with carrying out the trusteeship.

"At the appointed time, I met these gentleme at the University Club, dined with them, and had a lengthy conversation with them, with reference to the trust agreement and the business affairs of the company, lasting approximately six hours.

Insisted Upon Safe Financing

"In the course of that conversation, I inquired if there was any intention on their part to dispose of any of the substantial assets of the company, such as the West Coast Theatres Circuit, the British Gaumont Co., in England,

Producer Praised Co-Trustees As Honorable and Capable Men

or the Loew's stock which had been previously purchased. They informed me that there was no intention on their part to sell any of these assets, nor to sell any assets of the company; that they intended to have the company function and continue as theretofore, with all of its assets intact, and to expand along healthy lines. However, they stated that it was imperative that the financing of the company should be placed in safe condition, so that the obligations incurred in the past would be put in a secure financial condition, and that any future expansion would be financed in proper manner.

"I then stated to them that I wished to be assured that in functioning under this trust agreement, with them acting as trustees, I would be placed in a position where I could at all times deal and speak openly with them and that there would be no secrets or secretive conduct on my part as among any of the trustees. They assured me that it was their desire that everything should be carried on in an honest, open and aboveboard manner as among all the trustees, and that they would not expect any other conduct on my part.

"I told them that under those conditions, it would be satisfactory to me to carry on.

"These gentlemen confirmed to me what Mr. Fox had previously stated and reiterated.

Ulterior Motives Denied

"I asked them why they were willing to serve as trustees without compensation, and wished to know if there was any intention on the part of either of these trustees to acquire a substantial interest in the companies, or whether they were governed by any other motives of personal interest in this transaction. Mr. Otterson stated that the telephone company had no intention to, and would not, at any future time, wish to acquire any stock in any of the Fox companies, or any other motion picture company. Mr. Otterson said that because of his company's interest in sound recording and reproduction in picture theatres, they wanted to put the entire industry in a healthy and stable condition; aside from his interest in seeing that the note of $15,000,000 due to his company would be paid.

"In answer to my question, Mr. Stuart stated that his company had no intention of acquiring control of any of the Fox companies; that their interest was solely that of a financial banker, who had underwritten $48,000,000 of obligations of the companies, and that they owed a definite obligation to the security holders who were scattered all over the United States.

Fox in Complete Accord

"I told these gentlemen that I intended to visit Mr. Fox at his hotel, after leaving them,

On the Up and Up

Everything was to be open and above board, with the trustees acting as a unit in bringing the Fox companies out of their financial plight, according to Winfield Sheehan's affidavit. His conversations with and assurances from the trustees convinced him that such would be the case, Sheehan asserts.

and they stated that I was privileged to disclose to him all matters discussed between us.

"Thereupon, I called upon Mr. Fox, at the Ambassador Hotel and repeated everything that had taken place, and he expressed entire satisfaction and accord with what had transpired; and he again declared that the trusteeship was of great benefit to the financial standing, the future and growth of the corporation.

"On the next day, Dec. 5, I had another talk with Mr. Fox. Again, he spent considerable time in telling me how advantageous this trust agreement was to the company, and he expressed great enthusiasm and self-congratulation over its execution.

"On Dec. 6, 1929, Mr. Fox, in substance, repeated his earlier talks with me.

"On Saturday, Dec. 7, I had a further talk with Mr. Fox. He expressed his pleasure at having consummated this contract, and he assured me that he felt it would be carried out with precision and clarity by all parties, and that it was a thoroughly workable arrangement and would in no wise interfere with the operations of the company. He said: 'I consider myself a pretty lucky fellow in having two such partners as Stuart and the telephone company.'

"On the same day, I met Harry L. Stuart at the Metropolitan Club, at 60th Street and Fifth Ave., New York City, and he confirmed to me and assured me that the understanding of the trusteeship that I had obtained as a result of my conversations with Mr. Fox and with Mr. Otterson and his brother, Charles B. Stuart, were correct as to the aim and intention of the trusteeship and the policy of operation thereof.

Fox Backs Out

"After this conversation and after five days of careful deliberation and thought, I reached the conclusion and belief that the trust agreement which had been signed by Mr. Fox was, as he had stated, the finest and most advantageous arrangement that could be obtained for the benefit of all concerned.

"I did not see Mr. Fox again until Thursday, Dec. 12, because he was not available at his rooms at the Ambassador Hotel, or at his apartment, 270 Park Ave.; but I understood from his secretary that he was at his Woodmere, Long Island, residence, laid up in bed and suffering from a cold, and that only Mrs. Fox and Jack G. Leo, his brother-in-law, were permitted to see him.

"At his request, I called on Mr. Fox, at his home in Woodmere, on Dec. 12. To my great consternation, he stated that he did not feel inclined to go on with the agreement. He said that he was sure that Otterson and Stuart would make vital changes in the personnel of the company, and that he was disinclined to continue in a position where he would have to consult his co-trustees. He said it was distasteful to him. He felt he was no longer in control, as theretofore. He expressed himself as being unhappy under the arrangement.

Says He Insisted Upon Continuance

"I frankly told him that in my talks with Stuart and Otterson, I had been assured that there would be no substantial changes in the operating personnel of the company, aside from such changes as would be necessary in the financial end of the enterprises. I reminded him that a contract was a contract; that he had had plenty of time, as he had told me, to consult able and eminent counsel, before signing the agreement; that he had assured himself of the benefits that would accrue from the consummation of such a contract; and that he had on five consecutive days following return from Europe, assured me that the contract was a wonderful arrangement in all respects, for himself and for all of the corporations, and that nothing but good would result therefrom.

Where Silence is Golden

Hollywood—They're just not talking about the William Fox-Winfield R. Sheehan split here at the studios. There is great concern, of course, as to just where the jam will lead, but the lot is strangely silent on the subject. There is fear of talking on the subject, on account of the indefinite outcome of the squabble. Even the undercover discussions are missing. No one wants to take sides in the controversy, and the studio people are keeping their mouths shut.

"At this conversation he, for the first time, expressed to me the fear that Otterson and Stuart intended to steal his companies. I told him that I did not share that belief, but felt convinced to the contrary; and that he, by his own attitude, over a period of five consecutive days after my arrival in America, had helped to convince me that the trust agreement was beneficial, both to himself and to the company, and had not indicated any line of conduct on their part that was contrary to a course of conduct that was helpful both to him and to the company. He then stated that while he had no feeling against Stuart in the matter, he assailed Otterson as a 'wrecker' of him, personally, and alluding to the said Otterson, said:

"'Can you imagine me taking orders from a flag lieutenant?' (Having reference to Otterson's former occupation as an officer of the United States Navy.)

"I urged Mr. Fox to go through with his agreement. I said that I was talking to him as his friend. I said:

"'You signed an agreement in good faith and you have no right to repudiate it. Our relations are with the general public and for the benefit of the public who go to moving picture theatres, and for the employees of the company, for its stockholders, creditors and for the sake of your friends, you should go through with this trusteeship, as you are in honor bound to do.'

Warned of Disaster

"Mr. Fox kept repeating that he could not go through with the agreement. However, he refused to commit himself with any finality, and I left him with the parting statement, that he was in honor bound to go through with his agreement; that a repudiation of it would bring only untold misery and disaster to the company, its tremendous staff of employees, its stockholders and creditors, and that it would even affect the patrons of the theatres and the public and jeopardize the pleasant public relations that had existed theretofore between the companies and the theatre-going public.

"I reminded him repeatedly that his enterprise was not a private affair, but that there was involved tremendous responsibility to the public, and that he could not afford, for their sake, to bring disaster and ruin upon this enterprise.

Affidavit States That Sheehan Feared Public Effect of Repudiation

"He remained in Woodmere for the balance of that week, and I did not hear from him or see him again that week.

"In the week of Dec. 16, he returned to New York, and for the first time, he announced that there was a giant conspiracy on foot to ruin and to rob him of his companies, and he said that Mr. Stuart was part of that conspiracy and that under no conditions would he ask the members of his board to deliver up their resignations.

"Mr. Fox declared openly that he was through with the agreement; that so far as he was concerned, it was null and void; that he would do nothing under it; that he would not ask the directors of either company to deliver up their resignations, as required by the trust agreement; that he would not permit the trustees to vote the 51,000 shares of Class B stock, nor the 100,000 shares of the Fox Theatres Corp. which had been deposited with the Bankers Trust Co., and that he proposed to ignore the agreement, to continue the operations of the company as theretofore, and to seek financial aid from other sources.

Squawked Over Personnel Changes

"Mr. Fox contended that the trustees had violated the agreement. I asked him in what respect they had done so, and he replied that the violation of the agreement consisted in changes in the official personnel of the companies, which were contemplated by Otterson and Stuart, and which were not agreeable or satisfactory to him.

"I did not rely on my own views of the situation. I had numerous talks with a number of the executives, officials and heads of departments of the company. I also conferred with Saul E. Rogers, Esq., the general counsel for the company, since its inception, and a man who is intimately acquainted with all its problems and affairs, and who is likewise a director nd vice-president of the company, and whom I knew to be an old and trusted friend of William Fox.

"I had implicit faith in these gentlemen whom I consulted, and they all agreed with me that the trust agreement was to the best interests of Mr. Fox and his company.

How "Cabinet" Letter Started

"I telephoned a number of the executives and invited them to meet at my apartment in the Savoy Plaza Hotel, in order to have a frank, open, free and honest discussion of the situation. The conference was had and those who attended are the following:

"Saul E. Rogers, vice-president and general counsel of Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp.

"James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Fox Film Corp.

"John Zanft, general manager of Fox Theatres Corp.

"Courtland Smith, general manager of Movietone News Department of Fox Film Corp.

"Clayton P. Sheehan, manager of the foreign department of Fox Film Corp., having jurisdiction over distribution and sales in all foreign countries throughout the world, except Canada.

relations of the companies would be affected by a repudiation of the trust agreement.

"As a result of this discussion, it was decided that inasmuch as Mr. Fox had practically excluded himself from contact with his executives, that these executives address to him a letter."

Here Sheehan attached a copy of the letter written to Fox under date of Dec. 17, in which the Fox cabinet called upon Fox to carry through his agreement with Otterson and Stuart. The text was carried exclusively in MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Fox Put "On the Carpet"

"No acknowledgment of any kind was ever made to me by Mr. Fox of the receipt of this letter, until I met him as a result of a telephone call to appear at his home for a conference, which occurred two days before Christmas, to wit, Dec. 23, 1929.

"Mr. Fox taxed me and the other subscribers to the letter with being disloyal. I plainly and bluntly told him that I would not permit him to make such an accusation; that it was he who had entered into the trust agreement, after the fullest advice and mature deliberation; that I had likewise informed myself of the benefits of the plan and that having been in touch with the executives, and knowing the needs and requirements of the company, we all felt that it was Mr. Fox's plain, unvarnished duty, to carry out the terms of this agreement, and that I would not permit him to stamp our opinion as disloyalty and treachery; that he had no right to translate our frank and honest conviction of what was good for the company and himself into a symptom of disloyalty. Mr. Fox thereupon threw up his hands and said:

"'We will leave it go at that. You were misled.'

"Shortly afterwards, Mr. Fox broached a proposition to me which was as follows: That I was to organize a campaign for the purpose of obtaining from exhibitors of theatres with whom the companies dealt, and from the employees of the company and from personal friends and acquaintances, sums of money which were to be secured by notes of the company. The campaign was to be organized by me, he proposed, but the soliciting letters were to be signed by him. I told him definitely that such a campaign would result in failure and would undermine the morale of the body of executives and employees and would build up a sales resistance on the part of the theatre owners, because of the confession of weakness which this appeal would indicate; and that friends and acquaintances would not be eager or willing to invest their cash, unless it was handled and guaranteed in a regular banking way. He told me that it could not be handled in that way because all Wall Street was mobilized against him personally and was antagonistic toward him personally.

The "Securities" Flop

"Immediately succeeding that, Mr. Fox inaugurated, against my advice and without my cooperation, a campaign to sell $35,000,000 of so-called gold notes of the company. An attempt was made to sell these among exhibitors, employees of the company and personal friends. This, however, resulted in failure and brought in its wake the various dangers that I had predicted to Mr. Fox would follow therefrom.

"A series of meetings of the directors of the Fox Film Corp. were held.

The directors are:

William Fox,
Jack G. Leo, his brother-in-law,
Aaron Fox, his brother.
Charles S. Levine, his cousin,
Jacob W. Loeb, a lifelong personal friend.

all of the foregoing being employees of the company;

Nathaniel King
Saul E. Rogers, and myself.

"Mr. Rogers, Mr. King and I were the only three independent directors on that board. The rest of the board were controlled, dominated and completely subservient to the wishes of Mr. Fox.

"The first of these meetings was held on Feb. 16, 1930, at the office of Samuel Untermyer, Esq., who had been engaged by Mr. Fox, as his counsel, in receivership proceedings pending in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. All of the eight directors of the corporation were present. Mr. Untermyer was likewise present. He submitted the Bancamerica-Blair plan to the directors, although a copy of the plan had not been furnished to Mr. Rogers, to Mr. King or to me, in spite of our efforts to obtain a copy for our perusal, prior to the meeting. I asked Mr. Fox, at the meeting, whether he believed the Blair plan to be for the good of the company and whether he recommended its approval by the Board of Directors. Mr. Untermyer, answering for him, said:

Tilt with Untermyer

"'We have no choice. It is either this plan or receivership.'

"I stated:

"'That is not correct, Mr. Untermyer. Mr. Fox can carry out his contract in the trusteeship with Messrs. Otterson and Stuart, and this would immediately place the company, the stockholders and employees in a safe position. The company could, in a very short time, be on a sound financial footing.'

"Mr. Untermyer replied:

"'You know Mr. Fox won't do that. What is the use of talking further?'

"And then proceeded to arbitrarily continue with the meeting in further approval of the Bancamerica-Blair plan.

"My conclusion was that the slogan, 'this plan or a receivership,' was a bugaboo, but that the actual situation confronting us was that the directors were compelled to accept the one and only plan that was personally agreeable to Fox, and that if the directors did not entirely submit to Fox's arbitrary decision, he, Fox, would bring about a receivership by his own creation and domination and by his obstinacy.

Well Covered

Winnie Sheehan attended the opening of "Mammy" at the Warners Wednesday night. He wore street clothes and a soft, grey hat and was accompanied by Nathan Burkan, his attorney in the funfest with William Fox. Most of the audience was in evening dress.

"I see you're well covered," was the remark leveled at Sheehan, with the speaker nodding toward Burkan.

"Truth is," said Sheehan, "I didn't have time to buy a high hat."

Banking Competition Would Be Beneficial, He Told Colleagues

"I understood, also, that there were side agreements with Mr. Fox in connection with the so-called Bancamerica-Blair plan which were not revealed or divulged at the directors' meeting.

Receivers' Statements

"At this meeting, I also made the following statement:

> "'I see only benefit and constructive good coming from competition for the new financing for the company. Why not permit other bankers to compete?'

"I stated that Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., were ready and willing to negotiate a deal that they had guaranteed to me would be more favorable and far less expensive and would not deprive Mr. Fox of Class B stockholdings of Fox Film Corp. that he possessed.

"This was unanswered and waived aside by Messrs. Fox and Untermyer.

"I have believed from the beginning that the statements by Mr. Fox regarding receivership for the company were fictitious and misleading and used by him as a smokescreen to actually jam his selfish plans and interests through, at the expense of stockholders. The talk of receivership appeared ridiculous, or simply as a threat, in view of the struggle between two recognized, big, rich banking groups which were and are competing for the business of financing the companies.

"Finally, Mr. Fox stated definitely that we would have to take the Blair plan or submit to a receivership.

"In stating his grounds for objecting to the Blair plan, Mr. Saul E. Rogers said that it would place a tremendous burden of expense upon the company, to begin with, and that it would tie up the assets of the company and disable it from expanding. Mr. Jenkins read the Blair plan to the directors, and thereupon, a vote being taken, Messrs. Fox, Leo, Aaron Fox, Levin and Loeb voted in favor of the plan; Mr. King refused to vote; and Mr. Rogers and I voted against its acceptance.

First Plan a Tough One

"The following day, Feb. 17, another meeting of the board of directors was held at the office of the company, 850 Tenth Ave. We all attended and Mr. Untermyer was again present. Thereupon, the first plan prepared by Halsey, Stuart & Co. was presented to the meeting. I objected to the plan, because it called for Mr. Fox giving up his Class B stock by an exchange, at a ratio for Class A stock. I believed that provision was unfair to Mr. Fox and I so stated. Thereupon, a vote being taken, the said Halsey, Stuart plan was rejected and I voted for the rejection.

"On Feb. 18, another board meeting being held, there was presented to the meeting a letter which had been received from Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., setting forth that if the board of directors would appoint a duly authorized committee to deal and act for them, they were prepared to modify the plan previously submitted, both as to compensation, voting rights and in other respects. Mr. Untermyer read this letter to the members of the board. Thereupon, a motion was made by Mr. Rogers, and seconded by me, that the board appoint a committee with authority to act, to meet with Halsey, Stuart in an endeavor to negotiate a better plan. That motion was defeated, the vote being as follows: Mr. Rogers and I in favor (Mr. King was absent), and the other directors opposing.

"On March 4, 1930, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., served a copy of their revised plan on Mr. Samuel Untermyer, in the later afternoon, served Mr. Rogers and me, with a copy, also serving various other directors of the company with copies.

"After studying the plan and comparing it with the Blair plan, Mr. Rogers and I came to the conclusion that said Halsey, Stuart plan of March 4th was in many respects superior to the Blair plan, because it indicated a saving to the company in the financing of a minimum of approximately $13,000,000, and a maximum of possibly $31,000,000, in addition to which, it allowed the company to function freely and to expand, and did not freeze the credit or assets of the company.

"Upon arriving at this conclusion, we invited several other executives of the company to participate in a discussion, as a result of which, they acquiescing in our view that the Halsey, Stuart plan was a superior one, more economical and in the best interests of the stockholders, employees and creditors of the company, we agreed to recommend the Halsey, Stuart plan, and subscribed a recommendation in the form hereto attached.

Directors' Battle

"On March 5, 1930, at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, at the offices of the company, 850 Tenth Ave., a meeting of the board of directors was held. At the opening of the meeting, Mr. Untermyer announced that this Halsey, Stuart plan had been served on him on the afternoon of March 4, and had been served on various directors the night before. He derided the plan and advised that it be given absolutely no consideration. Mr. Rogers arose and spoke in favor of the plan and pointed out its advantages. Mr. Untermyer brushed aside further argument or consideration of the Halsey, Stuart plan and called for an immediate vote, requesting Mr. Fox to take a vote. Mr. King refused to vote; Mr. Rogers and I voted in favor of adopting the Halsey, Stuart plan, and Mr. Fox and the other directors whom he has at all times controlled, voted against this plan.

"Thereupon, I made a motion that the Halsey, Stuart plan be submitted to a special meeting of the stockholders which had been called for the same day, at 11 o'clock in the morning, for their consideration and action. Mr. Untermyer requested that I change the language of my resolution and simply refer the plan to the stockholders' meeting; which I declined to do. A vote was thereupon taken, Mr. Rogers, Mr. King and I voting in favor, and Mr. Fox and the other directors voting against it.

"The attitude of Mr. Fox has been harmful to the best interests of the companies and to his own interests, as well. Without reasonable justification he has sought to repudiate a trust agreement under which these companies would be fully and completely financed. He has been obstructive to every suggestion that would be of benefit to the companies. He has refused to take counsel with the executives of these companies, many of whom have been associated with him since the inception of these enterprises. He has excluded himself from all participation in the active business affairs of the companies, and has assumed an attitude of indifference and disregard for the welfare of the business of these companies.

"As a director of the Fox Film Corp., as general manager and as one who has contributed largely to the growth and expansion and the success of the company, I believe it my earnest obligation and duty to set forth the facts as they occurred and to explain to this court my reasons for favoring the adoption of the Halsey, Stuart plan and the carrying out of the trust agreement. I believe it is for the best interests of the company and all concerned that the trust agreement be carried out.

"Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., at various times during the past few years, had financed the Fox Film Corp. and the Fox Theatres Corp. I have ascertained the exact amounts loaned, the time of repayment of each such loan, and the rate of interest paid. A tabulation of the same is as follows:

Loan Made to	Amount	Date Made	Date Paid	Rate
Fox Theatres	500.000	12/7/27	9/7/28	*
Fox Film	1,000,000	1/23/28	3/15/28	5%
Fox Film	10,000,000	2/26/29	4/2/29	6%
Fox Theatres	250,000	3/28/29	6/12/29	6%
Fox Theatres	1,000,000	4/29/29	6/12/29	6%
Fox Theatres	500,000	6/16/29	6/12/29	6%
Fox Theatres	1,000,000	5/17/29	6/12/29	6%
Fox Theatres	1,500,000	12/5/29	12/10/29	6%

* 5% till 6/6/28. 5½% from 6/6/28 to 9/7/28.

"These loans were unsecured. The interest charged on the loans was five per cent, five and one-half per cent and six per cent. On no loan did the interest rate exceed six per cent, the legal rate of interest in New York. Moreover, no bonus of any kind was paid to Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., by the Fox Film Corp. or the Fox Theatres Corp., in connection with these loans.

"This information demonstrated to me the good faith, the good will and the fairness of business dealing with the Halsey, Stuart & Co. in its relations to the Fox interests.

"I have not sought, nor do I seek, a receivership; and all the executives and employees of these tremendous enterprises are opposed to a receivership, which could only have a harmful and demoralizing effect. We want these enterprises to continue to flourish. We feel that the tremendous good will and prestige of these companies can be enhanced only by careful, economical and prudent financing.

"Disregarding Stockholders"?

"Mr. Fox should have been the first to welcome an opportunity to carry out such a plan. Instead, he has conducted himself as if these enterprises were his own private affair, to be regulated by his own whims, personal desires and caprices, disregarding the many thousands of stockholders who hold his securities, and the many creditors and thousands of employees whose livelihood depends upon the proper continuance of these enterprises.

"I pray that this court decree specific performance, compelling Mr. Fox to carry out the conditions, terms and covenants of the trust agreement, and I ask that this motion for temporary injuction be granted, restraining and enjoining the defendants (other than Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., Stuart, Otterson and Electrical Research Products, Inc.), from going through with the Bancamerica-Blair plan, or issuing any securities thereunder, or doing any act or thing to interfere with the trust agreement Exhibit 'B' of the complaint herein; and that the court take such other appropriate action as it may, in its judgment, deem necessary or proper in the circumstances.

"That no previous application for such relief has been made by me to any court or judge."

After All These Years

Eddie Cantor has given the legit a big black double-cross. Read what he told a "N. Y. World" reporter:

"In my opinion, the future of show business lies in the manufacture of talkies."

"Hit the Deck," 1st Run Record For Al Steffes

Minneapolis—Al Steffes' Paradise, a suburban house, broke all records with his showing of "Hit the Deck." This film was shown at the theatre for a week and marked the first time any outlying house, otherwise than the Publix, owned and operated in this city, ran an offering for six days. It is reported that on the opening night all box office records were smashed. It is further said that the week showed a profit far in excess of its usual quota.

Steffes stole a march on Publix by running newspaper advertisements the same size as that run by the Lyric theatre (2 columns by 3 inches).

The opening night, Sunday, found the street jammed with customers and not an unfilled parking space within blocks of the theatre.

"Sons O' Guns" First U.A. Picture from Al Jolson

Al Jolson's first picture for United Artists will be based on "Sons O' Guns," musical comedy, in which Jack Donahue and Lily Damita have been appearing on the New York stage. No director or leading lady have yet been chosen for the film.

"Big Fight" in Spanish

Hollywood—Arrangements have been made by Samuel Zierler of James Cruze Prod. to make a Spanish version of "The Big Fight," the English version of which is now being completed on the Coast, under the personal supervision of James Cruze. Ralph Ince will aid in making the Spanish version, and Andres de Segurola, opera singer, screen player, author and linguist, will adapt the story for the Spanish-speaking nations.

More Talkaphone Installations

Des Moines—Installations of Talkaphone sound-on-film equipment were made at three more Iowa theatres this week. R. C. Headley of the Opera House at Garden Grove, J. H. Johnson of the Princess at Stewart, G. G. Scott of the theatre at LeMars have bought this new equipment.

Metro Exchange Opened

Boston—Metro held a "house warming" at its new two-story exchange at Church and Winchester Streets Tuesday afternoon. Notables from the home office, together with a distinguished list of film folk from all over the East, attended.

Double-Cross Charged to Sheehan by Fox; Assails Him for Backing Foes

Sheehan Sought to Replace Him as Head of Firms, Fox Alleges

Winfield R. Sheehan "entered a bargain" by which he was to supplant William Fox at the head of the Fox companies, and now is attempting to put through that alleged bargain.

That is the comment of William Fox upon the suit of Sheehan for an injunction to prevent Fox from putting into effect the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair, Dillon, Read plan for refinancing the Fox companies.

The suit, and statement, revealed the open split existing between Fox and his chief lieutenant, whom Fox assailed as an ingrate.

"Mr. Sheehan," said Fox's statement, "who owes everything he is and has in the world to me, had been from the beginning of the struggle a faithful ally of the group that for over two months has been openly urging the Federal Court to appoint receivers."

Claims Efforts to Wreck Firms

"The telephone company," Halsey, Stuart and other interests, are trying to wreck his companies by forcing them into receivership, declared Fox. He said that he had been offered $18,000,000 for his controlling interest in the companies, but insisted he never would sell out and "betray the 18,000 and more stockholders by turning these properties over to the tender mercies of these people."

"It was he (Sheenan) who," continues the statement, "during my illness December last, and a few days after the Telephone Co.-Halsey, Stuart trust agreement was made, entered into a bargain by which he was to supplant me, although he owns no substantial interest in the company.

"That is the bargain he is now trying to put through. He has worked long enough under me to know that his unworthy insinuation that I have a 'secret' or any other agreement or understanding of any kind, directly or indirectly, with the bankers financing the companies out of their troubles, is utterly false and is grossly unjust to me as well as to the eminent gentlemen against whom this charge is recklessly made."

"The Telephone Co. and Halsey, Stuart, who are seeking to dominate this situation and get control of the companies with the aid of Mr. Sheehan, do not now and never have owned a share of stock in either of the companies (Fox Film Corp. and Fox Theatres Corp.)"

Debts of $27,000,000 owed Halsey, Stuart and Electrical Research Products are entirely protected by the Lehman-Bancamerica-Blair-Dillon, Read plan adopted at the stockholders' meeting. He denied Sheehan's claim this plan would cost the stockholders $18,000,000 more than the Halsey, Stuart plan.

"In a misguided moment," Fox said, "and when I believed in the motives of these men (Stuart and Otterson), I foolishly transferred my voting stock to these trustees for the sole purpose of getting out a plan of financing to save the companies from the temporary financial embarrassment in which they found themselves by reason of my misplaced reliance upon the promises and ability of Halsey, Stuart & Co. to finance the companies, on which they completely broke down."

Stuart Motives Hit

Harry Stuart, Fox charged, "with the aid of Mr. (John E.) Otterson and Mr. Sheehan," sought to "use his powers as an alleged trustee for his own profit and aggrandizement." He declared he would not sell out to the Stuart-Otterson group, because of his duty to his stockholders.

"I want the stockholders to know," he added, "that in all this desperate, sordid game of high finance there is at least one man to whom money is not the only thing in the world."

Passes Recalled

Baltimore—All annual passes for the Loew theatres including the Century, Valencia and Parkway, none having been issued by Loew's for the Stanley, have been recalled by Howard Price Kingsmore, Loew's city manager in this city. No new annuals will be distributed, according to Kingsmore, who is said to be following orders from New York.

Mpls. Clubwomen Turn Attention To Film Reform

Minneapolis—Local clubwomen, after having been successful in making stage attractions 99.44-100 per cent pure in this city, are now going to do bigger and better things for the photoplays.

They intend to act upon suggestions received from Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, director of motion picture public relations.

Local managers are to be persuaded to expurgate all objectional features of films being shown at local houses. The suggestions made by the local women may carry weight. They agitated against the showing of "Strange Interlude" when it was presented upon the Metropolitan stage. They had portions of "Street Scene," which also played here, cut. Their efforts were the main reason for the Gayety (a burlesque house) closing its doors. They also served as a threat against the Palace, which followed the Gayety as a secondary burlesque theatre. The Palace is now closed. What effect their demands will have upon screen attractions here is being awaited anxiously.

King to Direct Buck Jones

Louis King has been signed as director for the first of the Buck Jones productions to be released by Columbia. The first is entitled "The Man From Hell's River."

Columbia Buys 2 Plays

Columbia has added two more stage plays to its list of productions for next season. They are "Sure Fire" and "Bless You, Sister."

Third Week for 'Anna Christie'

"Anna Christie," Greta Garbo's initial talker, now is in its third week at the Capitol, New York.

"Sally" Held Over

First National's "Sally" is the first picture to be held over a second week at the Earle, Washington.

Warner's Sentiment

Hollywood—Harry M. Warner's trip to the coast was made chiefly for the legal adoption of the child of his late brother, Sam. The child had been living with a nurse for some months, as its mother, Lina Basquette, has been touring the country in an act. Warner, therefore, arranged for legal adoption of the child, so she could enjoy the family privileges and love he felt his brother Sam would want.

Famous-Canadian Offers New Stock Expansion Plan

Montreal—In line with its expansion policy, Famous Players-Canadian has offered 30,000 additional shares of its stock on the Montreal Stock Exchange, in anticipation of purchase by the Royal Securities Corp. The firm has an option on the shares at $25. The increased exchange value gives the bank profit of $1,000,000 on the shares, it is stated. I. W. Killam of the Royal firm is one of the three voting trustees of the theatre company.

Berlin Casting Picture

Irving Berlin is in New York casting "The Love Cottage," his first independent film production for United Artists. He will return next week to Hollywood, where production will start May 1.

Fischer Buys "Clancy"

Cleveland—"Clancy in Wall Street" has been acquired for distribution in this territory by Meyer Fischer, head of the Fischer Film Exchange.

Joe Brandt in New York

Joe Brandt, president of Columbia Pictures, returned to New York from Hollywood Thursday.

Talkie Monopoly

Hollywood—One of the film colony's cynics is circulating the story that a prominent female star is so fond of talking about her own operations that she's demanded that the other actresses on the lot be forbidden by contract to have any of their own.

"Cuckoos" a Laugh-Getter

Hollywood—A crazy quilt of comedy and music, seldom with serious moments—"Cuckoos" will rank with laugh hits of the year. Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolrey, the funny boys of "Rio Rita," aided by Jobyna Howland, Dorothy Lee, Mitchell Lewis and others, are even funnier than in their initial film appearance.

It's a laugh special—with plenty of music in between—rather in the musical extravaganza class with low-brow comedy and dialogue that everyone catches quickly and understands. There is no attempt for sophisticated lines, neither are there dirt sequences of dialogue used to gain laughs. Paul Sloane directed most capably, setting a fast tempo that made the 100-minute preview seem one-half that time. "Cuckoos" has plenty to recommend it. There are better than three laughs a minute.

GREENE

"SWEET KITTY BELLAIRS," Warner Bros. special on the 1930 list, will not be filmed in color, as planned. It is an adaptation of the famous Belasco play, and features Claudia Dell and Percy Askam. It is under the direction of Alfred E. Green.

Milwaukee Plans Altered

Milwaukee—Plans for Warner Brothers' 2,400-seat theatre here, now under construction, have been altered so as to include additional property on Wisconsin Ave. The theatre will cost approximately $1,500,000, and it is hoped to have it completed by the time Fox's Merrill, directly across the street from it, is closed. The latter theatre has approximately six months more to operate under its lease, which is reported to have been purchased by chain store interests.

Silverberg to Detroit

Detroit—H. A. Silverberg, newly-appointed manager of the local Pathe Exchange, returns to the rooster banner after ten years, having been a salesman with Hodkinson when that organization released through Pathe.

From Hodkinson, Silverberg went to Fox and then Goldwyn in Pittsburgh. He came to Detroit in 1923 to join M-G-M and has spent the past seven years in this territory, later joining Warners and United Artists. He left Detroit last November to join Tiffany at Cincinnati.

Winter Garden Changes April 3

April 3 is date set for opening of the renovated New York Winter Garden on a grind policy. Warners has spent more than $200,000 in altering the house. A Seventh Ave. box office entrance is one of the new features. "Under a Texas Moon" will be the lead-off picture under the new policy.

Buy Blandenboro House

Bladenboro, N. C.—T. C. Lambden and O. H. Young have purchased the Lyric here from Amusement Operating Co.

Vale! Tin Pans!

The anti-noise crusade launched in New York some time ago seems to have died, and probably the trek of song writers to the coast had something to do with it.

But Can He Read?

Hollywood—A film star was up against it the other day when his son, a kindergarten pupil, demanded that he relate the story of the three bears. The next day the disgusted youngster brought home a book about the Bruin Trio with the comment: "I told teacher that you wanted to read it." When the story got out the star was deluged with scores of children's books and at social affairs he's called on for Mother Goose rhymes.

Rogers Starts Second

Hollywood—Will Rogers has started rehearsals on his second starring talker for Fox, "So This Is London," from the George M. Cohan play of the same name. John Blystone will direct.

Producers With Perfect Eyesight Are Blind!

An army of exhibitors want to know why more Westerns aren't offered — why producers are blind to a great market, and who is going to supply the tremendous public demand for Westerns in sound.

Exhibitors tell us that millions of fans want to hear the thunder of flying hoofs, the "whoopee" of cowboys, the deadly bark of six-guns, the snorting, bellowing rage of stampeding cattle, the roaring wheels of covered wagons, war cries of Indian days, and the voices of heroes and heroines of historic and modern frontier life whispering warnings, and crooning love lyrics while villains hiss and stalk.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS for April 26 will contain a red-hot special section on Westerns. It will tell producers and distributors why exhibitors want them, and in what territories the demand is greatest, and—it will tell exhibitors which producers and distributors will have Westerns for them to book so they can cash in on one of the livest, quickest markets in the amusement game.

Spoor Resuming Production at Chicago Studio

Chicago—Production will be resumed at the old Essanay studios here this summer, Motion Picture News has been advised by George K. Spoor, pioneer film producer, who for several years has been working on his stereoscopic film process.

Feature length productions will be shot on outdoor sets at the Essanay lot as well as on the studio's stages indoors, Spoor revealed. The initial production schedule will concentrate on adaptations of stage successes. Casting will be from the rank of screen and stage talent. All productions will be shot with the new Spoor-Bergren 70 mm. film, employing the new Spoor cameras designed for this type of film. The productions will bear the Essanay name.

A pioneer in production, Spoor discontinued Essanay studio activities 14 years ago and transformed his properties into a motion picture research laboratory. The bulk of this time has been devoted to a study of defects in photography and attempts to remedy them. Of recent years the Spoor laboratories have concentrated on third-dimensional photography through the medium of 70 mm. film. It is estimated that between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 has been spent in experimental work at the Essanay plant since production was discontinued.

Among Spoor's "discoveries" were Charlie Chaplin, Francis X. Bushman, Bryant Washburn, Gloria Swanson, Henry B. Walthall, Nell Craig, Ruth Stonehouse, and "Broncho Billy" Anderson.

Police Seek Bombers of Neth Columbus Theatre

Columbus, O.—Police here are seeking vandals who bombed the Clinton, placing a time charge in the lobby. The house, which is operated on an open shop basis, has been experiencing labor troubles for some months. Other houses of the circuit, operated by J. Real Neth, also have been subjected to bombing. Several months ago two men were arrested for bombing a Neth house and claimed they were hired to do so by the operators' union. However, the unions deny any part in the outrages.

Hero Worshippers

Hollywood—It happened at a social event of Hollywood's season. Thousands of people thronged outside the Biltmore Hotel attempting to catch glimpses of their favorite stars. Cars carrying picture players and celebrities were virtually mobbed in the traffic.

Inside the Biltmore, there was an entirely different group trying to catch glimpses of their "heroes." This gathering was composed of many "name" players and celebrities. They appeared mildly interested in the civic and state officials who were continually passing through the entrance—but a casual check revealed most of them were waiting for a look at Arthur Brisbane, together with an outside chance opportunity for an introduction. Very few recognized him when he entered and even got anywhere near an introduction.

All-Spanish Program to Be Feature on Coast

Hollywood—Tom White, independent producer, has leased the California, which he will open March 29 with an all-Spanish program. His seven-reeler, "La Rosa de Fuego," featuring Don Alvarado, will be the initial picture. W. L. Griffith, former assistant to Hector Turnbull, is associated with White in his production and exhibition venture. The pair is planning a series of foreign-language films for showing in various sections of the United States.

Simplex-Ansell $500,000 Ticket Merger Closed;

Chicago—Merger of the Simplex Ticket Co. and Ansell Ticket Co., both of this city, has been completed. W. L. Peabody, former president of Simplex, becomes chairman of the board of the combine, which will be known as the Ansell-Simplex Ticket Co. George Clendenning, president of Ansell, becomes president of the new organization. The old Simplex plant will be abandoned and operations conducted at the Ansell building. The merger creates a $500,000 ticket concern, serving the bulk of the large theatre circuits in this locality.

Number of Changes at Fox Midwesco Houses

Milwaukee—Several changes in theatre management have been made by the Fox Midwesco circuit. Louis Lamm, formerly operator of a theatre in Kenosha, Wis., has been named manager of the circuit's Mirth, neighborhood house. He succeeds Eddie Lurie, who has been transferred to the Garfield, another neighborhood theatre.

Julius Lamm, brother of Louis, formerly manager of the Garfield, has been transferred to the Sheboygan, Sheboygan. Here he succeeds Ed Benjii, who has been named manager of Oshkosh, Strand, at Oshkosh.

Mammy

(Warners-All Talker)

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

WELL, they're still trying to make Al make the tear glands work overtime. The formula has been used so much that it grows tiresome.

Not that "Mammy" isn't satisfactory box-office. It is, but efforts to wax enthusiastic over it simply become tough going. This time Al is a minstrel man, loving the gal but playing the love game in the wings because his buddy made the grade. There's a shooting for which Al is blamed, but you know he had nothing to do with such a dastardly deed. Then comes the arrest, Al's escape, a freight-hopping episode home to mother, the confession by the real criminal and everything is serene. All obvious stuff, overplayed for the sentimentalities.

The Jolson personality struggles along under these and other handicaps. Which gives even Al pretty heavy load to carry. Irving Berlin wrote the music, none of which lingers in the memory. Of the seven numbers Jolson sings, "Let Me Sing and I'm Happy" looks like a real hit.

Two-reel comedies and perhaps a cartoon subject will prove suitable.

Produced and distributed by Warners. Story based on "Mr. Bones," stage play by Irving Berlin. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Adaptation by L. G. Rigby. Dialogue by Gordon Rigby and Joseph Jackson. Photographed by Barney McGill. Length, 7,533 feet. Running time, 84 minutes. Release date, May 31, 1930.

Roses of Picardy

(Excellent Pictures—Silent)

Good War Film

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

WHERE silents will get over, this British-made film should click. It has a lot of fine sentiment, some good war stuff, and a story free from mawkish sentiment. The story is carried to a logical conclusion, even to the sacrifice of a sugar-coated ending. To this reviewer, that was a big point in its favor, although final-clinch fiends may squawk on that account.

A British officer, on the verge of shell shock, falls in love with a French girl. She, however, has plighted her troth to a Frenchman, and although she loves the Briton, she refuses to let that interfere with what she considers her duty. The Englishman, who had thought himself a coward, leads the defense which stops the German advance. Years later, he returns to the French town, to find the girl married to the Frenchman, who was blinded in the final German drive.

This has a good cast and is well directed, save for the fact that it could be speeded up in spots. Lillian Hall-Davis is the girl in the case, last seen in this country in "The Farmer's Wife."

Light shorts required for relief.

Produced by A. C. and R. C. Bromhead. Distributed by Excellent Pictures. Directed by Maurice Elvey. From the stories, "The Spanish Farm" and "Sixty-Four, Ninety-Four," by R. H. Mottrom. Length, 6,000 feet. Running time, 67 minutes. Release date, April 25, 1930.

Trailing Trouble

(Universal-All Talker)

A Gibson Piece; Okay

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

HARD-RIDIN' Hoot Gibson switches from the well-beaten track of shoot 'em up stuff to a pleasing mixture of Western and big-city comedy drama, highlighting a gangster escapade which gives the star wide opportunity to pack a heap of comedy and fast-action material. He succeeds admirably.

Hoot is sent to Kansas City in charge of a horse shipment. In the cowpunching gang which accompanies Gibson from the ranch is Pete Morrison, his villain rival for the affection of the ranch boss's daughter, Margaret Quimby, who is skeptical of Hoot's reliability and truthfulness. Knowing that Gibson is on the spot with Margaret, Morrison has the former framed by a tough guerilla bunch in K. C., who are told to get the dough secured in the horse sale, and also frame Gibson with a Chink girl. Several stiff tilts with the badmen, all good characters, and the comedy angles worked out by Gibson in several situations round out a well balanced programmer, chocked full of that kind of hokum which has wide popular appeal in neighborhood stands.

Hoot's support works hard and the sound recording hits par throughout the vehicle. Shots of a horse round-up on the ranch, located at a colorful spot, were pleasing.

Book a two-reel comedy and a good sound cartoon for a nicely balanced light bill.

Produced by Hoot Gibson. Distributed by Universal. Directed by Arthur Rosson. Photography by Harry Neumann. Edited by Gilmore Walker. Length, about 6,000 feet. Release date, March 23, 1930.

Overland Bound

(Raytone—All Talker)

Fair Talker

(Reviewed by Charles F. Hynes)

THE late Leo Maloney is starred in this talker, one of the first of the talking western productions. It has a rather obvious plot, but boasts a good cast and has good action, so that it shapes up as an interesting western. The picture was completed just prior to Maloney's death, but that fact shouldn't interfere with the draw or pleasing qualities of the film.

Maloney is cast as a horse trader, who picks up a derelict youth, injured by a bully. It develops that Leo is in love with the boy's sister, who, with her mother, is trying to make both ends meet on the old ranch. The son and brother has been missing for years, and when the crooks bring in an imposter, mother and daughter fall for the gag. The idea is to get their signature for sale of the land to the crooked operator, but this is forestalled through the youth and Maloney.

In the cast of the picture are: Jack Perrin, Allene Ray and Wally Wales. As a program offering it will get over nicely, pleasing the action fans. The picture is the first of a series of talking westerns to be released by Raytone. It was recorded by the Telefilm system.

Sound acts will supply variety.

Produced by Presidio Pictures. Distributed by Raytone. Directed by Leo Maloney. Story by Ford I. Beebe and Joseph Kane. Adaptation and dialogue by Ford I. Beebe. Edited by Fred K. Bain. Photographed by William Nobles. Length, 5,040 feet. Running time, 56 min. Release date, April 15, 1930.

The Climax

(Universal—All Talker)

Terrible

(Reviewed by J. P. Cunningham)

VERY unconvincing, slow-moving and amateurish.

A good cast is wasted on what might have been a good yarn, but often handled in a far-fetched manner which would indicate the line of least resistance was laid out—and religiously followed.

The story deals with the ambition of a young Italian girl (Kathryn Crawford) to achieve fame as a singer under the tutorship of a renowned Milan maestro (Jean Hersholt), and spurred on by love interest of the tutor's son (John Reinhardt) and a rival (LeRoy Mason). Before half of the first reel was over, the entire cast seemed to have been influenced by the slow-moving spirit of the vehicle. Miss Crawford sings several pieces, and while she may have a good voice, she fails to click as the "sensational find of all ages." They build her up as a marvel and when she starts to warble, you are immediately impressed with the fact that she's not that hot.

Universal claims the "idea of producing 'The Climax' as a sound picture was suggested to Carl Laemmle by Renaud Hoffman," who directed. What Laemmle intends to do about it has not been indicated.

It needs support.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Directed by Renaud Hoffman. Story based on play of same name by Edward Locke. Scenario and adaptation by Julian Josephson. Dialogue by Clarence Thompson and Lesley Mason. Edited by Bernard Burton. Photographed by Jerry Ashe. Length, 5,846 feet. Running time, 64 min.. Release date, Jan. 26, 1930.

One Romantic Night

(United Artists—All Talker)

Satisfactory; Doesn't Impress

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

HERE is an instance of a splendid play caught in te meshes of the Hollywood story machinery and mangled in the process.

"The Swan" made a fine stage play. The picture is merely satisfying and for that blame the script and treatment. Here Lillian Gish, as Princess Alexandra, admits her love for Conrad Nagel, the tutor. You know that marriage is impossible and you don't expect it. Nevertheless the sympathy swings so completely toward Nagel that it is inevitable for the average audience to start rooting for him and not La Rocque, who plays Prince Albert and finally wins the girl. Rod is made out to be pretty much of a bounder, all of which makes Nagel's case the stronger.

In brief, the story thread, which is slight, revolves around efforts to marry off the princess to Albert, heir apparent to the throne, and how the tutor almost wrecks the plan.

The mood is generally charming and stately. Miss Gish's voice is pleasant and her performance satisfactory—merely that. The camera is not very kind to her except in a few sequences. Nagel is very good; La Rocque theatrical as usual; Marie Dressler, refreshing, and O. P. Heggle, as Father Benedict, splendid.

Two-reel comedies will go well with this.

Produced and distributed by United Artists. From "The Swan," play by Ferenc Molnar. Directed by Paul Stein. Scenarios by Melville Baker. Edited by James Smith. Photographed by Karl Struss. Length, 6.300 feet. Running time, 70 min. Release date, May 3.

Alexandra	Lillian Gish
Price Albert	Rod La Rocque
Dr. Nicholas Haller	Conrad Nagel
Princess Beatrice	Marie Dressler

What a Man

(Sono Art—World Wide—All Talker)

Box Office Comedy-Drama

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

AT last Reginald Denny is supplied with a story. His first for Sono Art-World Wide makes extremely pleasant, although slightly nonsensical, entertainment.

The story is all fluff and no substance, but the treatment and the successful play for comedy values get it by with a very comfortable margin. The yarn deals with the penchant of a newly-made millionaire woman for tramps. Denny poses as one, wins his way into the affections of the family and lands the girl.

Denny's pleasant English accent is delightful. There isn't much call for histrionics, but the vehicle does give him a chance to display his flair for comedy. Miriam Seegar, as the girl, is just another ingenue, but Charles Coleman, as the butler, is fine, and Harvey Clark, as the head of the family, very good. His drunk scenes are particularly well handled. Anita Louise, a newcomer, ranks among the best of child players.

Nice all-comedy program suggests itself here by use of properly selected two-reelers.

Produced and distributed by Sono Art-World Wide. From "The Dark Chapter," by E. J. Rath. Directed by George J. Crone. Adaptation by Harvey Gates. Dialogue by A. A. Kline. Edited by Harry Chandlee. Photographed by Arthur Todd. Length, 7,000 feet. Running time, 78 mins. Release date, April 1.

Parting of the Trails

(State Rights—Synchronized)

Same Old Stuff

(Reviewed by Robert Hage)

THE chap who added the synchronization to this ordinary Western either had a sense of humor or else. He has achieved a distinctly unique feat in adding music to this tale of the Great Open Spaces, for one must admit that a gun battle to the strains of chamber music is hardly apropos. The interminable rides over the mesa were appropriately cued, although one wonders where he was able to unearth a library containing such a wealth of staccato stuff, but looking at a Western and listening to ballades at the same time taxes one's risibilities.

A Broadway audience laughed in spots, especially during an extraordinarily acrobatic fist fight, but they sat through it manfully—for there was another feature on the bill. The picture, however, can boast of a most unusual feature—the sheriff does not wear a star.

Bob Custer is starred, but the rest of the cast has as much to do as he, and it is all of a pattern.

Good only for the kids and theatres where audiences like Westerns.

Back it up with the best comedies you can get.

Presented by Syndicate Pictures. Distributed by Bell Pictures, Inc., sole distributors. Directed by J. P. McGowan. Story by Sally Winters. Photography by Hap Depew. Length, 4,700 feet. Running time, 52 minutes. Release date, March 1, 1930.

Crazy That Way

(Fox—All Talker)

Way, Way Under Par

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

YOU simply can't get that way about "Crazy That Way." The cast is capable enough—away ahead of the silly and ineffectual business the players are made to go through—and production values are competent, but after that, the typewriter stops in its tracks.

Story material sufficient for a two-reel comedy and as aimless as most of that breed is spread out over slightly more than one hour's running time. The result is what you would naturally expect. It seems Joan Bennett is one of the species known as the baby vamp. The whole country club falls for her. Particularly Regis Toomey and Jason Robards. Then ensue some tiresome, unfunny situations which are notorious for their lack of both rhyme and reason until the final footage finds the girl crazy about Kenneth MacKenna, young engineer presumably armor-plated in this love racket. No normal home establishment could possibly stand for the unheard of jamboree that goes on in the film.

Hamilton MacFadden, who directed "Harmony at Home," skidded badly on this one.

Two-reel comedies—but real ones—might save the day. Doubtful.

Produced and distributed by Fox Film. Story based on stageplay "In Love with Love." Directed by Hamilton MacFadden. Continuity and dialogue by Marion Orth and MacFadden. Edited by Ralph Dietrich. Photographed by Joe Valentine. Length, 5,800 feet Running time, 64 mins. Release date, March 30, 1930.

Double Cross Roads

(Fox—All Talker)

Meller with a Kick

(Reviewed by Red Kann)

THIS latest affair from Fox is an underworld melodrama with several surprise twists that carry a kick.

The story concerns a released convict who determines to go straight. To get away from the gang he locates in the country where he meets Lila Lee. They fall in love. The mob attempts to persuade the boy to pull one more job, involving robbery of a wealthy woman in the next town, but the boy stalls, discovers the girl is part of the mob and, disillusioned, decides to go through with it. The girl likewise promises to stick provided the leader lets the boy go. He does, but double-crosses the girl. In the meantime, another gang invades the high-hat party and, at the point of a gun, forces the boy to turn over the jewels. He does, but hands over the pastes while the original necklace remains in the safe. The two gangs shoot it out from speeding automobiles, thus clearing the way for the clinch. Bob Armstrong as the boy is good. Miss Lee, satisfying as usual. Ned Sparks is immense as the gangster

Two-reel comedies will make a suitable accompaniment.

Produced and distributed by Fox. From "Yonder Grows the Daisies" by Walter Lipman. Directed by Alfred Warker. Adaptation by George Brooks. Dialogue by Howard Estabrook. Edited by Jack Dennis. The Last Dance

(Audible—All Talker)

Above Average

(Reviewed by Robert Hage)

HERE's our old friend, the Cinderella theme, again and it travels the routine path, but it has the saving grace of a number of genuinely-earned laughs. The long arm of coincidence motivates the plot to an extreme degree, but the picture maintains interest owing to its tempo.

Vera Reynolds with her well-modulated voice pleases both the eye and the ear, and she has a fat role to which she does justice. Jason Robards, co-featured with her, displays awkward pauses in his acting, tending to halt the illusion, but can be classified as adequate. The support is capable.

The story recites the tale of a taxi dancer who, longing for a "refined" husband, concocts a romance with a Park Avenue millionaire and purchases an engagement ring on the installment plan to back up her boast. The author brings them together through a series of impossible coincidences, and after the usual misunderstandings and heartbreaks the professional dancer gets her man.

Will justify a certain amount of boosting and please the average audience.

Build up your show with musical featurettes.

Produced and distributed by Audible Pictures, Inc. Directed by Scott Pembroke. Story by Jack Townley. Dialogue and scenario by Jack Townley. Photographed by M. A. Anderson. Length, 5.825 feet. Running time, 69 minutes. Release date, March 8, 1930.

Wide Open

(Warner Bros.—All Talker)

Stereotyped Farce

(Reviewed by Robert Hage)

ALL plausibility was heaved overboard in making "Wide Open," which is not unusual in farce comedies, but extraneous sequences suggest that more expert editing might have increased the appeal of the picture. The director has relied chiefly on the dialogue to carry the vehicle, but it clicked a scant score of laughs at its opening in New York.

Patsy Ruth Miller, slimmer and prettier than we have seen her before, runs off with the honors, playing her role with an obvious zest worthy of a better vehicle. Edward Everett Horton has little to do other than register consternation, but gives a bang-up performance when, at the close, he drops his inferiority complex and becomes the man of iron.

T. Roy Barnes gives a typical and satisfactory performance, while Louise Fazenda repeats her intoxication specialty, singing "Nobody Cares If I'm Blue" in a fair voice.

Horton is the misunderstood minor employee of a phonograph concern whose superior sneers at his efficiency suggestions, but who gets to the top rung.

Balance with good musical shorts and novelties.

Produced and released by Warners. From the novel, "The Narrow Street," by Edward Bateman Morris. Directed by Archie L. Mayo. Adapted by James A. Starr and Arthur Caesar. Length, 6,341 feet. Running time, 71 minutes. Release date, Feb. 1, 1930.

"Polished Ivory"

(Hamilton-Educ'l—2 Reels)

Gets Tiresome

PRETTY much in the old mold of comedy-making, this Lloyd Hamilton two-reeler never gets anywhere. The gags squeak with age. The one that carries a laugh is given too much footage and, as a result, its effect on the funny-bone is considerably lost. This is the sequence where Hamilton and Tom Kennedy, expressing the piano around which the comedy is built, meet with undecided traffic. They start across on the "go" signal, get half way over when the "stop" sign flashes. So it goes on and on until finally they wreck surrounding cars and get their own load smashed by a railroad train —old wheeze and no longer effective. Directed by Alf Goulding. Time, 18 minutes.

Needs loads of support both in shorts and feature values.

"Trouble for Two"

(Tuxedo-Educ'l—2 Reels)

Just Another Comedy

THE wife misunderstands the husband. His friends advises husband to step out in order to prove who is the boss. They all meet, but hubby presumably gets away with it by applying dark glasses and a fake moustache conveniently grabbed from one of the musicians. So it goes to the bitter end. The gags are old, and the resultant comedy asthmatic. Directed by Stephen Roberts. Running time, 17 minutes.

If you have to play it, build and build and build the surrounding bill.

"College Hounds"

(M-G-M—2 Reels)

Real Novelty; Heavy B. O.

ANOTHER of the dog comedies on the M-G-M list and a darb. Miles off the beaten track, this two reeler is as much box office as it is different. The players are all dogs, in this case dressed as collegiates. The comedy was made silent with human voice dialogue dubbed in. The yarn is one of those one-minute-to-go football episodes with the dog hero crashing through and saving the day for Airedale. The animals are vastly clever. You can promise much for this without stretching the truth. Directed by Zion Myers and Jules White. Running time, 17 minutes.

Strong short attraction. Good with any type of feature and will probably prove salvation of many.

"A Tough Winter"

(Our Gang—M-G-M—2 Reels)

A Swell Comedy

ANOTHER notch in the "Our Gang" gun. The youngsters in this hold a taffy festival with cute Weezer as runner between the radio and Mary Ann Jackson. Weezer gets his recipe dope over the air and Mary Ann carries the instructions out. What follows might well be imagined, particularly when the gang begins pulling the taffy. Stepin Fetchit steps into the picture and offers to help straighten cut the mess. He invades the cellar to get the water supply working and crosses one pipe with another. The radio becomes the refrigerator and the music emanates from the ice-box. Central asks for her numbers via the vacuum and the telephone becomes the cleaner. Clever, diverting and really entertaining. Directed by Robert McGowan. Produced by Hal Roach. Running time, 19 minutes.

Go to it and plug it. Will help any feature.

The Gyp

Scenario Writer: " . . . and then the heroine becomes speechless with fright."

Producer: "Hey! This is a talkie and I'm not paying stars good money to be speechless."

"Whispering Whoopee"

(Charley Chase—M-G-M—2 Reels)

THREE chorines are enlisted by Charley Chase to entertain the three buyers of his property. The men prove to be "blue noses," so Charley has to do some fast thinking. The girls almost wreck the party until the cocktails begin to flow. Then everything turns out jake. The laughs are plenty, one of the funniest of the gags being the seltzer water party. Not especially new, but the guffaws are there. Directed by James Horne and produced by Hal Roach. Running time, 20 minutes.

Fast-Moving two reeler. O. K. to liven up heavy feature.

"Audio Review—No. 13"

(Pathe-Talker—1 Reel)

Okay!

THE latter half of this reel is a pip. Pathe's cameraman in Paris made the rounds of Parisian night life and brought back some fast-action stuff. A Pathechrome colored bathing beauty gag tops off the subject. Running time, 10 minutes.

Nice with a dramatic feature.

"All Teed Up"

(Charley Chase-M-G-M—2 Reels)

THERE have been golf comedies before and undoubtedly there will be many more. But "All Teed" up takes the dub—the fellow who never played before—and demonstrates how through impossible but amusing shots he wins the game. The treatment is clever and the laughs very well timed. In highlights, the long sequences where a golf ball knocks Chase out as he prepares to move a truck obstructing his ball and results in his wrecking the course, stands out. Go for it. It's good. Directed by Edward Kennedy and produced by Hal Roach. Running time, 21 minutes.

Make promises for this. Will aid any program.

"Springtime at the Zoo"

(Harold Auten—Silent—1 Reel)

Very Interesting

A VISIT to a British zoo. Unusually interesting. It shows what changes spring brings, so far as the animals and birds are concerned. How they shed their winter coats and their cavortings are displayed and there is a wide range of subject matter. Well photographed and worth while. Running time, 11 minutes.

Novel and easy to spot in with almost any type of feature.

"Fifty Million Husbands"

(Charley Chase-M-G-M—2 Reels)

Slapstick, But There

LEANS toward the rough house comedy. Chase starts his evening at home quietly enough, but the hectic developments that follow are precipitated by the former occupant of his apartment who returns for one last look at the love nest which he and his wife occupied before their parting. Then the wife comes along and together they begin switching the furniture back to the position it occupied when they lived there. By this time, Charley's wife enters, misunderstands and joins the violent mix-up which evenually reaches a happy solution. Fast-moving and appreciatively treated from the comedy slant. Produced by Hal Roach. Running time, 21 minutes.

A good comedy for any bill. Deserves a play.

"Chinese Blues"

(Universal—Talker—2 Reels)

Average

SETS the same standard established by its predecessors in the "Sporting Youth" group. The gang, headed by Ann Christy, offers a fair amount of entertainment with their attempt to save "Judy's" Chink cook from deportation because he is unable to show entry papers to the federal authorities. This is the excuse to bring the bunch to the haunts of a gang of alien smugglers in the "heart" of Chinatown, where they upset things to secure the stolen passport. In no spot does the reel hit above par. Ray Taylor directed. Running time, 20 minutes.

Run with an all-talker feature, dramatic type, but it must be good.

"Tramping Tramps"

(Universal—Sound—1 Reel)

"Oswald" Clicks Again

STACKS up with any current sound cartoon. And that's saying plenty, because exhibs never had a wider selection of ace-high cartoon material than the group released in recent months. The "Oswald" pen-and-inkers twist their characters in a manner which is most amusing. Book it! Running time, 7 minutes.

O. K.—and how, with any feature.

"Crooked Trails"

(Universal—Silent—2 Reels)

Grr-r-r-r

WHEN you have seen one of the Ted Carson RNMP stories, you have seen them all. This one runs true to form, with the old weak-kneed plot and the same settings. The bad-gun-Bills attack the girl and her father, steal the gold and fight the Mounties. It will get by where there's a market for this type of stuff.

Feature must offer strong support.

"Mush Again"

(Universal—Talker—2 Reels)

Yes, Mush Again

"SUNNY JIM's" current opus is an exact copy of a recent subject in which he appeared. And it's pretty flat at that. His dad and mother are enjoying a gab-fest over the slated visit of some neighbors. "Sunny Jim" hears the line and spills the beans when the guests arrive. Running time, 20 minutes.

Brace this up with a strong feature. Do not use a comedy.

Lots of Lunnon Accents

Hollywood—Beatrice Lillie began work on her London musical romance, "Are You There?" just 24 hours after her arrival. Hamilton MacFadden, director of the picture, is wondering what he will do amidst the avalanche of English accents showered upon him by Miss Lillie, Jillian Sand, John Garrick and George Grossmith.

"Party Girl" Is Protected by a Chicago Writ

A veritable flood of business is anticipated for the RKO Woods during the next two weeks as a result of attempts on the part of the Chicago board of censors to prevent the showing of "Party Girl" there. The producers obtained a temporary injunction in the Superior Court of Cook County, restraining the censor board from interfering with the picture's run.

The injunction can be set aside only in event the testimony of individual patrons to the effect that decency is outraged is upheld by the court.

Censors' action and the issuing of the injunction figured prominently in the opening advertising of the theatre.

Midnight Curfew Adopted by Urbana City Fathers

At the instigation of club women, the city council at Urbana has passed an ordinance prohibiting local theatres from remaining open after midnight. The ordinance is a death blow to midnight shows that have been popular with students of the University of Illinois, situated here. Club women charged indiscreet behavior on the part of large numbers of patrons at the late shows.

Exchange Workman Killed

Edward Bell, a workman, fell from a window ledge on the sixth floor of the new Warner exchange building under construction at 13th and Wabash the other day and was killed. The body struck an automobile belonging to James O. Kent, of Paramount, which was parked in alley at the rear of the building.

"Unborn Child" Gets Record

"Her Unborn Child" is reported to have established a new house record in its first week at the Monroe (Fox), 982-seat Loop house. Take for the first seven days was slightly over $12,000, which is sensational for this house.

The Speed Boys

Norman Alley of Fox Movietone News and Charlie Ford of the Chicago Daily News-Universal Newsreel settled an argument of long standing when Alley stepped out at 101 miles an hour while Charlie was moping along at a 91-mile-an-hour gait. The speed boys are typical of the newsreels they represent.

Tough Summer Forecast For Chicago Trade

Plenty of pessimistic talk here about summer business. Exchanges base dire predictions on the comparative inactivity at the studios and the recent slashes and retrenchments in the business offices. Exhibitors point to current depressions and say that summer will be worse. Many are planning on operating only Saturdays and Sundays during the hot months, folding on week days.

To Members of the Round Table Club

All the secrets of the business are in MOTION PICTURE NEWS so we're putting this one with the rest, instead of shooting you a "Strictly Personal and Private" Bulletin.

Commencing with the issue of April 12 MOTION PICTURE NEWS starts something new — a review of pictures for exploitation angles to help you sell them.

The staff will continue to review everything made, panning or praising box-office values. Reviews in the Round Table Club section will be limited strictly to the exploitation and merchandising ideas and stunts suggested by each picture as we see it and study it.

Some of our stuff may be great — some may be frousy with three "z's", but we're going to shoot it along, on good pictures and bad, because they've all got to be sold to the public, and that's what gives you problems and headaches.

You'll have to check the regular reviews for criticisms. Then you can take our reviews on exploitation possibilities and run your own risks from that point on.

This idea isn't ours. It has been suggested, demanded and urged by scores of our members.

CONDUCTED BY AN EXHIBITOR FOR EXHIBITORS

"Life's Too Short"

PERHAPS I'm in a rather peculiar mood this morning, tho' when anybody hears about the death of several people whom they knew well, it is apt to put them into most any kind of a mood.

But that's not what I started out to say in this week's ramblings.

When you stop to consider the short span of life, even for those who are fortunate enough to live the usual allotment, then what's the use of getting yourself all "het up" over every little thing that happens to block the "sunshine" for a little while?

If the show don't run off just the way it should, correct it with a smile. A lot of shouting won't do a darn bit of good, but it may hurt your blood pressure.

If the boss (God love his soul) should happen in with a well-known grouch, why, just smile and try to make him feel like he's really human (notwithstanding any facts to the contrary).

If your billposter happens (?) to forget to cover half of your last week's paper, don't start frothing at the mouth like a mad dog. Just let him know, with your usual sunny smile, that you have him checked, and (still with a sunny smile) you may HAVE to get yourself another billposter if he don't watch his step.

And when the pictures get out of "sync," or you happen on two successive white screens, or perhaps even a lost arc or two, don't, please don't, work yourself up into a tremendous rage and drop a dozen years of your "short span of life" by racing up the stairs to the booth, three steps at a time, and get yourself all excited by arguing with the projectionists, operators, or whatever else you feel like calling them.

Just "go slow, take it easy and don't rush" (with apologies to A. H. S.), stroll quietly into the booth and politely ask the cause of the particular trouble you happen to have.

After "all" the explanations are over, you can then decide, still quietly, whether the answer to the billposter will apply to the booth, or perhaps your better judgment may suggest some other timely remark.

Once more quoting: "Life is a very funny thing." So why should we burn ourselves up inwardly, or outwardly, over everyday occurrences?

Did you ever happen to meet up with a real dyed-in-the-wool executive? Well, if you ever do, you will find that he "gets that way" because he don't fly off the handle every time something goes a little wrong.

After all, what difference will it make a hundred years from now?

"Chick."

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Every Angle Was Used by Laurence In Beauty Contest

As the second installment of H. L. Laurence's activities at the Capitol Theatre in Paris, Tenn., which, as you will remember from a recent story, concerned the way Laurence tied up with the local newspaper in the selection of a girl to represent Miss Tennessee in the Miami Beauty Pageant to be held this spring, we are going to tell you how he displayed a keen sense of showmanship in the nomination of the entries, and selected a young lady to represent the State with everybody being satisfied.

It is no dark secret that many "unwelcome" contestants have often walked off with first prizes in many a contest due to the push of their "hard boiled" boy friends, and it was in order to eliminate a situation of this sort which might occur in his contest that Laurence enlisted the aid of the local merchants, who agreed to nominate a girl from among one of their customers, who would represent the tradesman's business. Hence, Miss Tennessee, before winning the title, represented Crawford-Gatlin, Inc., operators of chain stores throughout Tennessee.

The judges of the contest represented some of the leading citizens of Paris and included a Minister, Supt. of the Public Schools, City Recorder, Lawyer and Doctor, in addition to prominent business men. Since any of these "public" contests are very delicate propositions to handle, Laurence certainly made a wise move by having the merchants sponsor the contestants and having as judges the town's most representative men, in order that a girl of questionable character might not slip in. (Boy, that's showmanship.)

The charming young lady whose picture we are happy to reproduce is Miss Ethel McFadden, winner of the contest and holder of the title "Miss Tennessee," who will compete this spring for the title of "America's Sweetheart," and we join with Laurence in wishing her all the luck in the world.

We want Laurence to know that we think he put his contest over in fine style and we believe that the good-will he secured, in addition to helping the box office during the contest, will also stand him in good stead and pave the way for bigger and better receipts. Thanks, Laurence, for the interest you have shown by keeping us informed of the result of your work and don't forget we're always glad to hear from you.

'Chuck' Copperman Put Alibi Stunt Over Successfully

Anybody desiring information on how to work up interest in newspaper contests should apply to Charles B. (Chuck) Copperman, hustling manager of the Robins Theatre in Warren, Ohio, because he certainly promoted his last contest in fine style.

A tie-up with the local newspaper enabled him to inaugurate an "alibi" contest in conjunction with the feature showing of "Alibi" at his house. For the best alibis sent to the local paper a prize of free tickets for the month of March was awarded for the three best submitted. The contest ran for a week prior to opening and many answers were received. The newspaper devoted a column of space to the contest daily and in that manner Chuck derived a wealth of publicity absolutely free.

A follow-up on the newspaper publicity was obtained when he invited the city officials and representatives of the newspaper to witness a special preview showing of the picture.

Tie-ing up things seems to be characteristic of him, for we know that at present he is working on a campaign for "The Sky Hawk," and has already promoted a silver loving cup for first prize, in addition to a suit of clothes and ten dollars in gold. He has secured the co-operation of the local schools and newspaper and we know that when we have the contest in its entirety it is going to prove very interesting reading for the Club.

Another thing that interests us a good deal is Chuck's newspaper layouts and some time in the near future we are going to show you a couple of his ads and let you see for yourselves how he is selling his attractions at the Robins.

GARRY VOORMAN says:

"While I have never written to you before, still I consider myself a good friend of yours because I have 'poured over' and 'pirated' your ideas as long as I can remember. Thank you very much for your ideas, I would feel as if I were on a desert island if I did not have them to look forward to every week."

Newspaper Ads Are Still A Feature Of Bair's Work

E. E. Bair, manager of the State Theatre in East Liverpool, Ohio, is still continuing his fine newspaper ads, and as we have remarked before whenever he lays out an ad it certainly clicks 100% with the readers of the paper and ourselves.

Bair has again arranged some very forceful ads for the selling of his recent pictures and we'd like to tell you about a few bits of the copy he used in putting the shows across by using teasers and laugh gags. On "Sunny Side Up" he ran boxes in the local paper reading: "This space reserved for "Sunny Side Up," which attracted a great deal of comment and created considerable interest in the picture, with the readers of the paper looking forward to the first ads on the attraction.

Bair pounced upon a comment, offered by one of the patrons, on the picture and turned it into a neat little testimonial by setting it in an ad which read: "Using the words of one who viewed it—'I could sit on Chestnut burrs and see 'Sunny Side Up' Twice." This little stunt evoked a lot of laughs when it was read and was instrumental in keeping the picture fresh in the minds of the readers.

Some nice layouts have again been made up for the newspapers in connection with the other big production Bair plays at his house and we want to say that he sure comes right up to tap with them, as they carry some fine novelty, especially his "Show of Shows" and "Cock Eyed World" layouts.

Thanks Bair for keeping us in touch with your work there so that we can pass on your ads to the rest of the boys.

Extra! Nine Scotchmen Profited By Free License Gag

Victor B. Lowrey got plenty of co-operation from a Radio dealer to plug Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade" playing at the Majestic Theatre, Wichita Falls, Tex.

The dealer donated a radio to be given to the patron holding the lucky number. To get one of these numbered coupons, it was necessary to attend one of the showings of "The Love Parade."

In addition to donating a radio, the dealer also gave five credits of $40.00 each to the next five lucky-number holders. These credits were to apply on any Philco bought from this dealer.

The dealer also had a half-page co-operative ad in which the theatre was allowed to announce "The Love Parade," play dates, name of theatre and forceful sales copy.

A tie-up with the newspaper resulted in stories that passes would be offered to all couples announcing their engagement during the week prior to showing of picture. And that Chevalier would pay for all marriage licenses issued on the opening day of picture.

Nice work, Mr. Lowrey, and we're glad to hear from you again, as you were located in a different theatre and town the last time we ran a story about you. Suppose you make it a point to keep us posted on what is doing out there in Wichita Falls, and in that way we can keep in constant communication with you.

His Telegram Gag Proved A Winner For Oscar M. Linn

We've had so many fine ideas from Oscar M. Linn in the past that we kind of regret seeing him being transferred to a new house because we know that until he sizes up the new proposition he will be very busy, but then when a showman is busy you can bet that something "hot" is going to break.

Oscar has been managing the Capitol and Columbia Theatres in Bloomsburgh, Pa., for the Comerford Theatres and now takes over the reins of that circuit's houses in Milton, Pa. Prior to leaving on his new assignment, though, he successfully engineered "Anniversary Week," celebrating the second birthday of the Capitol Theatre.

To inject a little novelty into the campaign, he wrote to several different movie stars, asking their re-actions on their pictures which he was playing during the week. Polly Moran and Marie Dressler answered him by telegram, congratulating him on the occasion of the theatre's second birthday and expressing the hope that the audience would enjoy their picture, "Chasing Rainbows," which was included in the anniversary program.

Oscar reprinted a large number of duplicates of the wire on blanks furnished by the local telegraph company and the entire bunch were personally distributed about town by one of the company's messenger boys. The effectiveness of the stunt can easily be seen, due to a messenger boy being employed for more or less of a personal contact angle.

The program made up by him for the anniversary was a corker. It was printed in black type on good stock coated paper. The front cover carried the announcement and a cut of the interior of the theatre. The rest of the pages, in addition to carrying a personal message from Oscar, were devoted to announcements of the attractions. With work such as this being turned in by him, it is no doubt unnecessary to say that the Anniversary Week was a complete sell-out, since Oscar has a habit of making everything count.

Without going into the details of how the houses he is now handling were run before, we are sure that no matter how many records they have hung up for good business, or anything else, under his able direction new records are going to be made. So here's wishing you luck, Oscar, and we want to hear some mighty fine accounts of your work.

"The Real Fraternal Spirit??"

Columbia Offers $750 in Cash Prizes

to promote BETTER Showmanship in April

This contest for showmen is but one of the points in the Columbia Pictures Tenth Anniversary Celebration.

It is wide open to every theatre man, beginning Tuesday, April 1st. Get right in on it for a win.

. . . Here's How . . .

Columbia has issued an attractive twelve page book called "Here's How to Prosper with Columbia in April." In it is contained every detail of the many coordinating campaigns now under way to bring more patrons to your theatre when you are playing Columbia pictures in April.

In it, too, are a great number of brief notes on how you can best cooperate and profit with these campaigns. Get this book immediately . . . it is the showmanship manual for the Columbia Tenth Anniversary. Copies have been sent to you by mail, but if they do not reach you within a week, write to the company, 729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y.

Meanwhile get out all the press books on the Columbia Pictures that are coming your way in April, and dig into the publicity and exploitation columns therein. There is plenty there to help you win the whole $750, or any part that you set out to win.

Plan to play as many Columbia pictures as you can possibly get in. Play all the shorts, they're easy to publicise too. Use heralds by the thousands. Use the attractive lobby hangers, and use plenty of poster papers, in cut-outs, shadow boxes or in any of the hundred and one other ways that such accessories can best be used. Start right now, and boost Columbia. It will pay you to play Columbia Pictures in April.

If you missed the rules of the contest in last week's issue of the Motion Picture News, write to them or direct to Columbia Pictures immediately for a duplicate set. Waste no time.

Page Rockefeller T. C. Pierce Secures Gas Sta. Monopoly

It looks to us as though T. C. Pierce, manager of the Peerless Theatre in Kewanee, Ill., is trying to corner the oil market. And if that is really his object he certainly started out well, since he tied-up twenty-five oil stations to exploit "Welcome Danger."

Each one of the 25 stations exhibited cards in conspicuous places; the cards containing copy, "You WELCOME DANGER if you keep your motor running while your gas tank is being filled and you'll have the time of your life when you see and hear Harold Lloyd in WELCOME DANGER at the Peerless Thurs-Fri-Sat."

He also sold a number of merchants the idea of a co-operative ad with each merchant's ad on the co-op page plugging the title of the picture in one way or another. To top the page off, the theatre's ad in the upper center with plenty of sales copy made it one of the best used in a long time and it appeared in the paper the day before opening of picture.

An excellent window tie-up was secured with Public Service in which they exhibited a Frigidaire. On top of the Frigidaire was a life-size cutout of Harold Lloyd and on each side was a large hand-painted card; one reading, "You WELCOME DANGER if your food is not properly refrigerated," and the other reading, "See and Hear Harold Lloyd in his first all-talking comedy WELCOME DANGER at the Peerless Theatre."

Pierce's campaign went over with smashing success and his work thereby was more than rewarded. We'd like to hear from you again Pierce, and by the way, why not send us in a photo of yourself so that we can give you an introduction on the CLUB pages.

Cent Serial Gag Brought Many Kids To Maxey's Matinee

"Killing two birds with one stone" might easily apply to the way F. S. Maxey, manager of the Arcadia Theatre in Maud, Oklahoma, made the town conscious of the new serial he was starting, and also got in loads of good will.

Maxey printed a number of tickets reading, "This ticket and One Cent will admit one school child to see "Tarzan, the Tiger." The kids were literally fighting to get the tickets, and besides being handed to almost every child in town they were also distributed to the various schools in the surrounding territory. And when 1,600 or so kids showed up he was sure the experiment was successful. A clever move in showmanship was the stunt Maxey used when he invited all ladies to attend the matinee free and in that manner they could voice their approval of the picture for kiddie consumption. If they liked the serial, as many of them did, they returned the next week.

A tiger drawing contest was promoted in the local schools and for the best drawing of the jungle beast a free ticket to witness the entire serial was given to the winner. The contest was very successful with nearly every child who could hold a pencil competing, and, with the incentive to work before them, they possibly surprised their drawing teachers by the renewed vigor, and Maxey came in for the thanks of the teachers.

It's a pleasure to see one of our new members display such an active interest by sending in a contribution so quickly and we would like to hear more of what Maxey is doing out there in Oklahoma. So listen, Maxey, when you send in your next letter, give us a little dope on your career to date in show business and if you've a photo of yourself shoot that in also.

GROWING MIGHTY FAST!!

We hit a new "high" in last week's issue when the Club pages ran to twenty-three. Not bad for a "baby" less than two years old.

Maybe those dyed-in-the-wool pessimists will finally admit the Club is really all that our boosters claim it to be.

And who put the Club and the section where it is today?

Me?

Hell No!

The credit goes to you members who keep us supplied with the material to make these pages so doggoned interesting that when a subscriber misses a copy he lets out a rave like this: (*) "Some one copped my M. P. N. twice in succession and I had to send to N. Y. for back editions." Or one like this: "My regular issue of the News has not arrived . . . business went rotten last week and started off worse this week . . . and I blame it on the failure of the News to arrive so that I could have checked up on the attractions booked for this house . . . and would have known they were 'weak sisters'."

Keep it up, boys, because as "Mammy" Jolson says: "You ain't seen nothin' yet" and we don't mean maybe. We've dozens of novel gags coming along that will constantly key up more interest than ever in our own Club pages.

Wally Allen Had A Classy Herald On "Anna Christie"

Whenever that gentleman who handles the exploitation for the Publix houses in the west coast of Florida sets out to put a picture across we can be pretty certain of grabbing a new angle or two which we can present to our fellow Club members. And again the gentleman in question hasn't failed us. If you haven't guessed his name by now we'll tell you. It's Wally Allen, "demon" exploiteer, operating around Tampa, Jacksonville, etc.

To give you an idea of the "smart" angle Wally has injected into his heralds, we are reproducing a sample of the knockout he made up on Greta Garbo's new picture, "Anna Christie," which was colored in a brown tinted tone, with even the copy being in brown ink. The herald measured 3 by 6 inches while the gravure picture of Garbo measured two and one-half by three inches, and was also tinted in brown. Since this is Garbo's first talking picture it might be necessary that we stress the importance of using the word "Talks," and in Wally's herald we notice that he gives it a prominent spot.

GRETA GARBO Talks in
"Anna Christie"
VICTORY THEATRE

We believe that this herald, by virtue of its class alone, was good enough to sell them, as it gets away from the idea of being "just another herald." Should any of the Club members decide to make up something of this sort, the miniatures of Garbo can probably be secured from the nearest Metro exchange. The miniatures were not imprinted on the card but pasted on by the use of a touch of paste at the top of the picture, which gave it the appearance of a high class photograph setting.

Besides this little, but big, stunt Wally did some noteworthy work on the "Entertainment Special" gag which Publix is now using. The "Entertainment Special" is a high powered automobile, made up to look like a locomotive, and is driven around the country stopping at various houses to stimulate interest in the "institutional" angle of the organization.

Wally stepped out and lined up a couple of Tampa dealers, and with their co-operation promoted a full page ad in one of the local newspapers which, in addition to lugging five theatres and the dealers, served as a greeting to the "Special," and also carried a notice inviting the public to inspect the "train."

So now, with the foregoing items off our chests, we can heave a sigh of relief, for we know that our pal Wally is working hard down there in Florida. But we'll no sooner get settled comfortably than we'll be recording more of his "up and at 'em work." Fact is, we've got a hunch Wally sits up nights doping out these stunts just to get us to go down Florida way and look at them, but he needn't worry, when we get to Florida it will be for another purpose, mainly—to find out what Wally does in his spare time.

LOST AND FOUND!!!

Hundreds of readers write to ask us for information about friends in the show business whom they are anxious to locate or correspond with. So we have decided to incorporate this angle into the Club pages as a regular feature.

A Unique Display In Lobby Helped McKoy Sell Show

James H. McKoy used an unusually unique lobby effect to help sell "The Bishop Murder Case," playing at the Olympia Theatre, Miami, Fla.

Extending the entire length of the lobby on both sides was a sheeting of beaverboard. This beaverboard was painted in checker-board fashion of black and white squares to give the lobby a distinct change of the usual run of lobby displays.

Hanging at different places on the checker-board were numerous cut-outs on which were lettered sales copy about the picture such as cast, author, play dates, title and various catchlines pertaining to the mystery of the picture.

The beaverboard was so constructed that it can easily be used again for some other purpose.

The decidedly different appearance of the lobby caused much comment among the patrons and undoubtedly proved a real attention-getter in helping to sell the picture.

Good for McKoy. It proves once more beyond a "shadow of a doubt" that he is ever on the alert to put over a new angle that will attract attention to the Olympia Theatre. We wish you wouldn't keep quiet so long Mac, as we rather miss your stunts when they are not being received regularly. You might also remember us to our many friends down Florida way.

John E. Cort Is Very Proud of His Theatre's Policy

"Bring 'em all on," shouts John E. Cort, manager of the Fox-Boulevard Theatre in Jackson Heights, L. I., "my house can hold anything." And it's for this reason we want to tell you a little about Cort and his house.

The Boulevard Theatre, as nearly every Long Island resident knows, is one of the city's most sumptuous playhouses and features Broadway legitimate attractions, sound and talking pictures, and in addition vaudeville. So you see when business doesn't look so hot for one attraction all Cort has to do is substitute another.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

His Anniversary Program Was Also A Pledge of Service

An anniversary program that would do credit to a Broadway house was turned out by Manager Paul O. Klingler of the Rialto Theatre in Lewiston, Pa., on the occasion of the house's seventh birthday.

Klingler's program was eight pages in size and carried some very interesting material. The make-up was all in black and white, with the first page carrying the announcement of the anniversary. On the second page Klingler carried a couple of well written stories on service and on the talking picture. His third page carried the program for the first half of the week, and it is interesting to note that he is featuring his organist on the same bill with a big production.

A personal angle, designed to sell his patrons on the house service he had installed was adapted by Klingler with the attachees of the Rialto pledging their full co-operation and services to the patrons for the coming year, and announcing that they would adhere to the standards set by showman throughout the world that "THE PATRON IS ALWAYS RIGHT."

In addition to carrying the program for the rest of anniversary week, Klingler also got in a few plugs for his coming attractions, and used mats to sell them with. The coming attractions were carried on the last pages of the program together with an announcement relating to the policy of the house.

All in all Klingler has made an excellent job of his anniversary program and though we feel sure that he will carry out all the up-to-date plans he has in store for his patrons, we might go on record as stating were he to do only half as much it would still be darn fine showmanship.

"INTRODUCING OUR OFFSPRING"

Make the acquaintance of our "youngest," the Round Table Club of The Film Weekly in Australia. Chairman and Editor, Mel G. Lawton, live-wire manager of the Prince Edward Theatre in Sydney.

You will note from the reproduction of their first page, as well as one of their regular pages, that they closely follow in the footsteps of the parent organization in Motion Picture News.

We extend our sincere congratulations and best wishes to the Round Table Club of Australia, to each of its members, and to Mel Lawton, whom we know will more than fill the Chairmanship for this go-getting organization. Close co-operation between both organizations should result in a wealth of good for the show business in general and we stand ready to lend every possible aid to our brothers out there in Australia.

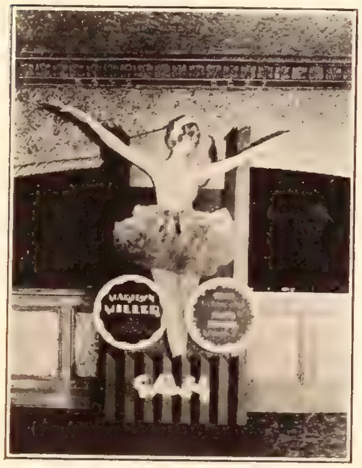
Creative Displays Are A Big Feature Of Gettier's Work

For a good, realistic setting, that was not only eye-arresting, but attractive from every angle, you can credit the illustration with this story to Vogel Gettier, Manager of the Capitol Theatre in Grand Island, Nebraska, because he is deserving of all the credit that goes with this fine piece of work.



It should be unnecessary for us to go into a long detailed explanation, as the picture so thoroughly speaks for itself. The material used as a ballet costume on the cut out, as well as the electric sign for the title of the picture, are innovations in themselves and, under the proper baby spotlighting this must have attracted a tremendous amount of attention from every one entering the theatre.

Apparently, from this illustration it occupied a prominent spot and everyone passing the doorman was bound to take a look at it, whether they were on the alert for these displays or not.

Great work, Vogel and, we are glad to see that you are becoming real active once more on the CLUB pages. Keep it up, and, by all means tell us what's going on out in your part of the country, as your past correspondence was always of tremendous interest, not only to us at Club Headquarters, but to the entire membership wherever MOTION PICTURE NEWS is read.

Hollywood Brought To Chicago For Beck's Premiere

A real Hollywood opening was put across by Dick Beck, hustling manager of the Castle Theatre in Chicago, Illinois, in connection with the recent showing of another of these ever increasing "spectacular" production "Hallelujah," which premiered at his house recently.

Beck engineered a special invitation showing of the picture as an opening night stunt and sent out engraved cards to the various social celebrities and also to the visiting stage stars playing in Chicago at the time, with the invitations being delivered personally by special messenger. Newspaper photographers turned out in full force for the opening and Beck secured some valuable publicity for the house at no cost whatever, and in addition to the newspaper publicity, he tied up with the Newsreel representative and arranged for the placing of Kliegs, cameras and a sound truck outside the theatre, thus completing the "flash" required for a high hat opening and giving the theatre plenty of ballyhoo besides helping to sell the picture to the crowds that lined the sidewalk.

Another novel slant which Beck used was effected through a tie-up with one of the newspapers whereby the paper agreed to publish photos and comments on the picture of prominent locals who were asked to view the production as the guests of the management. This gag clicked nicely and the theatre came in for some more free publicity in addition to the goodwill, which the free invitations insured.

Keen showmanship of this type is what helps drag them in towards the box office and makes them lay down their dough with a smile, and from the pep Beck displays in trying to bring them in we feel sure that he sells them on the screen too, and we hope that he'll favor us with more accounts of his activities at the Castle. Let's here from you again Dick, and why not shoot us in a photo of yourself so that we can let the rest of the CLUB see what you look like?

TRAILERS—TRAILERS—TRAILERS!!

> It seems that we were not alone in our recent discussions about Trailers and as a result we wanted to follow it up with, what we thought would be, a convincing article. Along came the morning's mail, including NOW, and we found Frank Whitbeck's "dead line" story just fitted the need. Here it is with but a few slight changes which we are certain Frank will overlook. Thank you for the help, F. W. I'll do as much for you any time.

TALKIE OR SILENT?

"What is wrong with the trailer situation—or is there anything wrong?

Are you satisfied with what you are getting out of your trailer service—are you willing to go along—as you are?

Is it right to use a talking trailer—or do you "give away" too much of your story and the acting of your star?

Are your trailers spotted right and, if you are a split-week house—are you bunching the trailers too much, are you using too many and are they used too far ahead of the play date?

The trailer is one of the most important adjuncts to your campaign—are you giving it all the attention it merits?

Here of late we have heard a lot about trailers—silent and talking—we want to hear more—from you.

Trailer Services are country wide organizations; much of the copy that goes into their trailers—the trailers that you use—are almost a "must" from the producing studios who furnish them with the necessary scenes—many times with the actual wording of the trailer.

WHO'S RIGHT?

In addition, Trailer Companies hire what they believe to be the best brains in the country for the writing and illustrating of trailers.

Are they right—are we right—is there a better way of selling our coming attractions?

We want to know—it's a cinch that the Trailer people want to know—and you, the men in the field, can give us the answer.

Personally, I believe that the advance trailer of your next attraction deserves the best spot you can give it in your current audience is set for the feature—you give them a short, snappy synopsis of the next attraction. They are in the mood for entertainment—therefore, that trailer should be entertainment combined with the sales argument. If it is—they'll read it—enjoy it, and chances are, profit by it.

On the other hand—if you bunch your trailers—next attraction, policy, Scrip and God knows what not—you lose the attention of your audience, you lose their interest, you spoil their anticipation of the thing they paid their money to see and hear and—they'll go out panning hell out of your show because—you haven't been showman enough to entertain them—to keep annoyance from them—after they had paid to get into your theatre.

You may blame it on the trailer—when it wasn't the fault of your trailer—the scenes or the copy. It was your fault—because you didn't lay your show out right.

AUDIENCE REACTION

To get back to the type of trailers; which is best—silent or talkie? Bear in mind that statisticians say that the mental age of your audience is damn low—maybe as low as 14 years of age. If you rent program. To me—that spot is just ahead of your feature attraction. Your use a silent trailer—will that audience think it is a silent picture?

> The subject of trailers is of sufficient importance to warrant other viewpoints. Additional slants are solicited from both members and readers. What have you to say on this topic?

Pictures like Garbo in "Anne Christie," Gloria Swanson in "The Trespasser," Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger," and when it comes up for booking, the first talkie of Lon Chaney; is it better to sell these attractions with words? A straightforward, sincere statement such as we used in "Here's How" last week on "Men Without Women," to me, sells tickets—if it is properly spotted on the program.

The Trailer Companies will give us the type of trailers we want; our circuit is of such national importance that we can come pretty close to setting the standard in trailers. Are we ready to pioneer a new method in advance trailers—can we bring national attention to ourselves through the progressive methods of our showmanship?

WIDE VARIETY

There is another type of trailer that I am against—down here they think they are great—it is the trailer with the moving background with type superimposed on it. How would you feel, if you were reading a book, if the background kept moving around? Hell of a long time that book would hold your interest.

Moving backgrounds are all right for novelties—maybe for Scrip—but if you have a message to deliver—get that message to them as straight and as serious as you can—providing you are serious . . .

Let us have your ideas on trailers—if you have a kick—let's have it; if you have new thoughts—let's have them, too. If you are satisfied with your service—we want to know that.

Trailers are only as good, or as bad, as the use we put them to.

(Note: The Italics are ours.)

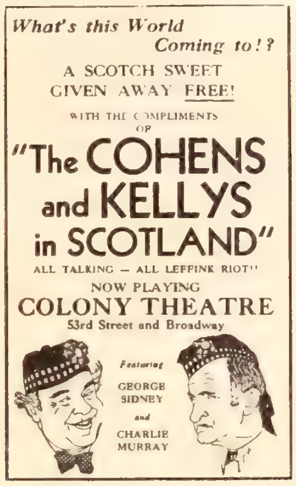
Broadway Treated To Free Candy By Lewis And Slater

By using a stunt that hadn't been worked on Broadway in some time, Harry Lewis, manager of the Colony Theatre in New York, and William Slater, publicity man, for the house, were enabled to secure some excellent publicity.

Through a tie-up effected with the makers of a nationally known Butterscotch candy, thirty thousand samples of the confection were secured. The candy was contained in a pay envelope which bore copy relating to the picture and playdate, as you will note from the reproduction. The most effective method of distribution was chosen by Lewis and Slater, namely, by having three girls, dressed in Scotch costumes, walk up and down Broadway, handing out the samples as they went along.



What's this World Coming to!?

CHARLIE MURRAY

In this manner much comment was occasioned, not only because the stunt hadn't been used for quite a while, but because it was also something unusual for a Broadway house of the Colony's type to be doing. You may be sure that the envelope was read, and the picture came in for a good "plug." If you will study the copy closely you will notice how well it is fashioned to fit the theme of the picture.

This stunt was only one of the many live-wire ones which characterized the work of Lewis and Slater during the run of the picture, but it played a most important part in the success of the film. All in all, the campaign went over with a bang, which, of course, is what we would expect from a campaign made up by an alert showman.

As most of our members know, since we recorded the fact in the Club pages recently, Harry has not been at the house very long, but he has been there long enough to show us by his initial contribution on "Cohens and Kellys" that he means business, and we hope to hear of some great stunts engineered by him at the Colony and it will afford us great pleasure to pass them on to his brother members in the Managers' Round Table Club.

Newspaper Front Page Carried Lee Euering's Letter

In the course of our very busy existence it becomes necessary for us to sometimes "put off till tomorrow what we cannot do to-day," and though we regret very much having held up this account of how Lee J. Euering, long a Club member, and manager of the Chakeres State Theatre in Greenville, Ohio used an open letter in the local newspaper to sell his house to the town, and was highly successful, since it was the first time this gag had been used in the town.

On the amusement page, where Lee generally ran the regular theatre ad, he decided instead to utilize the space for his open letter and he made it up to run in fifty lines on three columns with a heading of the theatre and Lee's byline. The letter was written in a very nice style and enumerated the various advantages and conveniences offered the residents of Greenville and the outlying communities at the State Theatre and told of the policy of the theatre and of the good things that were being planned by the management for the patrons, and also told them why they should patronize the house, with the reasons clearly stated by Lee in a manner that they would understand.

Knowing Lee and his way of working we feel sure that the letter accomplished the purpose it was intended for, namely to sell them and bring them back with every change of show, and since Lee is noted for the way he can keep a house clicking, as witness his work when he managed the Majestic Theatre in Springfield, Ohio, all you readers of the CLUB page will remember the mighty nice examples of the way a high powered showman works to put his shows over.

It is perhaps needless to say that we are always interested in hearing of Lee's activities for he has been a very active contributor and member of the CLUB and knows by now that we certainly derive a wealth of pleasure from hearing of his work, and we want to wish him the best of luck for his continued success.

"The Stunt's The Thing"

Don't develop the wrong impression that the exploitation stunts described on these pages are married to the pictures with which they are used.

When we set forth the details or photographs on an exploitation stunt we do not give it the space because it is on that particular picture which is being exploited.

Rather, our idea is to set forth how the different members and readers are selling their pictures to the public with the distinct idea that you will take the exploitation idea and use it on any picture or pictures which you have booked into your theatre.

Please try to keep in mind the fact that the name of the picture in connection with the exploitation stunt is of very little importance. The chief idea which we are passing on to you is the exploitation idea itself.

Members will find it a very valuable and profitable pastime to see how many exploitation ideas they can take and convert for use on attractions playing their houses.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Show Business Is Forsaken By Andy For Law Shingle

An interesting item has drifted into the Club headquarters, and has to do with Andy Anderson, former manager of the State and Rivoli Theatres in New Brunswick, N. J., for R. K. O. Andy, who has handled the two houses for a couple of years, has resigned his position to enter upon a career of law.

When his intention of resigning was announced to the newspapers, they broke with some wonderful stories on him, and from the one in the Sunday Times, we surmise that Andy must certainly be popular in New Brunswick to get a story and picture that runs almost half a page and tells all about his career as a showman.

Prior to entering into service with R. K. O., Andy was very active with the Loew Circuit and had handled houses in New York, New Jersey, and Ohio for that outfit, resigning from the State in Syracuse to take over the affairs of the two New Brunswick theatres, where until recently he had been breaking records consistently. He intends now, to practice law in the same town, and will hang out his shingle in a short while, leaving his brother Beverly, to carry on and hold up the show end of the family. Beverly Anderson is the publicity director of the State Theatre in New Brunswick, as most Club members know.

We hope that Andy's leaving show business will not keep him from letting us know how he is making out in his new profession and though we know Beverly will have his hands full keeping the Anderson name a prominent one in show business, we look to hear from him shortly concerning his activities.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

PRESTON ADVANCES!

Here's wishing luck to Lew Preston, live-wire manager on the Fox Metropolitan Circuit whose ability has been recognized in the form of a promotion to District Supervisr of the Bronx, N. Y.

For a good many years Lew occupied an executive position at the Republic Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y., and when the house was taken over by the Fox interests remained in the capacity of manager, until his unusual ability as a showman netted him the recent and well merited promotion.

His brother members in the Managers' Round Table Club join us in offering congratulations and we want him to know that we're certainly proud of the record he is making for himself on the circuit because it's the kind of work we'd expect every member of our organization to turn out.

Keep up the fine work Lew and we're sure that before long we'll be receiving more excellent news concerning the way you are climbing up that high ladder to success.

Girl Sailor Gave Life Savers To All Of Hof's Patrons

H. P. Hof, of the Bardavon Theatre, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., used a lobby stunt to advertise "Hit the Deck" that clicked to excellent results.

An attractive looking girl was secured to dispense sample sizes of orange life savers. The girl was attired in a sailor's white uniform with "Hit the Deck" imprinted upon the hat and carried a tray holding the life savers from which a card protruded, copy on the card reading, "Hit the Deck with the new taste sensation—Orange Life Savers—Starting Saturday, Feb. 15th."

The life savers were furnished gratis by the Life Saver Company and the girl promenading up and down made a real live lobby stunt.

The life savers were placed in a small envelope upon which was printed, "HIT THE DECK on Feb. 15th to 21st, inclusive —with the new taste sensation—Orange Life Savers at the Bardavon Theatre."

Mr. Hof deserves a lot of credit for the showmanlike way in which he handled this campagn and we would like to call his attention to the fact that his colleague, across the river at Newburgh, L. L. Chambers, likewise worked a gag very similar, but did not confine it to the lobby. At any rate, it gives both of them the opposite plan on exploiting this particular attraction and is therefore deserving of more than passing attention.

It was our pleasure to stop in at the Bardavon Theatre in Poughkeepsie last summer, while returning from a trip upstate, and we can go on record right now with saying that it is as nice a run house as you would come across in many a mile of travel. Too bad we weren't able to say "hello" to Mr. Hof at that time, but we will make up for this discrepancy at the first opportunity which presents itself and here's hoping it won't be too far off.

On Sound Opening, L. J. Mason Put Over Big Campaign

L. J. Mason celebrated the first anniversary of the talking pictures at the Palace Theatre, McAllen, Tex., with "Gold Diggers of Broadway" as the feature attraction.

A tie-up was effected with fifteen merchants whereby they each purchased five theatre tickets and in turn gave them to the first five customers visiting the respective stores on Monday morning—the week of the first anniversary at the Palace.

The 15 merchants also paid their pro rata share on a full page co-operative ad on Anniversary Week at the Palace as well as mentioning title of picture, theatre and play dates.

Daily and weekly papers carried editorial comments about the Anniversary as well as mentioning the attraction playing at the Palace during Anniversary week.

To impress upon passers-by that there was a celebration of some kind, one of the local bakeries made a huge cake which was later put on display in the lobby. The marquee and theatre front were also bedecked in banners and signs befitting the occasion.

Although this is the first time Mr. Mason's activities have appeared on these pages, we feel that they will become a regular feature in the future. How about it, "L. J."? Can't we count on hearing from you regularly? And perhaps you will warm up to the rest of your brother members, by sending us one of your photographs which will give us the opportunity of giving you a more intimate introduction on the CLUB pages.

Meet Ed. Lewis Of Bayonne, Who Is Going To Be Active

We announced in one of our recent issues that we were in receipt of the muchly delayed photo of Ed. Lewis, but being unable to land it in the issue following the announcement, we were forced to hold it until now.

Ed has been connected with the show game for a good many years and spent twelve years alone with the Keith organization prior to hooking up with the Warner outfit. As we announced before, he is now managing director of the DeWitt Theatre in Bayonne, N. J., which house, incidentally, he handled two years ago. So his new position is somewhat in the form of a return engagement.

With his background, we expect that Ed is going to furnish us with some fine accounts of his work, especially since he knows what the town wants and requires in the way of show merchandising. If he keeps up the same kind of work that has made him an outstanding theatre manager, as his long and varied experience proved, we know that the CLUB pages will record a good many of his "live" stunts.

Now don't forget, Ed, we expect you to be one of the foremost contributors among our Jersey members, and we are looking forward to hearing more, because when a man gets a write-up in his local paper of the size you rated, then we feel that he must be able to produce the goods.

"Tod's" Publicity In This Instance Hit the Blue Sky

Of course, it must have thrilled Boston to know that Nancy Carroll, the movie star, thought enough of the town and her picture, "Dangerous Paradise," to send personal greetings via carrier pigeon to the Metropolitan Theatre in that city.

But when we saw the name Metropolitan, we din't even look for a thrill, because we knew that Harry "Tod" Browning was merely pulling some more of his fast stunts and reaping a harvest for the house of which he is publicity director.

The newspapers in the city all broke with a story that Miss Carroll sent a carrier pigeon to the theatre the previous day, on whose leg was attached a message, rolled in a tube, which read: "Greetings by air from the Paramount studio. Wish I were there to take part in person at the opening of my new picture, 'Dangerous Paradise.' I am taking this old, old method of communication to wish Bostonians complete enjoyment of this new show world production. Richard Arlen joins me in this greeting. Best wishes." Signed, Nancy Carroll. The pigeon was received by a member of Tod's publicity staff.

Now since "Tod" secured publicity on this gag there is no reason why any of the Club members who would like to use the stunt should not also secure free space in the papers, because as we have said many times over, no stunt is welded to any picture, so if you think it will pep up interest in your house, use it. Thanks, Tod, keep us posted on your work so that we can pass it on to the rest of the Club from time to time.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Matching Garbo's Lips Was a Winner For Geo. A. Delis

One of the beauties of your Chairman's job is the big kick he gets when he hears of the way a manager shows his keen showmanship and cashes in on a stunt that appeared on the Club pages. Which is just what Manager George Delis of the Olympic Theatre in Steubenville, Ohio, did.

When Greta Garbo in "The Kiss" played at the Olympic, Delis ran a novel ad in the local paper in the form of a contest to find out whether any of the local girls had lips like Garbo. The ad was nicely made up with well worded copy, as the reproduction shows.

Olympic Theatre

Another stunt Delis used was effected through co-operation with a local candy dealer, whereby samples of chocolate kisses were enclosed in an envelope with a head reading, "A KISS FROM GRETA GARBO," and again Delis displays his keen showmanship by inserting a cardboard herald announcing the picture and play dates.

To get back to the advantages of the "kiss impression" contest which Delis ran we would like to state that here is another gag that is not married to any particular picture and can be used to good advantage almost any time. We want to stress the necessity of leaving the word "passes" out of your copy, not because it is entirely wrong but because the real showman senses the unknown something that an offer of tickets conveys, since it packs a lot more punch than the word passes. Of course, passes are generally given away to the winners, but it is advisable that the word tickets be used in copy relating to a contest.

Still another angle we can see on this "kiss impression" gag, and one that would create a lot of interest if the contest is worked in advance of the picture, would be to announce that motion pictures of the winning contestants' lips would be shown on the screen, together with the names and addresses. This angle could easily be arranged by closing the contest in ample time to have one of the many screen services throughout the country make up a strip of pictures of the lips of the local girls. And since the winners need not be publicly announced until the opening night you're bound to get in a bunch of the contestants' friends—for all you have to do is to tell the winners not to put anybody wise.

Delis' work is always a source of great interest to us for we know that we will always have something to tell the rest of the Club about, and we feel sure that he is going to continue his activities.

"Want Some Dough?"

Seems as though that question was answered even before we asked it As witness the many showmen who are getting set to try and win some of the Prize Money offered in connection with the Columbia Prosperity Month Contest.

Send in as many contributions as you can. Every one will be given the proper consideration and if your material merits it, you can rest assured that you will grab some of the money.

If you are in doubt about any phase of the contest, communicate with your nearest Columbia exchange or get in touch with me and I'll shoot you the information "toot sweet."

Here's a glorious way to win both money and recognition for yourself, and every live-wire showman should do his utmost to try for the honors.

Eddie Is Keeping Up Eddie's Work—Read This and See

It gives us extreme pleasure, at this time, to pass along some newspaper advertising as created by Eddie Fitzgerald, who is looking after the publicity and advertising for the Fifth Avenue, New York and Coliseum Theatres in Seattle, Washington, of which houses Jim Klemmer, Lou Golden and H. A. Robertson, respectively, are the managers.

In passing this along you need only look them over carefully to pick the many fine points that Eddie has brought out in making his ads as conspicuous as they undoubtedly appear in the local papers. It is this type of black and white advertising that has become popular with many advertising and publicity men throughout the country, and, in this respect Eddie need not play second fiddle to any of them.

We have already made mention on these pages that since Eddie Hitchcock left the Pacific Northwest we were not getting samples of the peppy advertising that is being featured in that part of the country, and now that the new Eddie takes Hitchcock's place, we have every reason in the world to feel that his fine work will be passed along steadily on the pages of the Round Table Club in MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Maybe we are anticipating this a little too soon, Fitzgerald? At any rate, you're in a better position to answer it than we are, but one thing you can rest assured of, and that is the hearty welcome for anything you want to pass along for the benefit of your brother managers throughout the country.

Let's hear some more from you and don't confine it to just newspaper advertising, because we know for an absolute fact, that the exploitation and ballyhoo activities out there in Seattle are way above par and we are just as anxious to pass this type of stuff along as we are the newspaper ads, so suppose you find time in your spare moments (? ? ?) to pound out the dope on some of the things you have engineered in co-operation with the gentlemen mentioned above who are managing the theatres, and let the rest of the world know what's going on in Seattle.

So long for the present, and convey our best regards to our many friends and boosters up in your part of the country.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

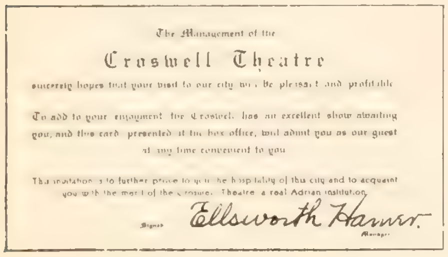
Ellsworth Hamer Greets Strangers And Extends Invite

Another showman to join our ranks is Ellsworth Hamer, Manager of the Croswell and Family Theatres in Adrian, Mich. And when we say showman we mean just that, for Hamer has been in the game a good many years and as far back as 1907 worked with the Cameraphone Talking Pictures.

In addition to being a pioneer in the talking picture game, Hamer has served time in the movies and enjoys the distinction of having been on the road with the first picture ever to be road-showed, "Quo Vadis," and prior to this had sold film for the old General Film Company.

It is certainly interesting to know that in 1922 Hamer was the recipient of a lot of publicity from the MOTION PICTURE NEWS commending him on the great number of lobby displays which were deemed good enough for reproduction in the NEWS pages, and numbered more than any other manager in the United States at the time, and as Hamer was managing the Strand Theatre in Lansing, Mich., then, we can bet his lobby displays were certainly knockouts. Another interesting note worthy to record is the fact that Hamer managed his first house at the age of seventeen, for the Danforth and Campbell Circuit in Wisconsin. Besides having an expert knowledge of the inner workings of the theatre, Hamer is also well versed in motion picture projection, having worked as an operator for a number of years.

And now, after having given you a brief sketch of Hamer's career in the show game, we want to get down to the present day and let you know how he is putting things across at his houses; so, with this in mind we want to tell you how he introduced visitors in the town to his theatres by means of a personal greeting card which we are reproducing here.



The Management of the

sincerely hopes that your visit to our city will be pleasant and profitable

To add to your enjoyment the Croswell has an excellent show awaiting you, and this card presented at the box office, will admit you as our guest at any time convenient to you

This invitation is to further prove to you the hospitality of this city and to acquaint you with the merit of the Croswell Theatre, a real Adrian institution.

Signed Ellsworth Hamer. Manager

Through a tie-up with the local Chamber of Commerce, which informed Hamer of new arrivals, a card was mailed or handed to them personally by clerks in the hotels, and in addition were also given to tourists who stopped in the town overnight or for a few hours and, believe us, this stunt sure clicked because the card, in addition to bearing a personal greeting, invited the stranger to witness, free of charge, the show at the Croswell, "to further prove the hospitality of the city and to acquaint the visitor with the merit of the Croswell Theatre, a real Adrian institution." With the good-will of the Chamber of Commerce and the visitors secured, it's a certainty the theatre came in for plenty of publicity.

This is a fine stunt for securing good-will and if any of our readers think they would like to use it Hamer will no doubt be glad to send you a copy of the card which measures five by three inches, printed in black type on good cardboard stock.

We want to extend Hamer a cordial welcome into the CLUB and we might reveal at this time that Jack Revolt, whose activities at the Family and Croswell Theatres have been often recorded on these pages, is Hamer's assistant, which leads us to believe that Jack is securing some mighty fine, first-hand instruction in showmanship under Hamer's tuition. Let's hear from you often in the future.

A. J. Vineyard Has A House Organ of Value to Theatre

A neat turnout is the program made up by A. J. Vineyard, Manager of the Columbia Theatre in Dallas, Texas, and on which he advertises the entire week.

The program measures four and a half by fourteen and is printed in black on good orange cardboard and is so made up that it can be used for almost any purpose. It can be hung on doorknobs, or auto doors, can be nailed on bulletin boards, or hung in restaurants. By the use of midget mats, Vineyard had added to the beauty of the program.

Besides the attractions, the program also carries copy relating to time of opening, etc. All in all the program is a very compact arrangement and since its circulation has jumped from 2,000 to 4,000, they must have some value.

We are glad to hear from Vineyard again and we hope he will keep us posted on his activities down there in Dallas, since we happen to know that a man must certainly be a showman to keep up with the demands of that busy city.

Want an "Ad" That Will Make a Flash? Here's a Natural

Another example of how wide awake are the showman-members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB is seen in the touch Stewart B. Tucker, manager of the Byrd Theatre in Richmond, Va., injected into his newspaper ads by quoting a review from a trade paper and eliminating the regular advertising make-up, in order to obtain a "flash" that would sell.

AND HOW IT SOLD! If you'll just study the cut of the newspaper ad Tucker has made up you will notice that it contains everything that can possibly be plugged, and at no time is there danger of the reader's interest lagging. The way the ad is headed is alone enough to command attention by virtue of the flash the copy, "READ THIS REVIEW," presents, and though we must beg pardon for saying it ourselves, when "Red" Kann, of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, comments on a picture he talks in language that is understandable to every one—which is just our way of stating that had Tucker quoted the New York newspaper reviewer's comments on the picture, the effective "selling" copy of the ad would be lost in the maze of "high sounding" language that oftimes characterizes the moving picture reviewers on the leading dailies and periodicals.

In Hollywood, the underground has been buzzing about "Paris," stage play annexed by First National, who then annexed Irene Bordoni to repeat her flesh-and-blood role on the screen.

The other day we saw it. And this is what the screen had to say and show:

A fluff story played in a slapstick, broadside fashion that tickles mightily in the ribs. You won't remember the picture after leaving the theatre, but most certainly will you appreciate the good time that was yours. Miss Bordoni is starred, but Louise Closser Hale, the icebound New England mother who melts alarmingly under the pleasantries that can be Paris's, well nigh steals the picture. She is immense, a fine comedienne and a lovable, white-haired person all in one. And that, you will concede, is plenty.

Miss Bordoni sings in the charming, chic French manner and Jack Buchanan, London musical comedy rage is very good indeed. Together they do much to make the picture what it is. And the production! Gorgeous color, beautiful sets and a stageful of girls—the kind that are good to look at. Music, splendid. Tempo, fast. Comedy, rampant.

Throw them all together, mix 'em and you have "Paris." KANN

We notice that Tucker was quick to insert the notice of the newsreel showing of the inauguration of the Governor of Virginia in his ad and a little touch like this doubtlessly added more dough to the box office, for with the way he plugs his shorts and all other special features at every available opportunity there should be no reason at all why his business doesn't hit above par and we don't doubt but that with excellent showmanship like this his business is always up high.

We're very glad of this opportunity to pass on a new angle to the rest of the boys, in the event that some of them would like to try it out on their own houses, and we feel sure that a gag like this will constitute a welcome relief from the regular run of newspaper advertising and will create a "flash" which will react favorably toward the box office. We hope that Tucker will continue the active interest he is showing since becoming a member of the CLUB and will keep us posted on more of his live-wire activities.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Charlie Carroll Keeps Interest Up By "Ace" Publicity

Here is the marvelous lobby display arranged by Charlie Carroll, director of Publicity for Hudson County with the Stanley Fabian outfit on "The Sacred Flame."

Even without any great stretch of imagination you should certainly be able to appreciate the merits of this marvelous piece of work and its attractiveness in the theatre itself.

Patrons of the Stanley Theatre in Jersey City certainly must have plenty to talk about in connection with the different things that are going on over there in the way of exploitation and showmanship, and it gives us a great kick to be able to pass along the various activities of Charlie Carroll and the boys working under him.

You may recall the "Take a Chance Week" story which we ran about Charlie in a recent past issue of the NEWS and here again we follow it up with another piece of his fine activities.

Thank you, Charlie, for keeping us posted on this one and remember, we would like to hear from you regularly on each and every successful stunt that is engineered under your direction and the boys who are constantly striving to help put them over for you.

Police Dept. Was Invited By Watson To Solve Picture

J. E. Watson, manager of the Broad Theatre in Columbus, Ohio, used a gag in connection with his announcement trailer on the "13th Chair," which helped boost business on his current picture as well as the coming attraction.

Watson tied up with one of the local papers which carried a story announcing that patrons viewing the last showing of "Hallelujah" would be invited as the guests of the management to witness a partial screening of the "13th Chair." This announcement was also carried in the daily ads and as a result a large number of persons attended the midnight screening, in fact anybody who had not seen "Hallelujah" was there, as were undoubtedly a bunch of mystery story lovers.

The picture was shown down to the scream in the part which portrays the second seance and was then brought to a stop, with the audience being invited to figure out the guilty party, and send in the solution, together with their names and addresses, to the box office, the first correct solutions submitted by patrons being presented with tickets to the theatre to witness the picture. Besides inviting the audience to solve the mystery, Watson sent special invitations to the Police Department of the town, with an offer to participate in the contest also, and in order to give the patrons a break, held all the theories of the Police Department until the finish of the picture's run, and presented the officer or detective, who submitted the first correct solution, with a box of cigars. This stunt aroused a good bit of comment and was instrumental in securing the theatre a lot of free publicity in the local papers.

We want to thank Watson for letting us see how he puts his shows across and we expect to hear more from him, as the fine work he is doing down there deserves recognition and when a showman has something of interest to pass on he'll always find the CLUB pages at his service. How about it, "J. E."? Keep us posted on your work out there. Oak.

YOUR PROBLEMS AND MINE!

Over two hundred letters have been exchanged so far in connection with "Your Problems and Mine." Which is a wonderful tribute to the fraternal spirit of our members and readers and shows a keen desire on the part of every interested party to help each other and help themselves. We hope the continuation of this series will result in even greater accomplishments than have yet been achieved.

"CHICK."

C's Problem:

C's house is located in a small town The local high school boasted of an "ace" basketball team and the town supported it strongly. Games were played every Saturday night and the whole town flocked to see them. Since Saturday is the biggest night of the week, the merchants as well as the theatre were hard hit. Business was at a standstill and things looked black for the business men. Everybody at the game. Nobody in town.

C's Solution:

C decided to show the school authorities how unfair the Saturday evening bookings were and put a proposition up to the local merchants. Would they raise enough money among them to pay expenses for a free show at his house? They would, gladly. The plan clicked. Attendance dropped off at the basketball game. Business picked up for the merchants. New patrons were introduced to the theatre. The free shows on Saturday continued for a time. Then C switched the free night to Wednesday when the school authorities consented to co-operate and not book any more games in the "Big Night." The week before switching the free night to Wednesday, C started a serial on Saturday, and now the people who had been going to the free Saturday shows are paying to see the rest of the serial, and also the regular Saturday prices.

"Spring Fashion Revue"

Our first suggestion regarding this great money-making stunt brought over a dozen letters of thanks for the warning.

We, therefore, repeat that you should be laying the foundation for a real Gala Fashion Show in co-operation with your Chambers of Commerce, local merchants, or any other source that is necessary to put this stunt over to big b.o. returns.

Reference to your last fall's issues of the Club pages will reveal many Fall Fashion Show details that can be applied to the Spring Revue.

Get behind this one boys, it's worth its weight in gold if handled properly.

Browell Displays Showmanship By This Type of Work

On the rolls of the Round Table Club may be found many showmen from the State of Pennsylvania and it is with pleasure that we announce another representative from that state in J. N. Browell, manager of the Park Theatre in Palmerton, Pa.

Browell has been doing some interesting work in Palmerton and one of his recent tie-ups was engineered with the local high school. At the time of the tie-up the "draw" from the school had been falling off somewhat, so Browell put on the old thinking cap and worked out plan to boost up the box office by inviting the girl and boy basketball teams of the school to attend the theatre free of charge on Wednesday evening. This stunt set them to talking, so Browell followed it right up by announcing that a high school night would be offered every Wednesday and that any school student presenting an organization card would be admitted at a reduced rate on each ticket.

The first night's business assured the success of this plan, for the box office reported that the regular high school trade had come back and added a few more dollars besides. So with this stunt as Browell's initial story on the Club pages, we feel sure that the rest of the Club will agree with us when we say that we are going to have another active member frequently represented.

While not new, this one was nevertheless very effective in boosting business, and if you are in a position to promote a school tie-up like it, we believe that you'll find some more jack just waiting to fall in the w. k. b. o. (well known box office).

Good work, Brower, and we want to hear more from you in the very near future, so keep us posted on your activities. Oak?

Song Plugging Is Latest Stunt Used By Max Tschauder

Keeping pace with the larger towns, Max Tschauder of the Rivoli Theatre, Beatrice, Neb., used a live lobby stunt to plug "Gold Diggers of Broadway."

For the entire week prior to the opening of the picture, a talented boy singer sang all the numbers from "Gold Diggers of Broadway." A sign alongside the boy informed patrons that the numbers being sung were from "Gold Diggers of Broadway," the picture coming next week.

As this was the boy's first attempt at singing in a theatre lobby, Tschauder rigged up a microphone (which was faked) to help the boy from feeling self-conscious.

The stunt worked out very nicely and the people in the lobby accepted it very favorably.

Which should be a source of credit to Max, because we all like to hit on an odd or unusual angle every once in a while, in order to stimulate interest in the theatre's activities.

Keep it up, Tschader, and by all means keep us posted on what you are doing so that we can set forth the details of your showmanlike methods on the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages.

Marc Wolf's Lobby Resembled Hangar On Recent Stunt

A display that sold his patrons the minute they entered the theatre lobby was one of the outstanding features of Marc J. Wolf's recent campaign on "Flight," when that picture played the Palace Theatre in Gary, Indiana, which house he manages.

He tied up with a local association school and the Air Transport Company of Chicago. They furnished the theatre with a complete aeronautical display including a standard "Travel Air" airplane, a twelve-cylinder Liberty motor, airplane wings, covered and uncovered; model planes, regulation flying suit including a standard parachute; model zeppelin, etc.

Lettered cards were placed alongside of each exhibit explaining in detail what each thing was and in what relation it had to the rest of the plane structure. A card on an easel also gave publicity to the two companies responsible for the display.

It was perhaps the most attractive of any yet used in the theatre lobby. It made a great flash and caused no end of comment.

It is too bad we haven't a picture of Wolf's latest gag, as we would have been able to give you a better idea of its selling power, but we hope that the next time he arranges such a live wire display that he will furnish us with a picture of it. How about it, Wolf, keep us posted, will you?

Chet Miller Moves To North Platte— We Wish Him Luck

We think that things around North Platte, Nebr., will be perking up soon. The reason for the foregoing statement we are going to divulge right now. Our friend and fellow Club member, Chet Miller, has been shifted from his former house at Sterling, Colo., to the new Fox Theatre in North Platte.

Chet has been represented on our pages a number of times, so his activities are undoubtedly well known to many of the bunch, but for the sake of the members unacquainted with Chet, we'll tell you that he is one of the Club's most active members and has furnished us with a good many stunts and valuable suggestions.

As the new job is in the nature of a promotion for him we feel that his rise is well deserved and congratulations from us are in order. So we extend our heartiest wishes for his continued success and we know that he is going to continue the same kind of go-getting showmanship which played so important a part in his work at the Colorado houses.

We look forward to hearing from Chet as soon as he starts things humming there and the first accounts of his activities will probably contain some very useful angles that we will be more than glad to present. So keep us posted, Chet, and let's have some more of that "live" showmanship of yours. Incidentally, remember us to Fred Glass.

L. H. Raymond

It is certainly with keen regret that we must announce to our members, and his many friends, the passing of a showman, so well known to the show-game, that his death will be marked as one of the sadest events of the current season.

With this little tribute we say, "Rest In Peace," to brother-member L. H. Raymond, formerly manager of the Fox-Pontiac Theatre up in Saranac Lake, N. Y.

As for his ability, we quote from his own organization: "Mr. Raymond made a splendid record with Fox Metropolitan and won for himself recognition as one of our most able managers and executives."

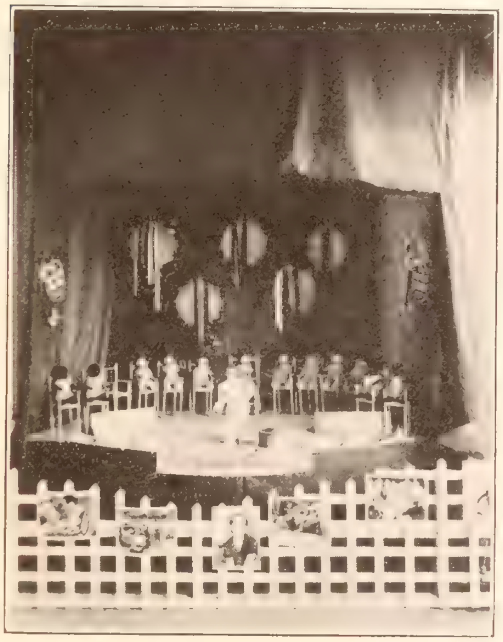
MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Ideas Galore Seem Always To Be At His Beck And Call

We were wondering what had happened to L. W. Carroll, one of the veteran members of the Club when he suddenly turned up and revealed that he had been as busy as a one-armed paper-hanger with the hives.

The photo we are reproducing will give you a slight idea of how active he has been. This display was used in the lobby as a plug for "The Grand Parade," and since it is so well done really needs no explanation other than that we tell you the miniature figures are little dolls and the figure of the minstrel man in the foreground is a cutout of the male star of the picture made from a 22x28. Study the photo carefully and you'll get the drift of this novel and very effective stunt.



Another idea of a similar nature was used by Carroll for "The 13th Chair." He displayed a chair, against a black cambric background, in the lobby. Near it was a sign "Would You Be Afraid To Sit In The 13th Chair?" and over the chair hung a real dagger, fifteen inches long, suspended on a black silk thread. A motor, hidden in the black background, caused the dagger to move up and down, while a green spotlight focused on it completed the weird effect.

Now that we've shown you how he sells them in his lobby, we are going to tell you of the stunt he pulled in the newspapers on "Anna Christie," that had the town talking and sold the picture. He ran a 140-line ad in the local paper and tacked on a "flash" head which proclaimed that Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie" would be the talking sensation of 1930. The rest of the ad carried a personal endorsement by him, which stated that in his many years in show business, the silent version of "Anna Christie," was the only picture he remembered vividly.

He then declared that when he heard the picture was to be produced in audible form with Garbo in the title role, he experienced some misgivings, but confesses, in the ad, that his fears were groundless for after seeing the talking version of the picture he felt duty bound to offer congratulations. The town ate up the personal endorsement and flocked in to see the picture.

Carroll's activities are typical of the work of real showmen throughout the country and it affords us pleasure to know that he is continuing his interest in the Club and since he promises to keep us posted on all his future activities we are of the opinion that the Club pages will hold some mighty interesting stories.

Please Take Note

THE pages of the Club are open for the publication of photographs from both members and readers. These photos may be of theatre managers, theatre fronts, marquee displays, lobby settings, etc. Due credit will be given those send photos to the Club, providing they attach the proper description and their own names and theatre addresses.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB.

Easter Possibilities!

Despite the fact that business generally falls off just prior to Easter Week, we can cite the activities and preparations of many real showmen, the country over, proving that unlimited angles present themselves which can be tied right in with this "slump" season

You should be well started RIGHT NOW towards Bunny Matinees. Colored Easter Egg Shows, Novelty Matinees and dozens of other corking ideas which tie right in with the spirit of the season and, in almost every case, increase the box office receipts for the dull period.

The suggestions incorporated above constitute only a few of the money-making ideas which have appeared on the Club pages in the past weeks and if you are letting business shift for itself you are doing your theatre a grave injustice.

Showmanship Plus? Here's Another One Ready For Action

A corking idea that we believe to have enough meat to it for passing on to the rest of the Club, is a novelty program, made up in calendar form and carrying the shows for the entire month.

The program bears the imprint of the Lyric Theatre in Honesdale, Pa., and the last we knew, Harry F. Bodie was managing the house. Anyway, the card was mailed to all the boxholders on the R. F. D. route about Honesdale, and besides carrying the program also bore a gag on the front cover which we are reprinting in type here so that you can see for yourselves its value.

YOU CAN'T TELL BY THE LOOKS OF A TOAD HOW FAR IT CAN JUMP.

And in these wonderful days of talking pictures you can't always judge the merits of a movie by its title or the names of its stars. Numerous prominent players from the spoken stage are now in pictures whose names may be little known to the moving picture public, but their talents and personalities often surpass those of the old familiar screen names.

STAND BY YOUR OLD FAVORITES BUT GARNER NEW ENJOYMENT FROM NEW STARS.

The card was printed in blue on good orange stock and measured eleven by eight and one-half. A corner, on the upper right of the card, was reserved for the address of the prospective patron. Now, if you are located around a rural route and your business is slowing up a bit, here's a gag that should bring it back for you, because it's a cinch that once they start reading that catch line and get what your message is conveying they are going to take the time to look the rest of the card over carefully. And even if you don't want to make up a monthly program here's a swell message to put across to your patrons, which will more than click.

Put it in your house organ, run it in an ad, make up a personal letter, or use it in a special herald, because you have something, that, while it may not jam your box office immediately will certainly produce results in a good many other ways.

LET US SMILE!

"The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while,
That cost the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile,
The smile that bubbles from a heart that loves its fellowmen,
Will drive away the cloud of gloom and coax the sun again.
It's full of worth and goodness, too, with manly kindness blent—
It's worth a million dollars, and doesn't cost a cent.
"There is no room for sadness when we see a cheery smile;
It always has the same good look—it's never out of style—
It nerves us on to try again, when failure makes us blue;
The dimples of encouragement are good for me and you.
It pays a higher interest, for it is merely lent—
It's worth a million dollars, and doesn't cost a cent.
"A smile comes very easy—you can wrinkle up with cheer,
A hundred times before you can, squeeze out a soggy tear.
It ripples out, moreover, to the heart strings that will tug,
And always leaves an echo that is very like a hug.
So, smile away. Folks understand what by a smile is meant,
It's worth a million dollars, and doesn't cost a cent."

"PRESENTING, ARTHUR SMITH"

This photograph will serve to introduce to our many other members and readers Arthur Smith, manager of the Stillwell Theatre in Brooklyn, New York, a peppy neighborhood theatre, catering to the different classes in that particular community.

We might incidentally mention that Arthur was nominated by his namesake, Lou Smith, who is the managing director of the Windsor Theatre in Brooklyn, and whose activities have often been set forth in detail on these pages. We hope that Arthur will follow the example of Lou in keeping us posted on his many activities and in this way we can perhaps start a competition of the two Smiths in Brooklyn, that should result in interesting items for our pages in the future.

Welcome, Arthur, into the ROUND TABLE CLUB, and, knowing Brooklyn as we do, we have every reason to feel that you should be able to pull many a stunt that will increase the box-office attendance.

How about shooting us along the details of some of your local exploitations and publicity activities Arthur? And tell us how the community is reacting to your management of this fine theatre, which it has been our pleasure to visit personally, not very long ago, and, you may rest assured, that on our next trip out in the Bensonhurst section will find us stepping in and saying "hello" personally.

We will tell you more about Arthur Smith and his activities as fast as he furnishes them to us.

Dave Lustig's Pep Can Be Seen In This House Organ

Here's the way a real live wire circuit turns out a house organ that really is a house organ. The layout is the work of Dave Lustig, Director of Publicity for the Manhattan Playhouses in New York City.

We are reproducing a sample of one and if you study it closely you may find many points which will be of aid to you in case your house organ needs a little "pepping" up or you're looking for something to help its make-up. On the front page of the Hollywood Theatre program is an announcement of the campaign being engineered on the circuit for "Gratitude Month."

This month, from the good-will standpoint has a wonderful value, since the theatre secures the co-operation of the local dealers in a proposition that lets the patrons in for a good many benefits, with the merchants contributing their products to the theatre. The gifts from the local dealers were displayed in the lobbies of all the houses of the circuit and created a lot of comment. "Gratitude Month" looks to us like a natural for Dave's circuit, since the houses are mostly located in neighborhoods where the people come more or less in contact with the theatre almost daily and come to regard the place as "home-like."

Procedure

Dave and the managers of that circuit are undoubtedly working like the deuce to put "Gratitude Month" across and we imagine that a few very good and novel ideas should be forthcoming from some source or another, so we hope that the many Club members we number among the managers of the Manhattan Playhouses will keep us posted as to what they are doing to help business and assist Dave in putting this over.

Costuming Usher Aided L. Hagemann In Merchandising

By costuming one of his ushers in an outfit similar to one worn in a scene from his coming attraction, L. P. Hagemann, manager of the Ambridge Theatre in Ambridge, Pa., distributed throwaway cards in a manner that sold the picture to his patrons.

He dressed the usher in a typical Dutch costume and the girl handed out cards to patrons leaving the theatre which read, "Take a Tip from the Charming Little Maid Who Sings 'Dance of the Wooden Shoes' in 'No, No, Nanette'," and carried the play dates on the bottom. This method of distribution has been found to be very effective for Hagemann and we are passing it along in the event that any of the Club members may care to utilize the angle.

We want to thank A. H. R. Miller for his thoughtfulness in passing it along to us and we hope to hear more from him in the future. We would also like to have Hagemann keep us posted on his work so that when he has any unusual angles we can hand them on to the rest of the Club. So what do you say, Hagemann, shoot them in to us, will you?

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

No Loafing, So Zigmond Made Dough On Bakery Tie-up

The 12,500 coupons wrapped in loaves of bread had more than a passing significance to those getting them. All this was in connecting with advertising "Sally" playing at the Avalon Theatre, Grand Junction, Colo.

Each one of the coupons had copy about the picture, theatre and play dates as well as details of the contest. The copy read, "If you're lucky, you may get a free ticket to see SALLY—Every loaf of Sally Ann bread sold until Saturday, February 22, contains a slip like this with the different letters to spell SALLY. Collect these letters to spell the entire word SALLY—present them at the box office and be admitted free to see SALLY."

Each coupon had a huge letter and of the entire number distributed, 100 contained the letter Y—thus making it possible for 100 persons to win one of the free tickets. Those getting the complete set were few in number but the stunt was the talk of the town, all of which proved very helpful in publishing "SALLY."

The Bakery also allowed banners to be put on all their trucks; copy on the banners relating to details of the contest, picture, theatre and play dates. And one of the bakery's front windows was used for announcement cards as well as cards being placed on the counters.

While not new, this stunt has always proved mighty effective in creating interest in a coming attraction for any theatre, and to Jerome Zigmond, the house manager, goes credit for arranging this tie-up.

Let's hear some more from you, Jerome, as this is a starter for your activities on the pages, and we know that you are engineering many other fine stunts that we should pass along to your brother members throughout the country. How about it?

On New Promotion John Martin Goes To Work Upstate

Here's John Martin, one of the latest members of the ROUND TABLE CLUB, who has already made such a name for himself that the reports have reached this office before his photo, but we decided that we'd better let you see him, as well as read his story.

John has been connected with the Fox Metropolitan Theatre Chain in New York for some time now. He has been assistant to Manager McCabe of the Carlton Theatre in Brooklyn, and House Manager of the New Atlantic in the same city, but now it is our pleasure to inform you that he has been promoted to a house of his own and is now manager of the Liberty Theatre in Watertown, N. Y., for the Upstate Division.

It was no great surprise to learn that John had been promoted, because when his work was first brought to our attention by Monty MacLevy we felt that he had to have something to make Monty speak so well of him, so we figured then that it would only be a matter of time before he was appointed a manager.

In his new position and field of operation, we feel that the opportunities for displaying some mighty fine showmanship are a lot greater and we know that he will get along very well with the bunch of live-wire managers who comprise the Upstate Division.

Congratulations on your promotion Johnny, and let's hear from you again real soon. Incidentally, when you meet Tom Olsen, convey our regards to him.

"All For One And One For All"

"PASSES—!"

By JACK ALLAN

Mgr. Capitol Theatre, Kitchener, Ont.

The greatest evil in the show business today is the unnecessary distribution of passes. Not that I am a believer in the entire abolishment of complimentaries, as there are times, especially in exploiting pictures, that a pass for two goes a longer way than if you offered to pay a merchant, say, for the use of a big window display. Of course, the skeptics will come back and say, well, he is getting as much publicity as you are, but the fact remains that you secure a location in your town that you could not buy for love nor money, and in many instances the merchant assists you in the layout of this display, and I honestly believe that a pass in this instance is well spent.

What I am trying to get at is the unnecessary distribution of complimentaries, practiced at times by the majority of us. Yes, I'll admit that I was one of the offenders, but I can conscientiously say that for the past two seasons I have not issued any comps that were not given for value received, and by that I mean value received by the organization I work for, not personally.

Years ago, when exploiting such as we have today was not even heard of, on the first night of any showing the house was 50% PAPER, sometimes more, with a view to creating a good impression on those who had paid to see the premiere performance and in this way specializing in more or less of a mouth to mouth campaign, which was found to be at that time the greatest way of exploiting your show. And besides that, the advance man was very liberal in issuing duckets to Station Agents, Baggage men, transfer agents, hotel clerks, in fact anyone he came in contact with, he issued a comp.

But this system has changed. WE ARE A GREAT INDUSTRY accomplishing a great service in any community, that of entertaining the public. A theatre must pay 100 cents on the dollar for any merchandise they purchase, and to get this money and show a profit we have to rely on our box office admissions, and I've yet to hear of any man accepting payment of a bill with passes; it isn't done.

The theatre Manager of today is a professional man, and one who should take an interest in anything pertaining to the good of his community. If he is capable he does not need to distribute passes with a free hand. Acquaintances of this nature are detrimental to your business. In the first place they consider they can hang around any time they feel like it, and also they are your biggest knockers. I have yet to hear of a deadhead really praising an attraction, they won't commit themselves if it is really good, but, oh boy, how they holler if they think the show is rotten.

Theatre business at the present time is one of the largest industries in the world, one that can stand on its feet, and one that does not need to hand out any samples, and that is all that passes are, for their patrons to test.

Check your Pass List over boys, as often as you can, get rid of the deadwood, and I know you'll find an increase in legitimate admissions with absolutely no extra expense, and remember that every ticket sold to an ex-deadhead is absolute profit to your organization, and you'll also find they will become boosters instead of knockers.

C. Elmer Nolte, Jr. Starting Work Now On Booster Stunt

No matter what the nature of a stunt promoted by C. Elmer Nolte, Jr., may be, it is a pretty safe bet to figure that the Grand Theatre in Baltimore, Md., of which house Nolte is the Managing Director, will come in for a lot of good-will.

As long as we have known Nolte, he has always figured prominently in the civic affairs of Baltimore and in that manner has brought his house in line for plenty of publicity. He is represented in the Exchange Club of Highlandtown (a community of the city) on the Entertainment Committee, Roster Committee, and Community Service and "Boost Highlandtown Week" Committee, besides being the Secretary of the organization.

His latest activity is the "Boost Highlandtown Week" which he is endeavoring to promote among the local business and professional men, in order to stimulate business in the community and the city. An extensive advertising campaign has been outlined and submitted to the men who make up the commercial end of the community.

During the "Boost Highlandtown Week," Nolte is going to take motion pictures of all the events that happen during the affair, as well as pictures of the people patronizing the dealers. The movies will be exhibited the following week in the theatre and in this manner business is bound to boom. We are informing you of Nolte's future plans in order to give you an idea of what may be expected in the way of good things from him on how to boost your community and your theatre, and as soon as we receive details about the entire program, we will pass them on to the rest of the Club.

We are certain that the "Boost Highland Week" is going to be a big success, not because one of our members is working on the Committee—though we will boast his is valuable aid—but because the postscript on the letter which Nolte sent out to the business and professional men requesting their co-operation in the "Boost Highlandtown Week," read: "As we sow, fertilize and cultivate, so shall we reap." We might add that all the money and time invested by everyone for this occasion, will be spent 100 per cent for "BOOST HIGHLANDTOWN WEEK." It will in reality be an "ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL" week.

When an organization is "ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL," SUCCESS IS ASSURED.

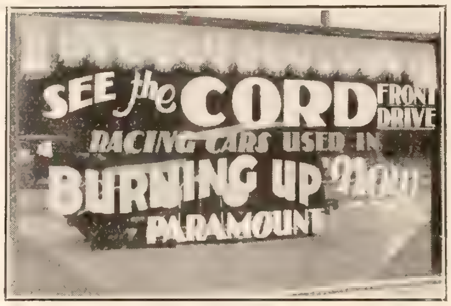
Here's A Window Devised By Stolte That Sold Picture

Manager Stolte of the Paramount Theatre, Waterloo, Ia., selected the one automobile showroom window where over 25,000 people pass daily to effect a most killful tie-up in connection with "Burning Up" currently playing at the theatre. As the photograph distinctly shows, he was successful in selling them the idea to permit the lettering on the window, which had such a forcible effect upon the passersby that business in the Paramount Theatre was noticeably increased for the run of this picture.



We haven't heard Stolte lately, but we do know that he has been engineering some fine bits of exploitation and the box office reaction has been such as to make it rather difficult for him to keep up his active correspondence as in the past.

However, we are certain that his name will continue to be a fixture on the CLUB pages in the future as in the past.

Announcement that Colonel J. Barbour Russell, is to erect a new theatre in Maysville, Kentucky, to replace his former house, the Washington Opera House, which was recently razed by flames, comes as an item of pleasurable interest to your Chairman.

The new Russell Theatre will be of Spanish type architecture and will feature the latest innovations in motion picture entertainment, since the Colonel has decided to spare no expense in the construction of a house which Maysville may proudly point to as a "temple of amusement." The house will be located in the center of the city and Colonel Russell plans to inaugurate a free parking space to accommodate all the former patrons of the demolished Opera House, in addition to many new ones.

We want to extend our congratulations to Colonel Russell and wish him the best of luck in his new venture—a venture we are certain will more than ever enable him to keep up the live wire reputation he has built for himself as a showman and we look forward with interest to hearing of the theatre's progress.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE CLUB

Another Study In Angles; This One Taught By Kopplin

To watch the way a real showman goes about laying the foundation for record business is one of the world's greatest pleasures to us and whenever we learn about something like this going on, you can bet we are going to pass it along to the rest of the CLUB and all of which is leading up to the way Harold A. Kopplin, manager of the Capitol Theatres in Miami, Fla., successfully put across a "wow" of a special invitation midnight show as the first gun in his campaign on "Happy Days."

Kopplin made up a marvelous-appearing invitation, printed in blue, on excellent grey stock paper, about the size of club stationery, which carried a picture on the front page of a girl, in bell hop costume, bearing a message which read, "Dear Friends—Just a line to let you know that 100 stars of stage and screen are coming to town to wish you 'Happy Days'."

On the inside page Kopplin pulled a nifty by applying the principal used by famous Broadway producers, on opening nights: laying out a personal invitation, made up in a form resembling engraving, which besides carrying the invitation to witness the special pre-view also got in a plug for the stars, with Kopplin's smart showmanship being evident in the line devoted to a plug for George Olsen and his Band, who appear in the picture. Olson had made a big hit at Deauville, one of the rendezvous of Miami, and Kopplin decided to capitalize on the idea.

Kopplin's live-wire tactics were again in evidence, when it is known that this special pre-view was held TWO WEEKS IN ADVANCE of the picture's play date, and in that manner Kopplin secured some valuable word of mouth publicity, in addition to attracting interest in the picture's opening. We can safely state that his box office benefited as the picture in question is pretty good film entertainment and was probably well spoken of. A special ticket, bearing copy relating to the time of the pre-view, as well as carrying the theatre "plug" was also inserted with the invitation.

This type of high-pressure showmanship is what puts any picture across and we want to be sure to hear more of it, and while we are on the subject of showmanship, we hope Kopplin will be sure to tell us all about the novelties his kid organist "Buddy" Webber and himself are engineering down there, for knowing "Buddy" of old, and the novelties he has innovated, we feel sure that working with a showman like Kopplin, there's something "hot" going on every minute.

THE DANCING SCHOOL!

It's been quite a long time since we first suggested that you capitalize on a co-operative tie-up with your local dancing school, but if ever a suggestion was worth while, here is one.

Aside from the entertainment value to your theatre, through dancing school tie-ups, you have the added advantage of attracting a mint of extra business and new patrons by reason of the many friends and relatives of the dancing youngsters who want to see the kiddies perform.

We have yet to hear about one of these schools turning a deaf ear to a recital in a local theatre. As a matter of fact, they solicit such performances themselves and if YOU have not cashed in on this angle, then WHY NOT?

Suppose, if only for the sake of curiosity, you talk it over with the dancing school in your town or neighborhood and see what sort of a plan you can work out for your mutual benefit.

"Chick."

G. E. LeTart Used Fine Showmanship In This Local Gag

G. E. LeTarte carried out a splendid stunt in exploiting "The Laughing Lady," playing at the Park Theatre, Fort Fairfield, Me., by tying in with the telephone company.

In Fort Fairfield, one long ring on the telephone is the signal for all subscribers on the line to rush to their phones and hear a message such as, "Turn off your water or electricity for a certain length of time due to repairs being made."

So here's where LeTarte comes in. He sold the telephone company the idea of using the same system of one long ring and tell these subscribers that "The Laughing Lady" was playing at the Park Theatre and a continuous show was being run.

This stunt was put over at no cost to the theatre other than two passes for the operator.

Mr. Le Tarte is a new member to the CLUB pages, but we sincerely hope that he will become a regular contributor from now on. Anyone capable of engineering a stunt like the one described above in connection with the telephone company must have many other corking ideas up his sleeve, and we hope that the spirit of the ROUND TABLE CLUB will prevail to the extent that he will keep us posted regularly in the future.

What about it "G. E."? And if it's not getting too personal, on such short acquaintance, how about sending us one of your own photos with a little dope on your past experiences in the show business so we can give you a more intimate introduction on the CLUB pages?

Notice to Members

PLEASE be sure to notify the Chairman of any change of address.

EMERSON'S FLASHY FRONT!

For a marvelously classy front, briliant in lighting, and attractive from every showman angle, we must credit Ted Emerson, Manager of the Strand Theatre in Des Moines, Ia., with this fine looking display which we are reproducing.

Ted Emerson's activities out there in the middle West have been the source of a lot of talk in film circles, and we would not be surprised to hear a whole lot more about his advancement in the show business.

Suppose you keep us posted on what else you are doing out there, Ted. Just keep in mind that you are passing it along for the benefit of your brother members.

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

RECENT NEW MEMBERS!

MISS ANNA BELL WARD is the Assistant Managing Director of the Phoenix Amusement Company's holdings in Lexington, Paris and Richmond, Kentucky. Miss Ward, the latest member of the female sex to join our organization, has already given your Chairman sufficient evidence to believe that she is determined to make our other members look to their laurels. Well, keep it up, Miss Ward and we are sure that you'll find competition hotter than hot. We'd like to have a photo of Miss Ward and a little note setting forth in detail her career in this game to date. How about it, Miss Ward?

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

V. N. LAPPEUS is the manager of the Avon Theatre in Watertown, N. Y. Up around that vicinity we know that competition is pretty hot and for that reason we believed that many good things will be forthcoming from him. We would welcome the opportunity of telling you more about this new member and if Lappeus will slip us a bit of "dope" on himself and include his photo, we will give him a regular introduction.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

BENJ. F. VonPILSKI is the manager of the Palace Theatre in South Norwalk, Conn., and it seems like hearing from home to hear from that part of the State as we spent quite some time in the vicinity. Thus we know just about how many good things to expect from our new member and we want to assure him that we are looking forward with interest to hearing from him.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

DAVE McMULLEN manages the Capitol and Regent Theatres in Guelph, Ontario, Canada. From a clipping we have on hand we glean the fact that Dave is a pretty popular guy up around Jack Allan's district and we would like to hear more about him and his activities, which are bound to be up to the minute, since a showman who is as well spoken of as Dave couldn't be anything else but active.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

CHARLES OAKLEY managing the Empress Theatre in Danbury Conn. is another showman who started off his entry into the Club with a bang by contributing for his first effort, as a member, a stunt that we thought was good enough to pass on to the rest of the Club. So you see, Charlie, does not really have to have his introduction but they have all got to go through with it and that's that. Oke, Charlie?

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

ALBERT P. SCOTT is the manager of the Capitol Theatre in Portsmouth, Va. From the many interesting accounts we have received of our Virginia members activities, we believe that we have acquired another live-wire in Scott, and look forward to seeing his first contribution. And send us your photo too, Albert.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

JOHN MARTIN is the manager of the Liberty Theatre in Watertown, N. Y. for the Fox Metropolitan Outfit. Since we have followed John's activities for some time now, and seen him rise from an assistant manager to his present position, we know that he is going to be a very active member of the Round Table Club. Congratulations, John, on your new position at the Liberty.

J. E. WRIGHT is the house manager of the Roxy Theatre in Walla Walla for the Inland Theatres Corp. and since we feel that this 500 seat sound house has plenty of selling angles that should make interesting and profitable reading for the followers of the ROUND TABLE CLUB pages, we look forward with interest to hearing some new angles.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

ARCH BARTHOLET manages the Liberty Theatre in Toppenish, Wash., for the Inland Theatres Corp. As the Liberty features a policy of pictures and legitimate shows, we would appreciate some accounts of the way Arch sells them. Shoot us in a couple of lines on it, will you, "Arch"?

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

RAY MEYERSICK is the house manager of the Liberty Theatre in Walla Walla, Wash., for the Inland Theatres Corp. and is one of the latest members of the live wire circuit run by Senior and Junior Mercy, to enroll. We have had many examples of the way the showmen of this circuit sell their shows, so we guess it is needless to say that Ray will be an always member.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

IRVING COHEN manages the State Theatre in Omaha, Neb. for the Publix outfit. From what we have heard concerning this peppy showman's activities we believe he is going to be a very active contributor and member of the Round Table Club. And if he becomes as interested and active a member as his brother managers on the same circuit we'll be more than satisfied. So shoot us in some stuff Irving and let's get going.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

S. B. KALL is the manager of the Plaza Theatre in South Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y., and with Kall's enrollment we add another Long Island showman's name to our roster. Let us hope that Kall will make an active member and will keep us posted on everything theatrical in his section of the Island.

——Wear Your Club Pin! ! !——

ERNEST A. DORAU is the assistant manager of the Palace Theatre in Meriden, Conn., and since he is working under a capable showman like our fellow member, Harold Waugh, we feel that it is unnecessary for us to tell Ernest that we expect him to be active, especially when we know that he's bound to contract some of Howard Waugh's pep, and that alone will make him more than active.

THE Club is anxious to publish photographs of every member and would, therefore, appreciate receiving as many as possible for use in future issues of the Club columns. If you have not already done so, PLEASE send us your own photo at once. Thank you.

The Authentic Who's Who of the Film Industry

Low-Cost, Colored Sound Pictures

THE ever-growing success of Sonochrome is based on one simple fact. This Eastman film meets the demands of the new-day motion picture, by giving both color and sound-on-film—at the cost of ordinary black-and-white.

THE QUICKEST, SUREST AND SAFEST WAY TO SEND MONEY IS BY TELEGRAPH OR CABLE

Gorgeous, dazzling electric Lupe—Anita in "Hell Harbor". A pirate's daughter for whose love men forgot laws of life—and took it at will.

HE-MAN ROMANCE RIDES FOOTLOOSE AND FREE IN THIS STIRRING KING-VELEZ SENSATION

From Detroit to Miami—New York to the West Coast, "Hell Harbor" (the people's choice for entertainment) is dropping the coin of the realm into showmen's pockets in huge wads. You should thank Mr. Velas for this tip.
